The Sales Department is a most valuable adjunct to our association and has been conducted in an able, efficient manner by the present incumbent. A summary of his year's work will be submitted to you. I know of no desirable changes or improvements that might benefit that branch, but, if members would release from their hoards of duplicates more generously and liberally and give the other fellows an opportunity to procure desirable specimens, it would make our sales department more popular, improve the collections of those who have many vacant spaces in their albums and be for the betterment of the society and philately in general.

I regret the want of success we have had the past year in inducing local societies to become branches of the A. P. S., though two or three local societies have signified their intention of taking the matter into consideration. I urge those members living in large communities to exert their influence in behalf of forming branches. Branch societies are desirable auxiliaries for the increase of membership in our organization and spread the gospel of philately throughout their locality and if enthusiastically conducted benefit their individual collections.

I would recommend that one of the directors or a special superintendent of Branch Societies be appointed whose duty it shall be to endeavor to induce members living in the same community to form branches of the American Philatelic Society, to have supervision of them and their reports and assist them in making their meetings interesting and advantageous to its members.

It seems the more natural system that all Philatelic organizations should coalesce under the egis of the American Philatelic Society and that the "Revenue," the "Postal Card," "Pre-cancelled" and the "Aeroplanes" Clubs should become branches of the Great National Organization and make one harmonious whole. Each division is merely the specializing of a portion of philately and could be subserved more economically and with fully as much benefit to the specialty under the general management of the National Society.

The past year has added its quota of new issues to our numerically large assortment of stamps; what will be the ultimate sum of the world's collectible collection is marvelous to contemplate.

It would be a work of superogation to attempt to enumerate the year's contribution. You have already had them in your philatelic papers and they are fresh in your minds as on your album pages. The U. S. has done away with its special parcel post and added new denominations to the ordinary issues for the convenience of that service. Great Britain has extended its Georgian Colonials as rapidly as possible, while China, Cuba, Turkey, Egypt, Bavaria, Mexico, with its constitutional government and the Balkan Peninsula are some of the most important new issues.

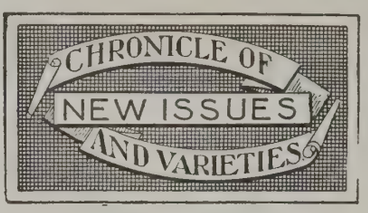
In one particular, it is worth while inviting your attention to the fact, that the British Government (one of the latest great powers to issue "Postal due stamps") has provided a method by which the philatelic public may legitimately acquire them for their albums, without resorting to subterfuge, bribery or corruption of postal officials as has evidently been largely prevalent in the U. S. not only with the "Dues" but those of the Postal Savings Dept. and precancels. There seems no reasonable argument why they should not have been legitimately sold by the U. S. Government.

For the past year or two there has been a lot of overprinting of the Obsolete (1902) issue of the ordinary postage stamps as well as the excessively high denominations which it hardly seems could have been authorized by the Post Office authorities in Washington, for which dealers in locally precancelled stamps have asked exorbitantly high prices.

As the department prohibits the indiscriminate sale of this class of stamps, it is problematical how they get upon the market.

I lay before you for consideration from the Verband Schweiz Postwertzeichenhandler (association of Swiss dealers) regarding the production of speculative stamp issues referring especially to those of Southeastern Europe and recommend that it be referred from the action of suitable committee.

Our Counterfeit detector (Mr. Klein) in his report calls especial attention to these speculative issues and the numerous forgeries of them.



The Mayor of Rochester, N. Y., at the instigation of Philatelists there, (there being no branch of the A. P. S. in that city) wrote me early in May, requesting the A. P. S. should hold its convention for this year in Rochester, but I was obliged to inform him, that the place of holding the convention had already been designated by the vote of last year's convention, held at Put-in-Bay, Ohio, and that I could not change the locality.

There are applications in the hands of the Secretary from the California Philatelic Society and the "Management for Conventions" at the World's Panama-Pacific Exposition requesting the A. P. S. to hold their 1915 Convention in the City of San Francisco, Calif. This matter will of course be referred to the Committee for next Convention, but it will require careful consideration by the members after the committee have rendered their report.

I wish that the majority of the members of the A. P. S. would endeavor to take their summer vacations at the time of our Annual Conventions and so enable them to unite with us in the work and pleasures of these reunions, becoming better acquainted with each other, enhancing their own enjoyment and acquiring valuable philatelic information which the comingling of individuals engrossed in a special hobby must necessarily impart.

I am pleased to welcome those present and regret that those members of the A. P. S. who have been unable to attend this convention, renders it possible for me to extend my fraternal greeting, only through the medium of this report.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF LAGOS.

By D. B. Armstrong.

By some catalogues the date of issue of the second series of Lagos postage stamps is given as 1876, whilst by others it is vaguely relegated to the previous year. The scarcity of clearly dated copies of these stamps renders the solution of this question a matter of some difficulty, so that in the absence of definite information to the contrary the date 1876 as given in the Royal Society's work on Africa may be tentatively accepted. As a matter of fact they are believed to have made their appearance towards the close of that year, in which case 1875 is a long way clear of the mark.

Except that a new perforating machine was employed in the production of this issue, it is in all other respects identical with its predecessor. The new form of perforation gauged 14 instead of 12½, and on all stamps of this series examined by the writer was produced by means of a comb-machine (viz., one whose teeth are arranged roughly in the form of a comb and perforate three sides of all stamps in a vertical or horizontal row at each descent of the pins). About this time, however, the printers are known to have been making use of a single-line machine of the same gauge, which they had acquired in the previous year and supplies of stamps furnished to the adjacent colony of the Gold Coast at the same period were at first perforated with this machine and afterwards by a comb-machine of the same gauge, as was also the case with the contemporary stamps of Gambia. It is possible, therefore, that the early consignment of the second issue of Lagos were also perforated with this single-line machine, and specialists possessing blocks or large pieces of these stamps will do well to take careful note of their perforations. Perforations produced by single line machines may readily be recognised from the fact that the vertical and horizontal rows of holes do not exactly coincide, but almost invariably fall foul of one another at the angles, whilst those from a comb machine correspond precisely, the cross line at the angles being perfectly clean and even, leaving a single perfect hole in the corner of every stamp, which is not found on those perforated with a guillotine machine.

Variety.

A somewhat curious variety of this issue is recorded in "Africa," Part II., and one whose occurrence it is difficult to account for This is none other than the 4d denomination with the watermark Crown CC sideways instead of upright. Now the sheets of Crown CC paper contained 240 watermarks, grouped in four panes of sixty, each containing ten horizontal rows of six watermarks; the four panes being divided by plain vertical and horizontal margins bearing the watermarked inscription "Crown Colonies." In printing the stamps of Lagos therefore the full sheets were cut up into panes, each designed to accommodate sixty impressions of the design in ten rows of six. In the event therefore of the paper being inserted in the press sideways only seven rows (forty-two stamps) at the most could be printed upon it, since the paper would necessarily be longer than it was wide, even allowing for one row of stamps being printed on the margin. Under these circumstances therefore, and especially considering the great care with which all work at the De La Rue factory is examined and checked it is hard to find a satisfactory explanation of this anomaly.

Watermark Sideways.

Shades.

The following varieties of shades exist in this series:—

3d chestnut, instead of red-brown.
1s deep orange, instead of orange.

On January 1st, 1879, in company with the other British West African possessions, Lagos became a member of the Universal Postal Union, and in consequence a revision of the foreign postal tariff of the Colony was effected as under:—

Post Office Notice.

"The following will be the uniform rates of postage chargeable on prepaid correspondence for the United Kingdom and countries of the "Postal Union" from the first day of April next, viz.: Letters 4d per ½ oz.; Newspapers 1d per 4 oz.; other printed papers and patterns 1s per lb. or 3d per 4 oz.; except when addressed via Brindisi.

Unpaid letters will be charged double on arrival at destination. The reduced rates on correspondence for countries not comprised in the "Postal Union" can be seen at the office daily during business hours.

By order,
W. E. Cole, Postmaster.
Post Office, Lagos, 22nd March, 1879.

At the same time the local postal rate was raised from 1d to 2d per ½-oz.

A new type of postmark introduced about this time consisted of a plain ellipse composed of eight thick bars, struck in black.

A further supply of Lagos postage stamps received in the Colony in June, 1882, was printed on paper watermarked Crown CA, to which the old form of Crown CC watermark had recently given place. The new initials represented "Crown Agents" (for the Colonies) the office in London through which the stamp supplies of this and the majority of other British possessions were requisitioned; this being considered more appropriate than the old Crown Colony watermark, as the same paper was frequently employed in printing the stamps of British possessions not administered under the Crown Colony system of government.

In all other respects this issue was identical with its predecessor, being completed by the addition of the 1sh value with the new watermark in March, 1885.

3d chestnut.
4d carmine.
1sh orange (March, 1885).

During the currency of this series another new type of postmark was introduced comprising an ordinary circular date stamp inscribed "Lagos, W. Africa" around the circumference, with the date in the center.

The colour scheme of the Colony's postage stamps was revised between the years 1884 and 1886. The ½d and 1d values were issued in green and carmine respectively, in accordance with Postal Union usage, and at the same time changes were made in the colours of the 2d, 4d and 6d stamps to avoid confusion. Three high values were also added to the new series and were available for fiscal as well as purely postal purposes. No 3d or 1s stamps were included in the new series.

1884-86. Design as before. New colours and values. Wmk. Crown CA. Perf. 14. Dates of issue appended in brackets.

½d dull green (February, 1868).
1d rose-carmine (December, 1884).
2d grey (December, 1884).
4d lilac (December, 1884).
6d olive-green (December, 1884).
2sh 6d olive-black (October, 1886).
5sh deep blue (October, 1886).
10sh purple-brown (October, 1886).

From March, 1887, to February, 1894, all values from 2d upwards were issued with the body of the stamp printed in patent doubly-fugitive ink as a precaution against fraudulent cleaning and reuse of the stamps. This special ink being obtainable only in purple or green (black being a more recent discovery) one or other of these colours had to be used for every stamp in the series combined with the value inscription in a different hue, printed in ordinary singly fugitive ink. Four additional stamps were included in this series, their respective denominations being 2½d, 5d, 7½d and 10d. The first of these was intended for the prepayment of the single rate on foreign letters, and was accordingly printed entirely in blue, the colour prescribed by the Postal Union authorities for all stamps of this value. This provides the only exception to the use of doubly fugitive ink.

In considering the question of the issue of such out-of-the-way values as 5d, 7d, and 10d, it should be remembered that to a certain extent the postal tariffs of the British West African colonies are unified. Thus, when we find that three years after the issue of these stamps in Lagos a Post Office Act of the neighbouring Colony of Gambia established the following rates for the insurance of postal packets, and subsequently stamps of equivalent denominations were issued in that Colony, it appears highly probable that these Lagos stamps originated in a similar arrangement. The charges instituted by the Gambia Post Office for the insurance of parcels, etc., were:—

5d to secure compensation up to £12.
7½d to secure compensation up to £24.
10d to secure compensation up to £36.

Proofs of the 1884-1886 Issue: The 4d, 6d, 2sh 6d, 5sh and 10sh denominations of the 1884-86 series exist in an imperforate condition, and are probably proofs. Presumably the other values are also to be found in this state.

Imperforate.

10sh purple-brown.

1887-94. Design as before. Bi-coloured. Value in second colour. Printed in doubly fugitive ink (except the 2½d). Typographed and printed by Messrs. Thos. De La Rue & Co. in London in sheets of 60 (ten rows of 6). Dates of issue appended in brackets.

2d purple and blue (March, 1887).
2½d blue (December, 1890).
3d purple and red-brown (April, 1891).
4d purple and black (March, 1887).
5d purple and green (February, 1894).
6d purple and mauve (March, 1887).
7½d purple and carmine (February, 1894).

These stamps remained current until the advent of the King's Head series, and the key-plate introduced as far back as 1874 was exclusively employed in their production right up to the year 1902, when, owing to its beginning to show signs of wear, Plate "1" was discarded, and a second plate numbered "2" brought into use, differing from

Plate "1" in that the plate numbers appeared in white upon a solid circle of colour in all four corners of the sheet, and the sheet was encircled by a continuous marginal line in the colour of the body of the stamp; produced by a metal band level with the face of the plate, placed round it by the printers to ensure even wear, and known to philatelists as a Jubilee line. The only stamps printed from this second plate were the ½d, 1d, 6d and 1s.

A supply of the 6d value printed from Plate "2" and issued at Lagos in October, 1902, showed an error of colour, the value having inadvertently been inserted in carmine instead of mauve, as in the normal.

Error of Colour.

6d purple and carmine.

Shades: The colours in which the bodies of the stamps of this series were printed vary from deep to pale purple and from blue to yellow-green, whilst the words of value are also subject to considerable variation as regards colour. Some of the later impressions from Plate 1 are blurred and indistinct, but the so-called thick and thin lettering in the values is due chiefly to heavy or light inking and impressions.

The following are the most pronounced shades to be found in the stamps of the 1887-94 issue of Lagos:—

1d deep carmine.
2d purple and pale blue.
2½d ultramarine.
5d purple and deep green.
6d purple and pale mauve.
1s yellow-green and black.
2sh 6d blue-green and pale carmine.
5s blue-green and ultramarine.

A revision of the Inland postal tariff of the Colony was effected in 1887, in accordance with the following official notification:—

Post Office, Lagos, 27th October, 1887.

"With reference to the Post Office Notice of the 5th March, 1874, it is hereby notified for general information, that from and after this date, and until further notice, the Inland rate of postage on postal articles, despatched to and received from the Eastern and Western districts where there is a Postal Establishment shall be in accordance with the table hereunder, viz.:—

G. J. Cole, Postmaster."

A temporary shortage of ½d stamps occurring in August, 1893, was met by overprinting a quantity of the 4d denomination with the legend "Half Penny" in small Roman capitals with a thick black bar beneath, obliterating the original value inscription, for provisional use as ½d stamps.

The surcharge was applied locally to complete sheets by means of hand-stamps, apparently set up from a fount of moveable metal type. These hand-stamps were two in number, the one set up to overprint a horizontal pair of stamps at each impression, and the other to cover a horizontal strip of three. That overprinting a pair at once, may be distinguished by the "P" on the left hand stamp being dropped below the level of the other letters in the word "Penny." The thick bar cancelling the original value was composed of two narrow bars placed close together, and when insufficiently inked shows the two bars quite plainly.

The overprint measures 16 mm. in length and 1½ mm. in height, and the bar is 16¾ mm. long.

1893. August. Provisional Issue. One value. Overprinted "HALF PENNY" locally in the Colony in one line of small Roman capitals, and a thick black bar cancelling the original value inscription on the stamp of 1887.

Half Penny on 4d purple and black.

Variety.

The only important variety of this stamp is a double impression of the overprint, which occurred somewhat frequently on the sheets.

Double Surcharge.

As one of the original signatories to the Convention, Lagos has participated in the Imperial Penny Postage agreement since December 25th, 1898.

In November, 1905, the following remainders of Queen's Head Lagos postage stamps were offered for sale in London by the Crown Agents for the Colonies.

Duty	No. of Sheets	Colour
½d	1765	Green.
2d	4071	Lilac and blue.
3d	1430	Lilac and red-brown.
4d	1798	Lilac and black.
5d	959	Lilac and green.
6d	390	Lilac and purple.
7½d	546	Lilac and carmine.
10d	385	Lilac and yellow.
1sh	437	Green and black.
2sh 6d	301	Green and carmine.
5sh	315	Green and blue.
10sh	227	Green and brown.

It is understood that no satisfactory tenders were forthcoming and the above stocks were accordingly destroyed.

Not until January 22nd, 1904, was any change made in the design of the Lagos postage stamps, this being the last of the British possessions to issue King's Head postage stamps. The date on which they were first placed on sale was the third anniversary of His Majesty's accession to the Throne. Except for the substitution of Herr Emil Fuch's well known portrait of King Edward VII for that of Queen Victoria and the incorporation of a Royal Crown in the design, above the King's portrait, the new stamps presented no striking difference from those which they superseded. The word "Revenue" was, however, added to the inscription, thus clearly defining their dual application.

They were printed in sheets of 120 in two panes of sixty, side by side, each containing ten horizontal rows of six stamps, with continuous coloured marginal lines, and the plate number "1" in all four corners of the sheet; but were usually divided into half-panes of 60 prior to their being issued to the post offices.

The high values of this series are amongst the scarcest of the King's Head stamps with the Single Crown CA watermark, the numbers printed being 9360 of the 1sh, 1440 of the 2sh 6d, 1680 of the 5s and 720 of the 10s, the latter not being added to the series until November, 1904.

1904. January 22nd and November 26th (10s). New design as above. Head of King Edward VII. Wmk. Crown CA (single). Perf. 14. Bi-coloured. Value in second colour inserted at second printing. Typographed and printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., in London.

Numbers printed appended in brackets.

1d purple and black on red.
2d purple and blue.
2½d purple and blue on blue.
3d purple and brown.
6d lilac and mauve.
1sh blue-green and black (9360).
2sh 6d blue-green and carmine (1440).
5sh blue-green and blue (1680).
10sh blue-green and brown (720).

Proof: A proof of the 1d King's Head stamp of Lagos, imperforate, is known printed in the colour of the 2½d value, viz.: purple and blue on blue.

Imperforate.

1d purple and blue on blue.

It will be noted that the values 4d, 5d, 7½d and 10d were not continued in this series.

Some time in 1905 a new duty-plate was brought into use for printing in the value on the 2½d stamps, in which the letters were of a uniform size, and all supplies of this stamp issued subsequent to October 13th, 1905, show this characteristic.

On the original "duty-plate" the value "2½ Penny" was set partly in large and partly in small type, and the two varieties occurred in adjoining rows of the stamps.

Variety.
Value in large thick letters.

2½d purple and blue on blue.

A few sheets of 2½d stamps with the single Crown CA watermark were included in a consignment chiefly composed of those having the Multiple watermark and printed on chalk-surfaced paper, received in the colony about that time.

All values of the King's Head stamps (excepting the 2½d) were issued during 1904-05 with the new multiple form of Crown CA watermark adopted at that period for the printing of British Colonial stamps. Instead of being arranged so that one complete watermark should appear on each stamp, the watermarks were slightly reduced in size and repeated close together over the entire area of the paper so that portions of two or more watermarks would fall on every stamp, instead of one only as formerly. The object of this watermark was to obviate the necessity for careful and accurate spacing, and at the same time to permit of the same paper being employed for stamps of all shapes and sizes. It was first brought into use by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. in May, 1904.

1904-5. King's Head design as before. Wmk. Multiple Crown CA. Perf. 14. Value in second colour. Dates of issue appended in brackets.

1d purple & black on red (Oct. 22nd, 1904).
2d purple and blue (February, 1905).
3d lilac and brown (April 27th, 1905).
6d purple and mauve (Oct. 31st, 1904).
1sh blue-green & black (Oct. 31st, 1904).
2sh 6d blue-green and carmine (Dec. 3rd, 1904).
5sh blue-green and blue (Jan., 1905).
10sh blue-green and brown (Dec. 3d, 1904).
5sh blue-green and blue (Oct. 21st, 1906).
10sh blue-green and brown (Mar. 12, 1906).

In September, 1905, the 1d value was issued printed on the new chalk-surfaced paper which had been introduced by the printers in that year as an additional safeguard against cleaning, and was employed exclusively in the production of stamps printed in doubly-fugitive inks and destined for both postal and revenue purposes. Subsequently the entire series made its appearance on this paper.

1905-6. Design, etc., as before. Wmk. Multiple Crown CA. Perf. 14. Chalk-surfaced paper. Dates of issue appended in brackets.

1d purple & black on red (Sept. 21, 1905).
2d purple and blue (Sept. 25th, 1906).
2½d purple & blue on blue (Oct. 13, 1905).
3d lilac and brown (August 2nd, 1906).
6d purple and mauve (March 1st, 1906).
1sh blue-green and black (April, 1906).
2sh 6d blue-green and carmine (Oct. 21, 1906).
5sh blue-green and blue (Oct. 21st, 1906).
10sh blue-green & brown (Mar. 12th, 1906).

Varieties.

The following values of this series are known with the watermark inverted.

Inverted Watermark.

1sh blue-green and black.

Forgeries.

Collectors should be on their guard against a number of dangerous fakes of the high-value stamps of Lagos, both King's and Queen's head, which are on the market. They are extemporised with the aid of the regular halfpenny stamps of the colony from which the value tablet has been removed and one bearing a higher denomination inserted in its place.

On May 1st, 1906, Lagos was incorporated in Southern Nigeria, and with a view to facilitating the speedy exhaustion of the stock of King's Head Lagos postage stamps remaining on hand at the Lagos Treasury (which in the ordinary course of events would suffice to meet the postal requirements of the colony for a period of nearly twelve years), the current postage stamps of Southern Nigeria were temporarily withdrawn from sale and those of Lagos issued to all post offices in both Lagos and Southern Nigeria so long as the supply lasted. This was done on July 1st, 1906, and by the end of 1908 the Lagos postage stamps had been completely exhausted; since when none but stamps inscribed Southern Nigeria have been in use throughout the combined territories.

At this point, therefore, the word "Finis" may be inscribed beneath the history of Lagos as a separate stamp issuing colony.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

UNITED STATES REVENUE SOCIETY CONVENTION.

The eighth annual convention of the United States Revenue Society was held at the International Hotel, Niagara Falls, N. Y., August 12, 1914. Second Vice President, William C. Stone called the meeting to order in the absence of the President and appointed W. G. Whittaker Secretary pro tempore. After reading the call for the convention P. M. Wolsieffer presented the report of the Credential committee showing that the following officers were elected for the ensuing year by a practically unanimous vote, only one or two scattering votes being received for each office:

President, W. D. Grout; 1st Vice President, William C. Stone; 2nd President, W. S. Aldrich; Secretary, Otto F. Moses; Treasurer, H. S. Ackerman. There were 71 ballots cast out of a membership of 124.

President Saxton sent a short message reviewing the year and expressing his regrets at not being able to attend. He tendered the Board of Governors the sum of $25 to be used as a recruiting prize or for the best manuscript bearing on revenues. A unanimous vote of thanks was tendered him for the gift.

Secretary Moses reported a present membership of 124, a net loss of 18 over last year, 0 new members and one reinstatement being reported, while 9 members resigned, and 19 were dropped for non-payment of dues.

He made a number of recommendations regarding the work of the society in the nature of suggestions for stirring up interest and also suggested that arrangements be made if possible to secure space in the American Philatelist for setting forth the advantages of our society. These recommendations will be considered by the Board of Governors, to whom they were referred after discussion.

The report of Treasurer Ackerman showed that for the first time in two years we have a balance on hand in the general fund. The total receipts for the year were $133.50 and the expenditures $85.39, leaving a balance of $48.21 in the general fund together with $61.76 in the insurance fund. This latter fund by the way has only been drawn on three times in the history of the society and that was about four years ago. This speaks well for the quality of our membership.

It was voted that in view of the fact that we have no regular auditing committee that the chair appoint an auditor to audit the above report and that in future the Board of Governors take the same action prior to the convention so that the report will have been approved when presented to the convention. H. E. Deats was appointed to audit the present report.

Sales Superintendent W. C. Emery reported sales of $72.11 from the five circuits sent out. The small results are due to the failure of the members to send in sheets and to the poor quality of many of those sent. There is a market for good things but members seem to be afraid to send them in. The same state of affairs prevails in the Foreign Revenue section where Supt. Homburger reports only one circuit sent out with sales of only $3.78.

The Counterfeit Detector reported no business which evidently means that there are very few forgeries in this branch of philately.

The Expert committee reported at some length on the difficulty of determining the differences in the various papers, etc.

No deaths were reported by the Obituary committee and the Recruiting committee apologized for the poor showing made during the past year.

Owing to the inability of the Literature committee to prepare a report Wm. C. Stone gave a brief summary of what few facts he had been able to gather in the few days before the convention. A new edition of Forbin's catalogue of foreign revenues was announced as nearly ready and also a work on the private proprietary stamps of the United States by R. DeL. French. Attention was also called to Chapter 770 of the Acts of the last Massachusetts legislature which provided for the issuing of stock transfer stamps December 1, 1914. Suggestions were made as to issuing an index of magazine articles on revenue stamps and also a handbook of American stamped paper to include not only bank checks, etc., but the early colonial issues, etc., as well.

lected as the official journal and a vote of thanks was given for past services.

On account of our small membership on the Pacific coast and the likelihood of there being very few of our members attending the fair, it was voted to hold the 1915 convention at Springfield, Massachusetts, at such time as the Board of Governors may determine

The chairman gave summary of our present membership by states, and also a few statistics concerning our seven previous conventions which showed that Atlantic City and Springfield were the only conventions at which both President and Secretary were present and at Chicago the Secretary only, while at all others temporary officers have had to be selected.

WILLIAM C. STONE.

CONVENTIONALITIES.

Alvin Good circulated about gracefully followed by a crowd of ardent admirers who felt that they were basking in the favor of the great, and that they were amply repaid by a chaste smile occasionally.

H. E. Deats proved that philatelic knighthood was still in flower. He dispensed candy to the fair and cigars to the brave.

We missed the two "Ex's," F. R. Cornwall and H. N. Mudge, O, so sorely. Is this tear unmanly?

The unexpectedly large attendance was credited in large measure to the absence of H. Wesley Legg.

C. V. Webb was the pride and pet of the convention. Clarence is making history and is living in a whirl of philatelic excitement.

C. W. Kissinger, our friend for a quarter century, still finds enjoyment in livening up philatelic affairs of state.

Wm. L. Stevenson created consternation by actually speaking of stamps at the philatelic convention.

P. M. Wolsieffer was greeted with the well known "thunders of applause" when he arose in his majesty to clarify the convention atmosphere with a few characteristic remarks.

Henry Ades Fowler's capacious mind was occupied wholly by the auction sale, which was conducted according to schedule and was entertainment of the best order.

Edgar Nelton's books of covers made some of the most valuable volumes that ever dazzled the eyes of open-mouthed collectors.

Wendover Neefus did not allow time to hang heavily on his hands. He was in the thick of it all and a moving picture only could describe his activities.

Hugh C. Barr,—but words fail us and a throbbing pulse makes our typewriter nerveless. (Mr. Barr with a spirit that deserves utmost emulation gave us several old postal documents).

Geo. L. Toppan had his hand on the throttle and all went well. Yet he had his moments of relaxation which added to the enjoyment of all.

H. F. Colman was a distinct acquisition and if a most popular man present contest had been held his name would have been in the running.

The Detroit, Cleveland, Rochester, St. Louis and Philadelphia delegations were composed of the philatelic elect of their respective cities. There was nothing rowdy about any of these gentlemen.

Believing that extreme culture ran to simplicity, the Chicago delegation conducted itself quietly and effaced itself at every opportunity.

The Doeblins were in demand and they held constant levees as they moved through the throngs that blocked their way.

We were pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Kissinger, Mr. and Mrs. Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Gregg again. May they continue to adorn our annual gatherings.

Frank H. Burt, the old reliable convention reporter, did the work and we shall have the best account of the convention proceedings that we have had for many a day, we trow.

R. J. Wagner has got the convention habit and we must say that he fits into the photograph very nicely.

Howard H. Elliott was not a bit quarrelsome but much to general surprise he did not invest in those bargain sets that we brought along for those we wished to favor.

L. C. Hassler was present and spent much of his time in shaking hands with his host of friends, old and new.

From farthest west came Dr. W. I. Mitchell of Wichita, Kansas, who picked up some good stamps as well as extracted a good time.

Donald R. Heath knows how to grasp the psychological moment. He renewed his subscription to the WEEKLY when financial clouds were lowering.

Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg was a magnetic force on all occasions; and had her share of business and pleasure. (We hope that the two flags she bought are waving proudly).

Miss Winans is a new member worth while. She came to the convention all the way from New York City. We noticed that many of the members took pleasure in showing her stamps.

H. C. Burns of Niagara Falls was tireless in his efforts to make everybody feel at home and the thought of his courtesies will long remain. As for the Buffalo members, they may know that they made friends of all those who saw how they worked for the pleasure and comforts of the visitors.

TURN TO STAMPS IN TIME OF STRESS.

After a thrilling ocean race for her life, the German steamer Willehad, Capt. H. Filsinger, shook off the British cruiser Essex outside Boston Light and steamed to safety off quarantine on the night of August 5th. Next morning's newspapers contained an intensely interesting account of the chase, the story being particularly worth noting by philatelists, because Capt. Filsinger is a stamp collector—and what do you suppose he did when he found his vessel safe and the strain was over?

This is how it appeared in the Boston Journal:—

"When she had reached quarantine the Essex was but a small blot of smoke on the horizon. Then it was that Capt. Filsinger, after nearly a hundred hours' duty on his bridge, collapsed.

"There were gentle hands there to catch the falling marine master when he fell and he was taken below to his cabin. The roughest of his sailors had nothing but praise for their sturdy captain, who, when capture had threatened, had stood on his bridge and run his ship through a North Atlantic fog without lights to a port of safety.

"After a couple of hours' rest Capt. Filsinger arose and after a drink of coffee, talked with the customs and medical officers who had boarded his ship. He was very anxious for the latest war news, although his operator had been picking up much from the air.

"When a Journal reporter arrived on board he found the captain seated at the table in his cabin with a large book of stamps in front of him, calmly putting in several stamps he had secured in Canada.

"Although he looked careworn and tired, and his eyes were bloodshot, he was cheery and, above all, happy."—New England Stamp Monthly.

THE NEW AUSTRALIAN STAMPS.

Of late we have been afraid to make any announcements regarding the preparation of new stamps, of which a good deal has been heard, lest before the ink was dry we might have to make others, but the Sydney Morning Herald of 3rd July contains an announcement which must be taken as authoritative.

On the previous day Mr. Agar Wynne, as Postmaster General, bade farewell to the staff of the Sydney G. P. O.

"Speaking of the issue of the new stamps, Mr. Wynne said he expected the new 1d stamp to be in general use by the end of the month. Within a week there would be a million of the 2d, 6d and 1sh stamps available."

It is of course known that the 1d stamp will be similar to those with the portrait of King George issued recently, but printed from steel plate electros. We anticipate that there will be an improvement on those printed from the engraved plates. The Sun, a local newspaper, published on 25th June an illustration of the 1sh stamp. The design is taken from the design of the stamps of West Australia before the Federation. The new stamp will be printed in sepia tint, this being considered as the most distinctive colour. Perhaps the fact that Sir John Forrest is the Federal Treasurer may account for the fact of the swan having been selected for so much distinction. Sir John is a very great "barracker" for West Australia, where all his interests are, and he believes in the value of advertising.

Notwithstanding the official announcement by the Postmaster-General, we receive it with a certain amount of reserve, for we have not forgotten the manner in which the public has already been humbugged and hoodwinked. We shall believe that the stamps have been issued when we see them, and after we have seen them we shall illustrate them, but not before.

The Federal Parliament has been dissolved and a new election of both Houses is fixed for 5th September. Mr. Wynne is definitely retiring from Parliamentary life. On 22nd inst. he will leave Australia for London. From thence he will proceed to the postal conference at Madrid at the request of the present Government, so there will be a new Postmaster-General no matter which party is returned to power. If the Labor party gets a majority there is a great probability that they will throw out the stamps bearing the new designs, and reinstate the kangaroos, so the situation is most interesting, for if new 1d, 2d, 6d and 1sh stamps are issued within the next few weeks and the Labor Party is returned to power on 5th September, there is a possibility that these stamps may have a very short life. If so it will be a merry one, for the speculators will have a lively time.

The Sydney Morning Herald published on 20th of last month an article regarding the present constitution of the post office, which we republish for the benefit of our readers:—

"Mr. Agar Wynne has struggled valiantly with an almost hopeless task in existing circumstances. But the Postmaster-General has found his path obstructed at every turn. He was not long in charge of his department before he learned that it was immersed in red tape, and that what was needed was business management by business men. The Government policy in this connection was the control of the Post Office by a permanent commission, whose function would be to restore efficiency to the service by business methods. The Government, however, was prevented from carrying out its intentions in this direction by the Parliamentary situation. It was impossible to proceed with such useful, non-controversial measures as would have established this commission with the precarious position which confronted it in the House of Representatives, and the hopeless minority in which it found itself in the Senate.

"Efficient business management in the Post Office is still one of the aims of the Government, and in appealing to the country for support at the coming elections Ministers will make an appeal which would go home to every elector. Every man and woman in the country sends and receives letters; a considerable majority of them despatch telegrams; there are few who do not at some time or other use the telephone. They are all, therefore, intimately affected by the present inefficiency of the Post Office of the Commonwealth; they are all interested in seeing that inefficiency replaced by efficient management.—Australia Stamp Journal.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Economist Stamp Co. calls our attention to an error which occurred in the firm's advertisement in No. 1233. The 16 varieties of Hayti stamps offered for $1.15 should read 90c. A refund of 25c will be made to those who have purchased this set.

—Theodore Siddall, who has been journeying to China and Japan sends us some cards as a friendly token of remembrance. Such courtesies are always appreciated by the editor.

—We have received from L. A. Beebe, Yonkers, N. Y., printed particulars of the special offerings made by him in connection with approval selections of original covers. Mr. Beebe is specializing in this line of goods and with the popularity that original covers enjoy, his circular should be of interest to all who collect them.

—The Wm. J. Kennedy Stationery Co., St. Louis, Mo., has sent us what is known as a philatelic stamp mailer. It consists of a book made up in the form of an approval book, but containing moisture proof envelopes in place of the regulation leaves. These envelopes are transparent, so that stamps can be examined without removal. No doubt a sample of the mailer can be secured from the firm in question.

—J. A. Galbraith of N. Y. City resumes his advertising this week. He has just returned from a trip abroad, where he visited Germany, France and England.

—We have no less than five applications for advertising space on the first page. In their order the applicants rank as follows: Eugene Klein, M. Ohlman, Iole Dione, Lincoln Stamp Co. and Bryant Pollard.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Chas. J. Ludwig, Jr., Francis Dessert, H. F. Howlett and W. P. Lyon.

AT HOME AGAIN!

We were indeed fortunate!

Had Germany delayed for three days her declaration of war we should have been in Berlin.

Had England delayed for twenty-four hours her declaration of war against Germany the good ship Eskimo would have landed us in Hull.

As it is, we are in the United States thanks to good generalship coupled with the good luck that was ours.

The past week has been a busy one but things are now well straightened out and we are ready for the fall campaign.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

The Mad War—The European war is affecting economic conditions throughout the world and perforce philately will not wholly escape the ripples of unrest that extend to the farthest shores. Yet, while not wholly exempt from the malign influences that attend an upheaval of nations, philately abides in a sequestered nook from which it plainly hears the turmoil of battle but remains safe from the strife. The uncertainty that is an accompaniment of the chaos that now reigns is such that it is idle to predict when and how the readjustment that must come will be made. Philatelists who are given to that sort of thing may speculate with more or less enthusiasm about the possibilities of new issues and provisionals from the "theatre of war."

Routine Resumed—Our long-lost managing editor, Willard O. Wylie, is home after wandering about various foreign strands and we are glad of it and so is he. He arrived at New York on the 18th of August safe and sound but not without some agitation of mind as a result of war experiences. He was about to leave Christiania for Germany when the news of the declaration of war against Russia was received and he then knew it would be impossible to get through the German lines. So, he secured a booking on the "Eskimo" of Hull, England, but when the "Eskimo" reached Christiania, it delayed sailing for thirty-six hours and when word came that England had declared war, in effect, on Germany, the owners refused to allow the boat to leave. Four days later, the "United States" was to sail from Copenhagen and Mr. Wylie made haste to engage passage and though he had to take the steerage, yet he was able to get first-class table accommodations on the boat. Needless to say, Mr. Wylie was fortunate in being in Norway and adjacent to Denmark, two neutral countries.

Mails Delayed—Our foreign mail gives evidence of the stress abroad and we have received nothing from the countries at war for a week past. We have been told that thousands of sacks of mail are held up in German ports, Kiel, Bremen and Cuxhaven. Our postal department is making every effort to facilitate the carriage of mail by avoiding the countries at war, in routing it. It is the intention of the department to keep the public informed of developments in the foreign service and the newspapers will give early information. It follows that stamp dealers will find their European business curtailed for the time being.

Effect of War—A shrewd observer of philatelic conditions both in America and abroad says that the war "which is almost unbelievable in its horror" will alter many plans and that he thinks that it will be years before one would now seek Europe either for rest or business. He expects stamp collecting in general, "particularly among the more advanced collectors along the broader lines will be materially affected. * * * There being no market abroad for the rarities which have been accustomed to go to that side, the market will sag and it really will be a very good opportunity for some of our very advanced collectors to buy choice things that usually are absorbed by the European market. This, however, does not affect the average dealer; and it is more than likely that the unsettled financial conditions, directly and indirectly due to the war, will affect the big buyers in this country." The assumption is that the New York and other eastern dealers who have close European connections will feel the strain.

Embarrassing—Our correspondent quoted in the preceding paragraph brings forth a question that is somewhat involved and delicate. We know from repeated biographical statements to that effect that the "greatest stamp collector in the world" is associated intimately with Austria and in fact, lives in the Austrian embassy in Paris. Our informant says: "Now that France is at war with Austria, he will probably be 'up in the air.' * * * and his buying probably will be interrupted for some time. This, you may know, will make a decided difference to many of the dealers to whom his purchases have been a source of continual income."

Calling the Roll—Since our inquiries concerning the safety of Americans travelling in Europe were made several weeks ago, we have had assurances that not a few of them had reached America after experiences more or less disconcerting; and that others were "resting" in different countries eagerly anticipating their return. We have received a most interesting letter from Mr. Eugene Klein of Philadelphia who has arrived home after thrilling experiences; he writes from Philadelphia under date of August 21st:

"I am glad to inform you that I reached here with my wife and six year old daughter, Dorothy. We were in Triest when the war broke out and as the steamer on which we were to have sailed did not leave, we thought it best to go to Antwerp which was then considered neutral territory. We travelled by way of Salzburg, Munich, Frankfort (Main), Cologne, Aix-la-Chapelle, Herbesthal to the Belgian border, and then through Brussels to Antwerp. All the railroad stations were guarded by soldiers. The train service was demoralized. We saw families separated owing to the confusion. Baggage, including trunks and hand bags, was piled up 10 to 15 feet high at nearly all stations where passengers were not permitted to take anything into the trains with them. During our stay in Antwerp we were witnesses of the mob rule which demolished German owned stores, compelling the owners to flee for their lives. Many Germans were sent to prison on suspicion of being spies.

We sailed from Antwerp on August 6th on the S. S. Marguette, arriving in Boston on the 17th. We had great difficulty in navigating through the mines in the Schelde River and the North Sea, and were stopped by British cruisers half dozen times, which did not allow us to pass until they found out our ship was British. The signal to stop was usually followed by two cannon shots which did not help in the least to reassure us.

There were 125 passengers which is a small percentage of Americans in Europe at the present time."

Another From Mexico—We take the opportunity to interpolate the remark that another provisional has come from Mexico. A cover was seen bearing the current five centavos orange, with the surcharge in purple: "Gobierno," in curved line, above the letters, "Z. M." and below in line curving upward, "Constitucionalista." Particulars of this new surcharge will soon be forthcoming.

The Other Conventions—In another column is an account of the convention recently at Niagara Falls of the United States Revenue Society by Mr. William C. Stone. We should not neglect to say that the Precanceled Stamp Club held its convention likewise at the same place with a comparatively good attendance. The presence of authorities on precanceled stamps, such as Messrs. Coolidge and Myers, made the session of interest as their observations were of instructive interest to the delegates. We gathered from the opinions expressed at the meeting that the field of precanceled stamps was singularly free from the incursions of fraudulent creations, somewhat contrary to the belief of the uninformed.

PUTNEY COMES TO BOSTON.

We are pleased to note that Freeman Putney is now in Boston, where he is associated with the New England Stamp Co. and will take charge of the approval and mail order department. Mr. Putney is a valuable man in the stamp trade and Boston is the richer by his presence with us.

Mr. Barker, who was formerly in charge of this department, has purchased the business and good will of the Hub Stamp Co., at 345a Washington St. This office is well located and we predict that Mr. Barker will have a large measure of success.

GREEN SEAL SONORAS.

The "Green Seal Sonora" will become a stamp to conjure with one of these days. It exudes individuality. Only the peculiar circumstances surrounding its birth could have inspired it. Absolutely necessitous conditions put the green seal on this stamp, and it is sure to occupy an honored niche in the temple of philately. All the fuss at present is about the black and red issue. But wait a while till you see this little green boy come up smiling. Do you know any dealer that is able to offer you this stamp in sets other than us?

Better get busy and secure a set while you may. We have a few mint sets at $3 each while they last. (1, 2, 3, 5, 10). Cash with order. Money back if you are not satisfied. It won't be long before this set is worth $15, or, what is worse, not obtainable at all.

Send that $3 at once. You are taking no chance.

SOCIAL SPRAY.

By Miss Gushie Gurgle.

Didn't we just have the grandest time at Niagara Falls. Nearly everybody was there; I know that I was. And wasn't it lovely the way we forgot all of our cares and enjoyed ourselves. Why even Hughey Clark unbent and had a real jolly time.

Monday evening, an informal reception was given to General and Mrs. Coolidge which was really the beginning of the social part of the convention.

When we registered on Tuesday morning and received the beautiful buttons which were given by the Buffalo Club, we really felt that we were a part of the American Philatelic Society.

Then that afternoon we had our picture taken and such a time as we had getting fixed for it. It was a disappointment to me not to have the Horse-Shoe Falls for a back ground, but some of the men were so fussy about getting into the spray. Chester Myers says it always uncurls his mustache and Cliffy Kissinger says it affects his the same way.

I wanted to sit beside Geo. Toppan, but what do you think, he wouldn't be in the picture at all.

Billy Stone is right in the center of the picture with the dearest little smile.

Mr. Levy doesn't think his picture is at all natural but really it is an excellent likeness.

Mr. Crowell takes such a good picture. He is so romantic looking.

After the picture was taken we walked to the Shredded Wheat Factory where we saw the entire process of making shredded wheat biscuit. The party was taken in three relays to a lunch room and served a nice little luncheon of the products of the factory. We noticed that Mr. Batchelder went in each time. He says he just loves shredded wheat biscuit, "eats 'em by the bale."

Mr. Doeblin took some home in his pockets.

The gorge trip which we took on Wednesday is a perfectly delightful one. The cars start from Monument Square, Niagara Falls, New York, cross the new bridge into Victoria Park from where an excellent view of the falls is had and follows the river on the Canadian side to Queenstown, Ont. We had a stop over of fifteen minutes to visit the Brock Monument. Five members of the American Philatelic Society who had attended the convention at Niagara Falls in 1892 had their pictures taken here. They were Deats, Fowler, Doeblin, Kissinger and Stone. I hope they will give me one.

From Queenstown we crossed the river into Lewiston, New York, and back to Niagara Falls past the rapids and whirlpool. Fred Michael wonders why the whirlpool whirls.

Mrs. Kellogg and Charlie Severn had a spirited debate as to whether an animal which was seen in the woods was a wood-chuck or a chip-munk. I am sure it was a cat.

We reached the hotel safely at five-thirty after having spent a delightful afternoon.

The Bourse was held Wednesday evening. Everybody bought and sold stamps to their heart's content. There were so many beautiful stamps and books. I thought Father Kaib's book of U. S. Proofs was just too lovely for anything; he certainly had them arranged beautifully. After the Bourse was over we all went to the cabaret and had a jolly time. We expected that Ham Barnum would be there too, but for some reason or other he didn't put in an appearance. We all missed him. And Percy Mann did the tango beautifully; I really think he is a better dancer than an editor.

Mr. Aldrich says he can dance, too,—I think he was a little jealous of Percy.

Thursday morning the women of the convention were taken on a trip in one of the sight-seeing autos. We felt like real tourists, and just think, we were personally escorted by an ex-mayor of Niagara Falls. We learned all about the origin of the name "Goat Island" and a lot of other things that I have forgotten now.

At Fowler's sale Thursday, the funniest thing happened. Mrs. Schlieckert nearly bought a stamp. She put her hand up to her hair and the auctioneer called it a bid. Mrs. S. just laughed and laughed.

Wasn't it nice of Mr. Linn to give us those little blue buttons and the Sonora proofs.

Mr. Ault was so busy during the whole convention that we didn't see nearly as much of him as we wanted to.

Mrs. Coolidge's charming manner and the General's geniality made the social side of the convention a complete success.

Wasn't the youngest collector cute?

And girls, did you meet the reporter? Wasn't she the most adorable thing?

Advertising Chat—No. 1.

We have carried more advertising during the past three months than any other summer the WEEKLY has been in business.
There is a reason!
We now have 7600 paid subscribers on our mailing list and we have our batting eye on the 8000 mark even as the Boston Braves have their eye on the pennant.
If you want to sell stamps the medium to use above all others is MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. It is perfectly proper to help support every kind of a stamp publication but to sell your stamps use our paper.
Our little booklet, price 10c, tells you all about "How to Deal in Stamps." The stamp season is on and we shall open our series of special numbers with a paper that will fitly celebrate the event.
More anon!

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN THE BADEN ISSUES.

Posthumos discoveries as regards the extinct issues of Europe have been relatively few as compared with other quarters of the globe, a state of things that may be attributed to the superior mechanical skill and equipment possessed by the producers of stamps of the leading European nations. It is therefore curious that in the relatively small and unimportant Duchy of Baden two of the most important discoveries, and of the greatest rarity, should have been made. A few years since, as will be in the memory of our readers, the first issue of the stamps of Baden, issued May 1st, 1851, was found to have included an error of colour, viz. the 9 kreuzer in green in lieu of its normal shade of dull rose. Received at first with some scepticism, on account of the apparent facility with which the former colour could be made by chemical manipulation to succeed the latter, the subsequent finding of several copies, including one or more specimens on the original, fully convinced the doubters, and this stamp today is fully recognized and justly esteemed as one of the great rarities of the issues of the German States.

It is in the second issue of Baden—that of March, 1853—in which only the colours of the first issue were changed as regards the 1, 3 and 6 kreuzers, that the discovery has been made—viz. the 1 kreuzer, black on white, printed tête-bêche. The specimen in question was described and illustrated in Herr H. Kohler's auction sale, held at Berlin, on June 17-19, it being stated to be unique and to have come from the collection of the late Ludwig Schwarz of Vienna. The "piece" in question consists of three specimens of the 1kr black on white, on a piece of the original paper postmarked "155" within concentric circles. Two of these stamps are a normal horizontal pair and a single specimen to right separated by a blank space of about 11½ mm., the latter being inverted in relation to the former, and clearly denoting a second impression or pane on the same original sheet. In this respect the discovery is similar to that of the 2d Sydney View (vide "New South Wales." Vol. I) or the 27p of Moldavia, and is not as in the case of the 1849 French, the 4d West Australian, and other cases, an inverted cliché or die. This specimen realised at Herr Köhler's sale about £175, and compared with the value attached to the West Australian "inverted centre" cannot be said to have been overvalued, although it is perhaps of not quite the same philatelic importance.

A very interesting and exhaustive history of the first issue of Baden will be found in Judge Lindenberg's Die Briefmarken von Baden (Hugo Krötzsch & Co., Leipsic), from which we learn that the first printings of this value of 1851 were in sheets of 50 specimens, but, owing doubtless to the increased demand, the sheets were subsequently (1853) increased to 100 specimens, and that pending the ultimate duplication of the original lithograph, the printer had recourse to printing twice on the same sheet from the original 50 formation, and in this operation one of the impressions was inverted in relation to the other. In the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung of July 2nd our readers will also find an exhaustive and valuable article on this most interesting relic of past Philately. The ardour of our Teutonic friends has no need of any spur with regard to their own old issues, but this new find should stimulate German collectors in their quests, and it may be that other collectors will find they have entertained a philatelic angel unawares. It is curious to a degree that the most interesting task in old German issues that still awaits future solution, the building up of the types of Oldenburg issues 1 and 3, has never been attempted—and one can but hope that a Teutonic Hausburg will yet arise to work out this important problem.—London Philatelist.

Gibbons' Rev. Catalogue 1914-15, postpaid .95

These quotations will give you a fair idea of my prices compared with Gibbons' new list and Scott's as far as issued and are I think very moderate, and while of course you will find here and there an odd stamp at less prices I am sure you will NOT find another dealer who can supply any 25 items as low as my prices and please note: they are not advertised prices but are my regular every day prices same as I sold for last week and will sell next week. While only higher values are quoted, I can supply all low ones—in King George issues any current ones will be sold 100 shillings for $30.00 cash with order (this does not apply to "white backs" nor to No. and South Nigeria both of which are now "Nigeria").

THE BOY THAT WAS.

By Edwin B. Hill.

The years had slipped away, and the Boy had grown grey with the passing. He was not old—the Boy said so himself; and his friends, who loved and trusted him, as friends do (and, thanks be! have always done, and will forever do!), likewise declared that he was not old, either in soul or in spirit. Some days, however, the Boy faced the stern reality that, in a score years more, he would, compellingly, know he was old—hopelessly old—and that the curtain would soon—very soon—fall forever upon his little—should he call it Comedy or Tragedy?

The Boy had lost friends—many friends—the last lustrum of his life; for, when young, he made of his heart a shrine for men much older than himself; they had not outlived his freindship,—the Boy rejoiced in that. But for the future, he declared to himself, he would know the friendship of young men, with their fine enthusiasms and optimistic outlook upon life. Even as the soft sweet petals of a rose fall and make fragrant the air, so would these youthful friendships be to him unforgettably sweet as Time fled into the autumn of his days.

The Boy dreamed by the wood-fire's glow, that dark November day, as he harked back over his life,—happy boyhood,—useful manhood,—and, he prayed for the future,—ripe old age. The embers glowed, and the cheer within contrasted with the chill without . . . .

It was thirty-eight years to the day that the Boy had left the village of his childhood and removed to the city where he had won success by stern effort. Then came illness from overwork, and retirement from that world of activity which was all his life..

The day-dream spun its web unto the boyhood friends. "Tom" Elliott—"Ed" Elliott—"Jack" Elliott—"Charley" Sittig—where were they now? Did they, too, remember him, and love that memory hallowed by the years? The Boy recalled especially "Charley," gentlest of Hebrews, whose kindness and courtesy endeared him to the Gentile lads who. alas! were sometimes thoughtlessly cruel by inference at least to this representative of the oldest surviving race.

Yes! every one of these boys had been an ardent stamp collector away back in that November of '74, and "Charley's" collection was the best of all. It was "Charley" who was liberal with Triangular Capes (the Boy especially remembered his own copies of those beautiful stamps: "all blue ones, except one red"), and also any others he had in duplicate. There were the United States Departmental issues, too. It was "Charley" who passed them on with kindest hand, —interesting, advising, cautioning the tyro who looked to his mentor for helpful suggestion anent the "collection."

The first "book" was an old exercise book which the Boy's father had made for the lad. The first "album" was an abridged "Oppen," which the Boy's mother had bought for him, and in which he had stuck securely the hundred or two stamps which he termed his "collection". . . .

The Boy lifted a few treasured papers from the secret drawer in his battered desk (sweet companion of sad-glad days, the hands which formed it a century dust). The papers were printed on flimsy white and pink and blue and yellow paper,— The St. Louis Philatelist. It was the Centennial year—September, 1876—the first number was issued. The Boy had the number for November and December, 1877, and a few odd issues of its successor, The California Philatelist. The flood of memory swept over him again as he read the "motto,"—"We believe that honest, prompt, fair and upright dealing is the true basis of success and permanent prosperity." So was success won,—and the happy release and reward of Death. It was twenty years at least since the Boy had even thought of these old papers. How reverently he handled them, now! How he yearned with the old enthusiasms to possess numbers missing from his very incomplete file!

"The days that are no more."

How much they meant to the Man! The Boy saw dimly for a space; then the radiance of retrospection flooded his memory. The Boy was grown to Man once more. For him life had its charms, as of old; for had he not his memories? The words of another poet came back to him, echoing the sentiment of his soul:

"Such days are not the prey of setting suns,
Nor ever blurred with mist of afterthought;
Like words made magical by poets dead
Wherein the music of all meaning is

The sense hath garnered or the soul divined,
They mingle with our life's ethereal part
Sweetening and gathering sweetness ever more,
By beauty's franchise disenthralled of time."

This was the Man's final vision of his Holy Grail.

THE NATIONAL PHILATELIC SOCIETY CONVENTION.

From the report published in the New England Philatelist, to whom we are indebted for the cartoon reprinted above, we judge that the convention of the National Philatelic Society held in Boston the last days in July was a marked success. The newly elected president of the society is E. L. Weiss of New York, the central figure shown in the illustration. The New England Philatelist was chosen as official organ.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

THE FABLE OF THE WISE GUY WHO TRIED TO PUT ONE OVER ON THE SIMPLE STAMP DEALERS.

Once Upon a Time a Boob Stamp Collector lived in a Large and Wicked City. This City was so Wicked that the Police Locked up the Sky Line Every Night, and took in All of the Lamp Posts at 9.00 P. M. As is the Custom with Many of the Denizens of Large Cities, at an Early Age, this Boob Caught His Germ of Honesty and Wrung Its Neck. Also, after a Few Years his Conscience became Paralyzed from Over-work. Like every other Specimen of the Genus Simpus this Human Weasel Doped Out that he was the Grand Sheik of the Wise Guys.

One Day this Mental Caesar got Hep to the fact that Somebody had Cleaned up a Wad of Coin by finding some old Postage Stamps. Being unable to Cop this person's Pile, he decided to Grab Off a Bunch of Easy Money the same way. Accordingly, he divided his attentions between such tricks as Putting Arsenic in Aunt Mary's Coffee and Shaving Half the Hair off of Rover's Youngest Child, and tore all the stamps off Grandmother's Love Letters. He traded Uncle Henry's New Teeth for an album and a set of Seebecks. The little Bacillus Philatelicus flew up and bit him in the ear. He became a Raving Stamp Fan. He Studied the Little Cusses, so that he soon learned to Tell the Age of a Stamp by Looking at its Teeth.

About this time, one of his Accomplices Hit Him in the Head with an Idea. Why pay Money for stamps when Dealers will send them on Approval for Nothing? Being a Wise Guy, he Caught the Drift on the First Snow Fall. By taking the Pennies out of Baby Charlie's Pig Bank, he was able to Buy enough post cards to make All the Dealers in the Country think that Money had Loosened up Again, and that Trade was All to the Meringue. He Wore Out four dozen Pens, and made the Poor Postal Clerks work Thirty-nine Hours Over-time to Keep his Mail Moving.

Soon the Bread he cast upon the Water came back nicely buttered and spread with elegant Quince Jam. He received selections from every dealer from Singapore to New York. Within a week he had such a Mess of Stamps his family had to sleep in Rover's House, to give them room.

Right here Young Solomon decided to evaporate, and so he Tacked Up the "Nobody Home" card and Faded Away. Just then One of the Suckers Threw the Hook, and Coaxed Uncle Samuel to start a Post Mortem into Mister Wise Guy's business methods. After much Scouting by the Sherlock Boys, Our Hero was located in What Cheer, Iowa, selling Shares in the Chicago City Hall to the poor Junipers.

He was duly Shoved in the Cooler while his Legal Shark fought a Catch-as-Catch-Can with the Government, and tried to Pick the Law into Shreds. He lost his Turrible Battle in about three under Bogey, after Trying to Kick In Fifty-Fifty with the Demon Prosecuting Attorney.

To Draw a Curtain over the sad Years that preceded his Bad News, after receiving Several Volleys of Verbal Grape-shot from His Honor, he had Fourteen Years of Captivity Wished on him, in the Hoon Gow, Making Little Ones out of Big Ones.

Moral:—If you Can't Do it Without Being Caught, Don't do it.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

F. G.—I know of no errors in the current U. S. stamps, and as the process of manufacture is watched so closely, I do not believe any errors of colors could slip through without detection. From the fact that your black one cent stamp appears to be brown on the back, I would say that this stamp has been changed by some chemical or other means after leaving the post office. Certain chemicals, often in everyday use, have the power to change inks from one color to another distinct color. I have seen green stamps changed to deep blue, and other changes equally remarkable.

B. W.—The words "De Puesto" or "De Pesto" on your Cuban stamp signifies that it is a revenue stamp. Just what kind of revenue, I cannot say.

A. B. P.—Most societies and parliamentary bodies are regulated according to "Roberts' Rules of Order." This book can be purchased from almost any large book store for a small sum. Most societies have a constitution out-lining the governing of committees and making of amendments. The above named book will help you in drawing up such constitution and amendments.

H. R. L.—Yes, the cancellation of a red star, probably with a rubber stamp, is a genuine cancellation on the Postal Telegraph stamps of 1885.

STARTING A PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

The writer has received so many requests for information on this subject that he deems it advisable to take it up in detail. Readers in all parts of the country have asked us to help them start such a society, or get in touch with each other. As the beginning of a society of this nature would mean, if carried out to a national organization, a man's size job, without profit, and as this paper has at the present time, no one who is in position to devote the time and money necessary to make such a movement a success, we feel that it will be better to lay out a plan for the collectors to organize local societies, and later get together through their own means, if they see fit. However, local societies will bring good results to the members, as they offer social and exchange advantages which would be hard to secure in a national society. Also, there are a number of very good national societies now in this country that collectors can join for a little money, if they are so inclined. The editor of this column will be pleased to furnish information and application blanks for any of these societies.

In organizing a local stamp society, it is advisable to get at least five members to start. In the writer's experience the fewer rules and regulations, and parliamentary practices, the better for all concerned, especially where the members are beginners, or are young people. Therefore, this subject will be left to those forming the society to decide for themselves. The same remarks apply to the question of dues. Charge just as little for membership as possible. The smaller drain there is on the pocketbook, the larger enthusiasm there will be in the hearts of the members. The writer knows of a certain stamp society that is so burdened by parliamentary law and, accordingly, debates and arguments, that the society can transact little stamp business, and has lost many members because of this. Govern your society according to Roberts' Rules of Order, which can be obtained at any library or large book-store.

For officers, a President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Sales Manager are necessary. If the membership is large enough to permit it, a Vice-President and Librarian may be added. With the exception of the Sales Manager, and Librarian it is unnecessary to dwell on the duties of these officers. The Sales Manager should have charge of all sales and exchange accounts between members. In the large societies, the members mount their stamps for sale in approval books (which can be secured from any dealer; for convenience, and uniformity, they should be purchased through the Sales Manager). The Sales Manager keeps a record of these books, and circulates them among the members. He collects all money for sales, and settles all questions of losses, etc., pertaining to the books. Usually a commission of ten per cent is charged by the Sales Manager, for his labor and expenses, as this work requires no little time and responsibility. Also, two per cent of the sales should be set aside by the society as an insurance fund, to pay for any books lost in transit, or otherwise. Of course, the members are responsible for books in their possession; but this should not relieve them or responsibility. As the books are returned, the Sales Manager should put a check-mark or rubber stamp mark in the spaces where stamps have been removed. Also, members should write their names in spaces when they remove a stamp. This greatly aids in checking up accounts.

After a book is nearly empty, or has been sufficiently circulated, it should be returned to the owner, with the money due. The Sales Manager can no doubt devise his own system of keeping accounts. If not, the writer will give him assistance in a private reply.

The Librarian should take charge of all books and papers received by the Society, and should file them in systematic order, for reference. One of the benefits of a local society is that the members can easily gather and use a library of philatelic literature, of which a great quantity can be accumulated in a little time, and can thus learn much about their hobby. The Librarian should encourage the members in the use of the books, and the society should subscribe to certain of the best papers published on stamp matters, not overlooking the WEEKLY of course. Many of the readers of this paper, from time to time, have quantities of literature that they would gladly donate to some "young" society, for the cost of transportation.

A committee should be appointed to arrange some form of stamp amusement for every meeting. Contests, guessing and otherwise, are very popular. Also, papers written by the members on stamp matters, can be read; current matters of interest can be openly discussed; the members can exhibit their stamps and talk about same, telling the queer and unusual facts that happen to every collector in his work, and various other ways can be devised to make the meetings a source of enjoyment to all concerned. Also, various social affairs can be participated in by the members. The WEEKLY will be glad to hear from any of the societies who have devised unique programs, and will publish some of this matter for the benefit of others.

By recruiting work, the societies can induce many "out-siders" to become interested in collecting. Spread the hobby among your friends. It is one of the cleanest, most interesting hobbies ever devised.

Another feature of belonging to a society is, that the members can "chip in" and buy stamps at wholesale, or large packets that they could not afford to purchase otherwise. Thus, the collections will gain.

Organizing a stamp club does not differ much from organizing any other kind of club, and probably every one, has done something in this line at some time. The main point to remember is: Don't have more Club than you do Stamps. Put the stamp part first, then accept the necessary rules, dues, officers, etc., as an evil that cannot be abolished and so must be put up with. Think of the stamps first, and work on the program for the meeting, rather than get up a political fight to see who can talk the longest and say nothing. This latter custom prevails in many so-called philatelic societies, and does nothing to further the hobby or the society. Make your programs interesting, keep up your enthusiasm, keep up good-fellowship among your members, and your society should be a big success.

The writer will be pleased to help anyone interested in this subject further. We cannot, however, submit names of other subscribers, for various reasons, chiefly because our lists are not in shape for this work. If we can offer any suggestions as to organization, system, programs, or other matters of like nature, please do not hesitate to call on this paper. Also, we will publish the name and address of anyone interested in starting a local society.

Now, fellows, go ahead!

BILL BLOSS.

OIL RIVER AND NIGER COAST PROT.

By D. B. ARMSTRONG.

By treaties concluded with the native chiefs by Mr. E. H. Hewett, C.M.G. in 1884, the whole of the maritime region situated between Lagos and the Rio del Rey in Western Africa, with the exception of the Royal Niger Company's settlements lying between the Forcados and Brass Rivers, was placed under Imperial jurisdiction under the title of the "Oil Rivers Protectorate," the announcement of the Protectorate appearing in the London Gazette of June 5th, 1885.

An amendment to this proclamation published on October 18th, 1887, defined the extent and boundaries of the British Nigerian territories as follows:—

"The British Protectorate of the Niger Districts comprises the territories on the line of the coast between the British Protectorate of Lagos, and the right or western bank of the Dio del Rey. It further comprises all territories in the basin of the Niger, and its affluents, which are, or may be for the time being, subject to the Government of the National African Company, Limited, (now called the Royal Niger Company) in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the said Company, dated July 10th, 1886."

Under the terms of an African Order in Council of 1889, the Oil Rivers Protectorate was created a local jurisdiction administered by the British Consular representatives, and eventually, in 1891, was placed under the direction of an Imperial Commissioner and Consul General appointed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

The Protectorate extended in all over some 3,000 to 4,000 square miles, the principal trading stations or "factories" being: Old Calabar (the administrative headquarters), then a town of 15,000 inhabitants, at the mouth of the Old Calabar River; Brass, on the Brass River; Bonny, on the banks of the Bonny River, near its mouth; Opobo, 40 miles from Bonny in the Niger Delta, on the Opobo River; Benin City, the capital of the district of that name, situated about 60 miles from the mouth of the Benin River, another tributary of the Niger; New Calabar, in the extreme East of the Niger Delta; and Wari, a small station on the Wari Creek, a branch of the Forcados River.

For some years after the establishment of the Protectorate there was an entire absence of anything in the nature of a regular postal service. Letters for Great Britain, charged for at the rate of 6d per half-ounce, were put on board the vessels of the African Line touching monthly at Bonny and Old Calabar, to be dealt with on arrival at Liverpool, where the necessary stamps were affixed and the letters forwarded to their destinations.

The Protectorate Post Office was finally organized in November, 1891, under the new administration, and the Oil Rivers entered the Postal Union, the postal rate being reduced to 2½d per half-ounce. The head post office was established at Old Calabar, with sub-post offices at Brass, Bonny, Opobo, Benin and Wari. In 1900, at the time of the re-organization of the Niger territories, the number of post offices had risen to 18, comprising the chief office at Old Calabar, 11 district offices and six postal agencies.

For a period of eight months following the establishment of the Protectorate Post Office, ordinary unsurcharged English postage stamps of the series 1881-87 were employed by the seven post offices in the Niger Coast Protectorate, those so employed being recognisable only by means of their postmarks, that of "Old Calabar" being the most common.

In July, 1892, however, Sir Claude Macdonald arrived at Old Calabar to take up his appointment as High Commissioner, bringing with him a supply of six values of contemporary British postage stamps, bearing a special distinguishing overprint consisting of the words "British Protectorate Oil Rivers" in three lines, which were immediately brought into use in connection with the Protectorate postal service. The stamps were purchased at face value, and the overprint was applied in London by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. from electrotype plates overprinting a complete sheet at one impression. There is only one important variety which is of considerable rarity. This consists of the 1d stamp with the overprint transposed, reading "Oil Rivers" at the top, and "British Protectorate" below. A single sheet only existed with this error the WANT LIST BARGAINS.

I have an accumulation of United States stamps cataloguing from $1.00 up to $25.00 each that are not quite perfect. They make excellent space fillers for stamps that are bringing full catalogue in fine condition. My prices are especially low just now and many a dollar can be saved by writing at once.

Send Your Want-List.

Owing to the fact that I have not more than one copy of many varieties, I cannot submit general selections. Want-list selections are returnable either entire or in part, which amounts to a regular approval transaction in the end.

Six denominations of contemporary British postage stamps series (1881-87) overprinted "British Protectorate-Oil Rivers" in three lines of small sans serif capitals in black from electrotype plates. On the appearance of the first permanent issue of the Niger Coast Protectorate in the following year, this series was retired from circulation, the remainders being sold to a well-known London stamp dealer, by whom a large number were returned to the Protectorate to be postmarked in complete sheets. The cancelling appears to have been done on sheets of pink blotting paper, as particles of it are found adhering to these "cancelled to order" stamps.

Counterfeits of these stamps are in existence having the overprint painted or drawn in by hand, and collectors should be on their guard against them.

To meet a temporary shortage of halfpenny stamps pending the receipt of a fresh consignment from England in the permanent type, a supply of the one penny value was overprinted diagonally with a long narrow bar dividing the stamp in halves, with the figures "½d" printed on each side of the division, the bi-sected halves of which were permitted to be used provisionally as halfpenny stamps from September 3rd, 1893. The stamps were overprinted in half sheets of 120 (ten rows of 12), the surcharge being applied to one horizontal row at a time from a small printer's outfit. Violet ink was at first employed, but as this did not show up well on the stamps it was abandoned, after the first row had been printed, in favour of vermilion, in which colour the remaining 468 stamps comprising the four sheets issued were overprinted.

1893. September 3rd. Provisional issue. One value. Overprinted stamp of 1892 additionally surcharged "½d./½d." diagonally in violet or vermilion, locally in the Protectorate, for temporary use as halfpenny stamps.

Violet Overprint. ½n on half of 1d lilac.
Vermilion Overprint. ½d on half of 1d lilac.
Variety. Unsevered. ½d/½d on 1d lilac.
Error—Surcharge Inverted. ½d/½d on 1d lilac.

Towards the end of December in the same year it again became necessary to have recourse to surcharging, in order to meet the current demand for stamps of the ½d denomination, and the available supply of 1d stamps having been exhausted by the issue of the previous ½d provisional, the 2d and 2½d values were accordingly pressed into the service, and surcharged with the words "HALF PENNY" in two lines in a variety of types, for provisional use at that denomination. Five pounds' worth of these halfpenny provisionals were created in all, the surcharges being handstamped by natives on 20 sheets comprising 120 stamps each, by means of dies set up from a box of assorted moveable metal types. Trial impressions of the various handstamps were taken in the first instance on two sheets of the 2½d value, which, however, were issued to the post offices in the ordinary course of business. The surcharge was impressed on these stamps in a variety of coloured inks, and in each of the four types, which consequently figure side by side on the same sheet in the most haphazard manner.

Finally it was decided to overprint four sheets of 120 of the 2½d with the tall sans-serif type of handstamp in carmine, vermilion, green and dark blue, respectively; the pale blue and black inks being employed only on the trial sheets. A similar number of sheets were overprinted in "italic" type, two in green and two in vermilion; the trial colours being carmine, blue and violet. Three sheets were overprinted in ornamental sans-serif capitals, one each in green, vermilion and blue respectively—violet being the trial colour in this type—and lastly a single sheet was overprinted in green italic capitals, of which a trial sheet was also issued printed in vermilion.

1204 CHESTNUT STREET PHILADELPHIA, PA.

For the most part the overprints were carefully applied, and are comparatively free from errors, but a few of the vermilion and violet surcharges exist both inverted and sideways.

The violet ink originally tried for the 2½d, but discarded owing to its resemblance to the original colour of the stamp, was utilized for overprinting the 2d green and carmine.

Although the credentials of this provisional issue have been frequently called into question, there can be little doubt but that their creation was necessitated by circumstances over which the local authorities had little or no control, the numerous varieties being due to an economical desire to use up the whole of the overprinted stamps. The issue must therefore be regarded as an entirely legitimate one, which was duly authorized and issued by the postal authorities of the Protectorate, by whom no account was taken of the various colours and types of the overprint.

1893. December 27th. Provisional issue. One value. Overprinted stamps of preceding issue (1892) additionally surcharged "Half Penny" of various coloured types, applied locally by means of metal handstamps to half sheets of 120. Mr. C. J. Daun, the foremost specialist in these issues, writing in Part III. of the Royal Philatelic Society's work on "Africa" states that the figures given above are approximate only, the total amounting to 2,245, as against 2,400 said to have been printed.

Some high value provisionals issued about the same time provide one of the few examples known to collectors, of the dangerous experiment of raising the face value of a stamp through the medium of an easily duplicated surcharge.

They comprise the 2d, 5d and 1s stamps of 1892 overprinted One Shilling, 5sh and 10sh by means of handstamps, in a similar manner to the Halfpenny provisionals already listed: of the one shilling a trial sheet overprinted in violet, black and vermilion, and one each entirely in violet and vermilion. Several stamps on the trial sheet had the overprint applied sideways or inverted.

1893. December. Provisional issue. Four values of the preceding overprinted issue (1892) additionally surcharged with new values in various colours locally, by means of metal handstamps. Numbers printed appended in brackets (on authority of "Africa," Part III.).

Prior to the departure of the High Commissioner from Great Britain, arrangements had been made for providing the Protectorate with a permanent postage stamp series of distinctive design, an order for which had been placed with the well-known stamp printing firm of Waterlow & Sons, Ltd., of London Wall, by whom the dies were engraved and the plates for printing the stamps prepared early in 1893. The designs, which are amongst the handsomest that have been perpetuated upon British Colonial stamps, comprised an excellent three-quarter-face contemporary portrait of Queen Victoria enclosed in a different frame for each of the six values, which coincided with those of the overprinted series of the previous year. They were printed from plates engraved in taille-douce in Messrs. Waterlow's most approved style.

Meanwhile, in consequence of an agreement having been arrived at between the British and German Governments respecting the Eastern boundaries of the Protectorate, a Royal Warrant of May 13th, 1893, announced a change in the official title of the territory, which was in future to be known as the "Niger Coast Protectorate" instead of the Oil Rivers Protectorate as theretofore. The plates of the new stamps had however already been prepared by Messrs. Waterlow with the inscription "Oil Rivers Pro-

THE OUTLOOK.

On our return home we find much to please us in the way business has held up during our absence. Advertising has run stronger than a year ago, while new subscriptions have more than made good the discontinuances. We are now out after business for the coming season and from both advertising and subscription standpoints propose to make the greatest hustle that we have ever made. We shall no doubt indicate the way in which valuable assistance can be rendered by those who have in the past shown their great interest in the WEEKLY.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

In War-Time—We have seen a registered letter originating in Tyringe, Sweden, and addressed to Chicago, which bore the rubber stamp inscription: "Militarischerseite unter Kriegsrecht geoffnet Hamburg, . . . 1914. (Initials) Ueberwachungs-offizier." Moreover, the opened envelope was sealed with the familiar blue label: "Kaiserliches Postamt, Hamburg I." This registered letter which duly reached its destination was sent by way of Hamburg and was opened there under military authority. In all likelihood it will not be long before there will be war letters in great variety awaiting recognition.

Still Coming—From Mexico the latest novelty in stamps is the surcharge, "E. C. de M," violet, on the regular five centavos, in fancy initials, impression evidently rubber-stamped. The surcharge stands for "Ejercito Constitutionalista de Mexico," we are told. In this connection, a correspondent in whose judgment we place reliance says that from his intimate view of the situation, there is an absence of any design of speculative advantage in the issue of the recent novelties from Mexico and that they are deserving of a place in the regard of the careful collector.

EUROPEAN PURCHASES

Germany current issue booklet sheet of six including two 5p and four 10p, 25 cents.

EUGENE KLEIN, 142 So. 15th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

To Vera Cruz—A departmental order dated at Washington, August 26th, on the subject of mail for united forces at Vera Cruz, says that the weekly "naval tug service from Galveston to Vera Cruz, hitherto in operation has been discontinued." Communication will be maintained by an army transport which will continue to sail from Galveston to Vera Cruz on the first and fifteenth of each month; and there is in addition a steamer that sails from New York for Vera Cruz every Thursday. Mail for the forces and officials at Vera Cruz should be sent by the route that is most expeditious. We may observe here that a postal marking new to us among the variety of Vera Cruz postmarks that we have seen is: "Vera Cruz, Mexico, Mail Agency," in two lines, enclosed in a rectangle.

They See It—Philatelists are following the war movements closely and they learn of events that may have bearing on the change of the philatelic geography long before they could be reported in our paper. We shall refrain from repeating this intelligence based on newspaper accounts but shall speak only of those changes that will have an influence on philately that are confirmed. At any rate we cannot compete with the daily newspapers on the score of timeliness and the newspapers may be depended upon to furnish all particulars of war developments.

Impish Humor—Mr. W. F. Palmer, East Haddam, Conn., writes: "Please find enclosed a freak cancellation. This is a hot weather one. Isn't it 'devilish?' It is one of my earliest specimens taken from my first album, an old writing book." We assure ourselves that nothing personal was intended by Mr. Palmer's enclosure which was in the shape of a cancellation on a three-cent, 1861, United States, that represented "Old Nick" in his well-known habiliments of spiked tail, horns and cloven hoofs, not forgetting the pitchfork, doing a spirited step. No doubt an authority on the subject would say that the likeness is an excellent one. The postmark that accompanied the cancellation reads: "West Meriden, Apr. 16, Conn." We can imagine the devilish glee with which the humorous postmaster regarded his triumph as he impressed it on the stamps.

Massachusetts Revenue Stamps—Over a month ago, Mr. William C. Stone, Springfield, Mass., told us that chapter 770 of the acts of the Massachusetts legislature provides for a stock transfer tax of two cents a hundred dollars payable by state revenue stamps. No doubt the text of this chapter of the legislature proceedings will soon be available and will interest collectors of revenue stamps in particular. In this connection, it is to be said that inquiries concerning foreign revenue stamps are received almost constantly and as it has been some years since the appearance of the last edition of the "Catalogue Fiscal, A. Forbin," France, the standard work on the revenue stamps of the world, there is no convenient record of the later issues at hand. However, a new edition of this catalogue is in preparation and through the courtesy of Mr. Vahan Mozian, we have received the advance sheets of the United States (Etats-Unis) portion of the new compilation. Those who are acquainted with the advantages of this illustrated list of our fiscal issues will welcome this announcement; and others may know that the catalogue is certainly worth while. In all probability the war will retard the issue of the work but when it makes its appearance, there will be due announcement made.

Circulated Widely—Some time ago, we received from a Berkeley, California, reader, a picture postal card showing a view of the "petrified forest" five miles from Calistoga, California, with the largest petrified tree in the world in the foreground. On the address side of the card is the message: "This is evidence that the WEEKLY is widely read! I found the copy of which this is the heading yesterday in the 'petrified forest.'" The paper bears the date of June 27th, 1914, and is visible evidence that even in the wonderful petrified forest the WEEKLY shared the attention of one reader. Now the question is: Who was that reader? We would give a stamp for his collection to know.

No Positive Information—The following inquiry is typical of a number that have been received since the war began: "Would it not be well to print in your paper the list of countries that are at war to which letters can be got if the boat is flying the U. S. flag. I exchange stamps with collectors in the affected countries." This question is answered by the postal authorities to the effect that at present the mail facilities to the countries involved are crippled and that registered letters addressed to them are returned in many instances. The department is doing everything it can to maintain an orderly service but it is admitted that many developments conspire to demoralize the ordinary transit of mails. A conservative course on the part of correspondents would be to leave stamp transactions with philatelists in the war zone in abeyance.

The "Davis Case"—We have referred to one "Davis" of San Francisco, recently, as having given fictitious addresses of "references" in applying for approval sheets. The Queen City Stamp and Coin Company, Cincinnati, who has had unsatisfactory dealings with this person has put its complaint in the hands of the postal inspector at San Francisco; and it is urged that those who have had experiences with "Davis" send all available information to the same officer.

A STEAMSHIP ACQUAINTANCE.

It was the privilege of the managing editor to meet Fred W. Blanchard of Los Angeles on the way home, from Christiania. Mr. Blanchard secured in company with the writer steerage accommodations on the S. S. "United States," which were subsequently amended by first cabin accommodations so far as the table was concerned.

Companions in misery as we were, we nevertheless obtained a great deal of comfort in the thought that we were headed in the right direction. Mr. Blanchard was well aware that the writer was visiting in Europe but not until the second day out at sea was it our privilege to meet. It is needless to say that our acquaintanceship ripened into friendship and our trip across the Atlantic was rich in philatelic conversation.

Mr. Blanchard is very active in Los Angeles stamp circles, where he is an officer of the local stamp society. He is president of the American Opera Association and secretary of the Los Angeles Municipal Art Commission.

Mr. Blanchard was accompanied by his wife and sister and the writer enjoyed very much making their acquaintance.

NO VALUABLE STAMPS GO TO WASTE IN NEW YORK.

By L. A. BEEBE.

For many years I have contended that no stamps of any interest or value to a stamp collector ever went to waste in New York. Doubtless the same is true of other cities.

The nearest approach to the loss of good stamps of which I have heard was the recent case of a large office in New York having extensive correspondence with South American countries and also receiving a considerable number of packages from there. An Italian entered the store of a Nassau Street dealer recently and asked if he bought stamps. Upon receiving an affirmative he took off his cap and dumped a mass of stamps on the counter. The dealer glanced at them and asked how much he wanted for the lot. The Italian put his price at 50 cents, was paid, and went his way.

The dealer had noticed a number of copies of Chile, No. 94, catalogued at 60 cents each, and after carefully examining the stamps he discovered an "invert" of this stamp. The stamp was printed in two colors with a black centre. At least one sheet had become reversed in printing the second time, with the result that the centre was upside down. The dealer was at once on the alert and cabled to Chile to learn if any more of the valuable inverts were to be had.

The joke of the matter was that it was discovered later there were two offices receiving the same sort of foreign mail on the same floor, addressed to different departments of the same firm, the offices adjoining, and while the manager of one office was being pestered for the stamps, (as he expressed it, he found a delegation waiting for him whenever a foreign mail arrived,) the manager of the adjoining office was tossing similar stamps in the waste-basket, and did, in fact, thus throw away one of the valuable inverts. I am informed that one invert sold for $60.

My original assertion was that no valuable stamps went to waste, and while in this case the stamps did go to the waste-basket, they did not eventually go to waste, thanks to the porter or rag-picker who turned them into money.

For several years I have been engaged in my spare moments in building up a stamp collection without the investment of the money necessary if one buys at retail from the dealer, and have succeeded pretty well without bothering my friends too much. There are several sources of wholesale supplies, some of which I have helped people develop to our mutual advantage, and from whom I purchase lots from time to time. In some instances they are received by men who themselves have become interested from seeing and handling the stamps and have built up collections for themselves. In that case they are glad to turn over to me their duplicates received in considerable quantity at a discount in exchange for single stamps which they can add directly to their collections.

In other cases the stamps are sold and made a source of revenue either to the firm or to the individual selling them, according to circumstances. One large importing firm in New York supports a bed in a local hospital through selling the stamps received on foreign mail, going to the extent of having their branch offices throughout the world return the canceled stamps to the New York headquarters for sale.

Go into any office having a considerable amount of foreign business and say "stamps" and you will find at once that they are well looked after. This in spite of the fact that there are still persons who believe that valuable stamps are thrown away and persist in writing to business houses likely to receive such stamps on their mail, such as the Consul of Liberia at New York, who receives several such appeals every week, and doubtless many of the other Consuls have troubles of this kind. Some are good natured, and if a stamp is enclosed for reply will send a few stamps, but as the stamps have a value and can be marketed, this sort of begging is, in my opinion, no better than asking for the money for which the stamps may be sold.—N. Y. Times.

STAMPS USED ABROAD.

The latest edition of Messrs. Stanley Gibbons' Catalogue of the stamps of the British Empire includes an extensive list of "British Stamps Used Abroad." We fancy that this list will be much discussed and criticized—in fact, so far as we have heard opinions about the new catalogue, they seem to be mainly devoted to this feature. The list covers twenty-five closely printed pages of the catalogue. It appears to have been compiled by some one who is thoroughly familiar with the subject, and we assume it may be safely regarded as a model of accuracy and completeness. We think that there can be little criticism of the list itself. There can be no question that for some specialists of the stamps of Great Britain, and for a limited number of collectors who are interested in what might be termed abnormal cancellations it will be of much interest. Neither can it be gainsaid that this is the proper catalogue for this particular list, always provided that any such lists are to be included in catalogues devoted to postage stamps.

Here we come to the crux of the matter. Are lists of cancellations proper in catalogues of stamps, are they desired by the majority of collectors, and where will such listing end if followed to its logical and proper conclusions? It cannot be denied that in this side line of collecting the thing sought is the cancellation rather than the stamp. In Kohl's catalogue many lists of German Colonials begin with stamps of Germany cancelled in the colony before the appearance of the colonial issues. Will this extend to other nationalities? And will the catalogue that aims to be universal, not British or German or Spanish, but a catalogue of and for the whole world, be expected to include all that the others list? The present lists are only the beginning of what might be. Specialists collect the stamps of Austria cancelled in Lombard-Venice, stamps of the old German States cancelled in other states, likewise the old Italians. We can add United States stamps cancelled in China, where we have consular offices: in Cuba, Philippines, etc. Then there are our present stamps cancelled in Vera Cruz, the stamps used by invading armies, ship cancellations and many similar things. When once we begin this thing we cannot foresee the end.

For many years there has been talk about the ever-increasing size of the catalogues. The cry has been that we must cut down the lists of perforations, that official and postage due stamps would be omitted some day to save space as envelopes and postal cards have already been cast out. In the face of all this are we to burden our catalogues with lists of things the general collector does not want and which frighten the beginner with their relatively high prices and evident difficulty of attainment? We have always had the most friendly feeling for specialists, for we appreciate the merit of study and its benefit to philately, but we feel that their work is more properly placed in handbooks and the pages of philatelic magazines. Those who are interested can readily find it there, and those who do not want it will not be disturbed by having it thrust upon them in their catalogues.—Scott Circular.

Advertising Chat—No. 2.

You have only to look through this number to find evidences that the stamp season has opened in earnest. Old advertisers are resuming activity and several new ones will be seen.

J. A. Galbraith after spending some months abroad is with us again, and "white-backs" are very much in evidence. There is no question but that these stamps will prove "desirables" in coming months.

M. Ohlman resumes his regular advertising and will be found upon page 3. It is his intention to run a series of auctions this winter and his opening advertisement in this number reflects his activity in that direction.

A number of advertisers have special plans for the coming months which will mean real business if indications hold good. Our next special number will be issued September 26, and we intend to make it a bright and breezy number. Adv. copy must be in September 19.

Our quarter pages are as popular as ever, 144 lines for $15. A bargain in stamp advertising if there ever was one. B. L. Drew & Co. has taken many during the past year and uses one this week.

W. C. Phillips & Co. is again in our columns, having signed a contract for 4000 lines.

We welcome the Albemarle Stamp Co. of Keswick, Va., to our columns. This firm will make a specialty of approvals and will be found regularly in our columns. Bill Bloss, well-known as the purveyor of good ideas on page 8, has shied his advertising castor into the ring as indicated last week.

More next time.

The two cents stamp will have on it a hemisphere with the figure of a woman on the left holding an American flag and on the right a figure bearing a British flag, the two clasping hands across the hemisphere.

"On the five cents stamp will be a winged figure typifying the spirit of peace, and with a dove of peace flying before it."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The International Stamp Co., Covington, O., has acquired the stamp collection of the late Charles Printzlau, consisting of nearly twenty-five thousand stamps. Mr. Printzlau will be remembered by most of the dealers who used the WEEKLY in bygone years.

—Several months ago, we announced that M. D. Olmstead, Concord, New Hampshire, had sustained a fracture of his hip bone; and it now gives us pleasure to say that Mr. Olmstead has almost recovered from the effects of the very serious injury and is ready to serve his correspondents as formerly.

OIL RIVER AND NIGER COAST PROT.

tectorate" incorporated, and in order to avoid the delay attendant upon the engraving of new dies it was decided to line out the words "Oil Rivers" on the existing dies, and add the words "Niger Coast" in bold capitals across the top of the designs. This was accordingly done, the old title being lightly cancelled with a graver on each die, which was then re-engraved with the words "Niger Coast," the stamps printed from these plates constituting a provisional issue pending the manufacture of new plates, with the altered style of the Protectorate incorporated in the design.

I am informed by Mr. H. H. Harland that he has seen proofs of the full set of six values printed from the original plates inscribed "Oil Rivers Protectorate."

The stamps were printed from line-engraved steel plates upon white wove paper (unwatermarked) that has the appearance of being hand-made, and varies in texture from heavy opaque to almost pelure. The 1s value is however also known on thick paper. Perforation was effected by the regular single-line machines of various gauges employed by Waterlow & Sons, and the sheets were composed of 60 stamps each in six rows of ten in the case of the ½d, 1d and 2d stamps, 48 (6x8) for the 2½d, and 30 (five rows of six) for the 5d and 1s. A consecutive number in red was printed in the right-hand corner on the margin of the sheets.

There were in all three printings of this series, the first despatched on June 2nd, 1893, being distinguished by the darker shades of the stamps (excepting the 5d), and the two others early in 1894, the following being the numbers of the separate consignments.

	2/6/93	9/1/94	12/3/94
½d	9,000	8,000	20,000
1d	11,000	10,000	18,400
2d	6,000	5,000	5,000
2½d	16,000	15,000	15,000
5d	9,000	8,000	8,000
1sh	6,000	5,000	5,000

1893. November (?). Provisional issue. Six values. Distinctive designs as above. Head of Queen Victoria in different frame for each denomination. Engraved in taille-douce and printed from steel plates by Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, Ltd., in London, on white wove paper of varying thickness. No watermark. Various perforations gauging from 12½ to 15, and compounds. Numbers printed, appended in brackets.

½d brick red, vermilion, orange-milion (37,000)
2d dark green, bright green, yellow-green (16,000)
2½d dark carmine-lake, bright carmine-lake (46,000)
5d lilac, grey-lilac, dark lilac (25,000)
1s black, grey-black (16,000)

Variety: Toned Paper.

1s black.

Perforations.

Six separate guillotine machines were employed in perforating these stamps gauging 12, 12½, 13, 14, 14½ and 15 respectively, of which the plain 12 is by far the rarest. We are indebted to an article by Mr. Morley published in the London Philatelist some years ago for the subjoined table of the perforations of the Niger Coast issue of 1893.

Perf. 15. ½d, 2d, 2½d, 5d, and 1sh.
Perf. 14½. 1d, 2½d, 5d, and 1sh.
Perf. 14½x15. ½d, 1d, 2½d, and 1sh.
Perf. 14. ½d, 2d, 2½d, 5d, and 1sh.

Perf. 12½x13x14. 1d.
Perf. 12. 2d.
Perf. 12x12½. 2d.
Perf. 12 on one side and 14 other three sides. 1sh.
Perf. 12x15. 2d.

On March 22nd, 1894, the first consignment of a few new series of similar design, but with the words "Niger Coast Protectorate" engraved on the dies, was despatched from London, the stamps being issued at Old Calabar in May. The denominations were the same as those of the previous issues, but a slight revision of the colour scheme was effected, the ½d, 1d and 2½d values being printed in colours conforming to the requirements of the Universal Postal Union. There were seven printings of the Halfpenny value, six of the Penny, five of the Two Pence, and three each of the 2½d, 5d and 1s. The figures of the first printing were as follows:—

½d	8,736	2½d	16,736
1d	10,736	5d	8,736
2d	5,736	1sh	5,736

The odd 736 copies in each instance were apparently for distribution as "Specimens" amongst the Postal Departments of countries adhering to the Postal Union.

The stamps were printed from line-engraved steel plates, as before, in sheets of 60, six rows of 10, for the ½d, 1d and 2d; 48, six rows of 8, for the 2½d and 5d, and 30, five rows of 6, for the 1s.

1894. May. Permanent issue. Six values. Designs as above. Head of Queen Victoria in different frame for each value. Engraved in taille-douce and printed by Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, in London, on white to greyish wove unwatermarked paper, of varying thickness. Various perforations gauging from 12 to 15. Numbers printed appended in brackets (on authority of "Africa," Part III.).

1d orange-vermilion, vermilion, carmine (116,736)
2d lake, pale lake, deep lake (113,736)

In May, 1894 (presumably prior to the receipt of the new series listed above), the post office at Opobo ran short of its stock of halfpenny stamps, and in order to supply the deficiency pending the arrival of a fresh consignment, recourse was made to surcharging, a single sheet of the 1d bright blue of 1893 being requisitioned for the purpose, and the stamps bisected vertically, with the figures ½ impressed on each half in red, giving a total of 120 provisional Halfpenny stamps. One month later the One Penny stamps also became exhausted at the same post office, and a small supply of the 2d green and carmine of the overprinted 1892 issue remaining on hand (consisting of half a sheet) was divided vertically, and each half of the stamps surcharged with a large numeral "1" for provisional use as One Penny stamps. For the most part the stamps were surcharged in vermilion with a large numeral measuring 12 mm. in height, but a few had the surcharge applied in carmine in a small type measuring only 4¾ mm. Of this later variety only two specimens are known, one being from the top row of the sheet.

A further dearth of ½d stamps occurring at Opobo in August, 1894, was met by surcharging a second sheet of the 1d dull blue of 1893 with the figures "½" twice, and bisecting them as before. The surcharge in this case was much clearer and sharper than on the May printing of the same provisional.

The same month saw a similar famine at Old Calabar, where a temporary shortage of ½d stamps led to the surcharging of twenty sheets of the 2½d denomination of 1894 with the words ONE HALF PENNY in two lines of small sans-serif capitals, thus creating 960 provisional stamps of that value. The overprint was applied locally from moveable type set up to surcharge a single row of eight stamps at each impression; the original value-inscriptions on the stamps being cancelled with short thick bars on each side, and two long thin bars at the foot.

In August and October of the same year two sheets of the One Penny vermilion of the same year were surcharged "½" twice at Opobo, in black, blue, or violet ink, and bisected diagonally for use as provisional ½d stamps. This stamp is also known bisected without the surcharge and used for one halfpenny. October also witnessed the production of a further supply of the "1d on half of 2d "provisionals, a full sheet being brought into use on this occasion.

The necessity for these provisionals arose from the fact that Opobo being an out-station, communication with the G. P. O. at Old Calabar was infrequent, and owing to insufficient supplies of the new issue having been sent out from England, it happened on several occasions that requisitions from the Opobo office could not be filled, hence the reason for the numerous surcharges.

1894. May to October. Provisional issues at Opobo and Old Calabar. Issues of 1892, 1893, 1894 surcharged locally with new denominations (and in some cases bisected) for temporary use. Numbers printed appended in brackets (on authority of "Africa," Part III.).

A fresh printing of the 1d value in the permanent type received in the Protectorate in March, 1897, was upon the special paper supplied by the Crown Agents for the Colonies bearing the watermarked device of a Royal Crown above the initials CA (signifying Crown Agents), apparently indicating the transfer of the administration from the Foreign to the Colonial Office. The other denominations in the existing types subsequently made their appearance on watermarked paper, whilst in June, 1898, three additional values, viz., 6d, 2sh 6d, and 10sh were added to the series. Seven printings of the ½d and 1d values, five of the 2d, six of the 2½d, three each of the 5d, 6d, 1sh, and 2sh 6d, and four of the 10sh, were made on watermarked paper between March, 1897, and December, 1899.

1897-98. Permanent issue. Nine values. Design as last. Head of Queen Victoria in a different frame for each value. Engraved in taille-douce and printed from steel plates by Messrs. Waterlow & Sons, in London, on thick white wove paper. Wmk. Crown CA. Various perforations gauging 12 to 15. Dates of issue appended in brackets. Numbers printed, on authority of "Africa," Part III.

The following note on the postmarks in use at Old Calabar is taken from the Monthly Journal 31/1/95:—

"There are three varieties of obliterating marks used at Old Calabar. First, the square stamp, with 'Old Calabar' and date within circles in the centre, which is supposed to be always used on outgoing letters. . . . Second, a circular mark, inscribed 'Old Calabar River,' and date which is intended to be used only upon in-coming letters, but has sometimes been used upon outgoing. Third, a small circular mark, which appears to be identical with the central portion of No. 1, containing 'Old Calabar' (instead of 'Old Calabar River' as in No. 2) and this, according to a letter from the Chief Clerk in the Post Office, is used solely for the purpose of obliterating stamps in sheets for the benefit of those persons who still believe that an obliteration is some sign of genuineness!"

Under the provisions of an Order in Council of December 28th, 1899, the Niger Coast Protectorate was incorporated with the Southern portion of the territories acquired by purchase from the Royal Niger Company, and was created as from January 1st, 1900, the Southern Nigeria Protectorate. The stamps of the 1897-98 series of the Niger Coast remained current in the new Protectorate until March, 1901, when they were superseded by a special issue inscribed "Southern Nigeria."

A posthumous re-issue of the old Niger Coast Protectorate stamps took place, however, in 1902, during the temporary exhaustion of the Southern Nigeria stamps, and which are believed to have been from a later and previously unissued printing, all values being uniformly perforated 14.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

MR. WILEY'S IDEA.

To the Editor:

If writers for the philatelic press will observe the rules common to the higher types of scientific discussion their output will be clearer and more easily understood.

The first principle which is generally violated is that which demands a clear statement of the subject under discussion together with the theories which the writer may propose to prove. At this point there should appear a summary of the theories and arguments of the opposition, should such matter exist. We are all familiar with the incoherent jumble of fragmentary and unrelated data in which the subject is concealed in a mass of "notes," and with the other type, common to writers who depend upon the weight of their name to establish the proof, in which the "argument" consists of nothing more than their unsupported personal opinion.

The second error, quite generally prevalent, is a mincing reluctance to mention the names of other writers involved in the discussion when their several theories are the subject of attack or defense. The name of the authority should be given in each instance where he may be quoted. Failure to observe this common rule results in confusion.

No reasonable man objects to reasonable criticism of what he writes. He will always stand responsible for matter which may appear over his signature. Realizing that the truth is attained through intelligent discussion rather than by arbitrary reiteration he will welcome a courteous presentation of theory and fact regardless of their possible effect upon his personal arguments.

A review of the Stevenson-Luff-Chase-Goodwin treatments of the issues of United States stamps of 1851-57 is the impulse back of this letter.

United States Stamps and Their Varieties

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME ODDITIES IN POSTAGE STAMPS.

In life, it is the person who is different from his fellows that draws interest, and keeps the world from growing monotonous. In stamp collecting, the same rule applies. It is the different stamp that gives the spice to the hobby. There are a great number of these "odd" stamps that are worthy of attention, but as space is limited, we will only consider a few of them.

CURIOSITIES OF SHAPE.

The usual shape of a stamp is rectangular. There are some very interesting exceptions, however. Probably the most celebrated of these exceptions are the triangular Cape of Good Hope stamps. These stamps are so well known that comment is unnecessary. Liberia, Ecuador and Colombian Republic have also issued right-triangular stamps. Obock, Somali Coast, and Colombian Republic are among the few that have issued acute-angle triangular stamps. For the collector who is interested in these odd stamps, the Ecuador and Liberians can be procured for a small sum. The others are usually more expensive.

Diamond-shaped stamps are not quite as frequently met with. The Acknowledgment of Receipt stamps of Antioquia, issued in 1902 and 1903 are not uncommon examples of this class of stamp, these together with the Postal Packet stamps of Salvador, are in reality square stamps printed to appear diamond shape. The twenty-five and fifty franc stamps of Somali Coast are true rhombi. These latter stamps are quite expensive, but the former are easily procurable.

Probably the oddest shaped stamps ever issued are the Turkish Offices in Thessaly series. These stamps bear an octagonal design, and while they are perforated square, the corners are perforated and are usually detached, making the stamps octagonal in shape. This set is very interesting, though it has little value. Postally used copies are very scarce.

In the matter of size, stamps range from less than one-half inch to several inches. Probably the smallest stamps ever issued are the first series for Bolivar, issued in 1863-66. These tiny labels are about half the size of an ordinary stamp hinge. Several of the United States Locals and Confederates are very small in size, though I have never seen any stamp smaller than the Bolivar stamps mentioned above. In addition to the small size of these stamps, the Scott catalogue lists the 10c bisected for use as 5c. How a person could put this stamp on a letter without swallowing it is beyond my conception. Certainly no one with a good sized cavity in his teeth could do it without risk of losing the stamp. Colombian Republic certainly should be awarded the honors for issuing the queerest shaped stamps. They have issued the smallest, nearly the largest, two types of triangulars, and one type of diamond shape. Colombia can also claim some honors for oddities in designs, also.

The German states of Mecklenburg Schwerin and Brunswick issued stamps divided in four parts, each of which was very small. These stamps were designed for use as four-fourths of a groschen or schilling, and the parts were sometimes used as one, two, or three-fourths, as the case demanded. Therefore, these parts, though really complete stamps in the matter of design, can hardly be classed as entire stamps.

The little South Australian and Victorian half-penny stamps are the smallest perforated stamps ever issued, though they are larger than the imperforated stamps mentioned above. Many of these "little fellows" are within the reach of the collector of moderate means.

In the other extreme, the Cubiertas or Insured Letter stamps of Colombian Republic are the largest stamps ever issued. There are a great number of varieties of these labels, all being several inches long and nearly as wide. The United States Newspaper Stamps of 1865, will hold their own in size with almost any stamp, being 51x95 mm. Last but not least, the Chinese Special Delivery stamps, recently brought to light, and which will be included in the next Scott catalogue, must be considered. Like the German stamps referred to above, these stamps are divided into four parts. These parts are detached by the postal officials in the various travels of the letter, so the complete stamp is practically unknown. I have heard that it is a serious offense to have a complete stamp of this nature in one's possession in China, but do not know whether this is true or not. Probably, the ruling is similar to the one in force here concerning unused postage due and postal savings stamps.

CURIOSITIES OF DESIGN.

There are many items of interest coming under this head. The design, being the principal part of the stamp, should receive the most attention by collectors. In many cases, the design typifies the art of the country. In some it is a little hard to find the art, to our way of thinking, but it is probably there.

In 1898, a shortage of one penny stamps in British Central Africa necessitated the issue of a provisional. To accomplish this, the die used in making the revenue stamped paper was brought to use, and the embossed "Internal Postage" provisional was created. The die used in making this stamp is very similar to many in use in England and the various colonies to-day in affixing the tax on documents, etc., and this stamp is a fitting souvenir of a "straight" revenue type used to make a postage stamp, there being countless postage types used for revenues.

Type-set stamps are nearly always curious and interesting. Many are among the rarities of the world. The early British Guiana, Hawaii, Fiji, Cauca (Colombian Rep.) and Confederate Locals are among the interesting type-set stamps. As usual, Colombian Republic furnishes some interesting later provisionals, also Surinam is well represented.

The Servian issue of 1904, popularly known as the "Death Mask" series, has attracted a great deal of attention because of the fact that the values of five to fifty paras, when held in a certain position, disclose the portrait of the King, who was assassinated shortly before the stamps were issued. This set is one of the most curious of any of the issues with "secret marks." This freak of the death mask is scarcely a secret mark, in the sense of the word. A "secret mark" is more commonly used as a means of identification, or to distinguish one issue from another, as in the case of the Continental Bank Note Company issue of United States.

The Cape Verde issues of 1877 to 1885 are responsible for a very curious error. In making a plate for the forty reis stamp, by some error, the transfer rolls for Cape Verde and Mozambique became mixed, with the result that the Cape Verde plate contains a stamp inscribed Mozambique. This is an instance where stamps from two countries can be found on the same sheet!

On the same page in the catalogue as the above error, three other unique stamps are listed. These are the local stamps issued in Mafeking during the Boer War, when that place was in a state of siege. In making these stamps, ordinary blue print paper was pressed into service, the same as is used by architects.

The typewriter has contributed some interesting specimens. The first issues of Uganda were manufactured locally on a typewriter. On the twelfth and thirteenth day of August, Nineteen Ten, the Republic of Panama had occasion to surcharge a few of the regular two and one-half cent stamps with the word "Retardo" for use as Too Late stamps. The typewriter was again brought to use.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. G. A.—The current 2c stamp imperforated is listed at 5c unused and 3c used. Large quantities of these stamps are used by the various business houses, and they are becoming more plentiful every day.

R. M. G.—Your Executive stamp overprinted "Specimen" is from a supply printed for sale to the public and the surcharge denotes the fact that the stamp was not available for postage. "Specimen" stamps are in a class by themselves, and cannot be priced the same as postage stamps. As a rule they are not worth as much, though sometimes they are more valuable. Your Executive stamp is among the more desirable of these stamps, and commands a fairly high price.

WHAT WILL THE WAR DO TO STAMP COLLECTING?

This is a question that is in the minds of all collectors at this turbulent time. Will Europeans increase in value? What new provisionals will appear? Will the stocks and collections of our European brothers suffer? Will Philately lose some of her most ardent students by the sword?

It is doubtful whether European stamps will increase much in value because of the war. Temporarily there will be considerable demand for these stamps, and the prices will rise in many cases. Some stamps will remain higher in price, being underpriced at present. However, unless unusually heavy onslaught is made on the stocks of the European dealers, the supply of Europeans will remain about the same, so the prices should not be affected permanently.

Undoubtedly some new provisionals will appear, and some of these may be very scarce, as in the case of the 1901 provisional of Germany. As the eyes of collectors will be temporarily averted from stamps, especially in the unsettled territory, some provisionals may slip by unnoticed for a time.

In the course of the terrible destruction in which all Europe is involved, many stamp collections and stocks may be destroyed, and some of the collectors and dealers will undoubtedly fall in battle. Let us pray that those who have helped to make stamp collecting the high art and science that it is in Europe to-day may be spared.

MORE ABOUT COUNTERFEITS.

As I have received several communications from readers who take exception to my remarks about the scarcity of counterfeits, I believe it advisable to go into detail a little more fully.

When I stated that "counterfeits are growing very scarce to-day, and probably 90% of the counterfeits are of early issues" I was well aware of the evil practices of a few unscrupulous rascals engaged in this work. However, from what I can gather from their literature, I am of the opinion that practically all of their work is confined to the more expensive stamps, and chiefly among the early issues. My articles are written chiefly for the beginner, and I am still of the belief that the beginner will meet very few counterfeits in his travels, and that he need fear these "undesirables" very little. I do not say that he will not find a counterfeit occasionally, for at some time or other, every collector gets "stung" with some of these. When a collector is sufficiently advanced to pay up in the dollars for his stamps, he will have more need to use his eyes, and buy from reputable firms. However, the advanced collector is, or should be, better informed on stamps, and should be better able to protect himself.

When the number of stamps in existence is considered, the occasional black sheep should not discourage collectors. It stands to reason that a counterfeiter will not reproduce a cheap stamp when for the same labor, he can make one more expensive. Also, he must depend on the sale of a limited number to bring him profit, for any great quantity would be detected easily, and the sale and profit lost. For the benefit of the man who still doubts, let him throw away his shoes because shoes are made with paste-board soles, and let him cease to eat, because food is adulterated and is not always as represented.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

KEEPING OF STAMP RECORD.

By CATANO FRATUS.

Ten or twelve years ago I tried to interest a youngster in the collection of stamps, knowing from boyhood experience how much pleasure there was in collecting. After a year or two his interest was transferred to baseball and similar pursuits while mine had taken a firm hold.

Like many other collectors I felt that keeping a record of my stamp transactions would be both a pleasure and a benefit. I tried several methods including that of making records in the Standard Catalog, using different kinds of checks to indicate used or unused specimens, pairs or blocks. I also intended to put in the cost of the stamps but, unfortunately, at times failed to do so. This method was not satisfactory as it necessitated a complete rewriting whenever a new edition of the catalog was issued.

I finally dropped this method and for some time kept no records but a year or more ago I again took up the matter and made up a system which covers my wants very satisfactorily.

I was much interested in the articles on this subject by Frank L. Applegate and T. Russell Hungerford which appeared in the WEEKLY in the issues of Jan. 24th and Feb. 21st respectively. The systems by which they record stamp transactions are very complete and must add greatly to their pleasure in collecting.

Owing to the fact that I could give but little time to stamps I felt the need of a system that would be simple yet, at the same time, give me the desired information.

I use but one book. The eight columns at the left of the page I use as follows:—1—year of issue, 2—catalog number, 3—description of stamp—denomination, color, &c, 4—condition, 5—when bought, 6—of whom bought, 7—for any memorandum, such as date of letter regarding purchase, 8—cost of stamp. The fourteen columns, beginning with the ninth, at the right of the page are for catalog values and are filled in upon receipt of each new edition of the catalog—the year being inserted just above the double headline. This arrangement gives on one line full information regarding any stamp.

Complete records of purchases of United States stamps appear as follows:

					1912	1914
1902	311	$1.00	black	VF
		11/15/11	PO, Wash DC		1.00	1.75 2.00
1909	335	2c	carmine-Blk	4 P
		2/12/09	PO, Boston		.08	.24 .24

Should I have a pair, strip or block of any stamp this fact is recorded in the space for description. I endeavor to secure specimens in such condition that the abbreviations VF (very fine) and P (perfect) are all I need to describe them. Nearly all my stamps are unused, but when I have a used specimen such fact is noted by making a red ink check on the first vertical line of condition column.

The greatest amount of work in connection with this method was in writing in the catalog description of the stamps, but this having been done it required but little time to keep up to date. In listing the stamps of a country I went through the catalog very carefully and listed only such stamps as I possessed or hoped to secure later. In some cases I went back to some particular issue, starting my list at this point but leaving a blank page for recording stamps issued prior to that time should I be fortunate enough to secure them.

In writing in the prices from the 1914 catalog I found that it would be well not to number the stamps of the last issue as shown in the catalog owing to the fact that when new values are issued there is generally a new arrangement and that the numbers are changed. There was also a new arrangement in listing the multiple watermarked British Colonial stamps on ordinary paper. Formerly where these stamps were printed on both ordinary and chalky papers the ordinary were listed under a subdivision designated by the letter "a" after the number. As I collect both varieties I find it convenient to continue the use of this method to distinguish the two papers.

During the year I make a record on slips of paper of all new issues giving necessary information regarding purchase of same. These slips I keep in an envelope and enter the data in my record book upon receipt of a new catalog. I keep a want list of obsolete issues and when a specimen is secured it is at once recorded in its proper place.

At the end of a catalog year I add my book and this gives me the total value (catalog) of the stamps in my collection. Had I started such a record when beginning to collect it would also give the total cost of stamps. In order to know how much I spend for stamps during the year I keep a memorandum of what each purchase costs and at the end of the month enter the total on a page which I ruled for this purpose on a blank leaf at the end of the book.

Another advantage I find in this method is that I can turn to my record of any country and see at a glance just what stamps I am in need of. I buy quite a number of stamps at auction sales and find it very convenient for reference when looking through auction catalogs.

The book is 9¾ by 12¾ inches, the pages being ruled across the long way. There are thirty cross lines to the page ruled in blue with the exception of the double head line and every fifth line which is in red.

MELVILLE'S WAR CHAT.

War!—The dogs of war have been let loose with a vengeance, and at this moment there are a few of us who can give more than a passing thought to the grand hobby which has delighted us in our days of peace. The suddenness with which the small speck of cloud no bigger than a man's hand, the peremptory ultimatum from Austria to Servia, has developed into a great cloud-burst of war may well have appalled the millions of peace-loving inhabitants of our Empire, but for the surprising readiness with which our authorities have met the exigencies of the new conditions.

En Route for Finland.—The Editor of The Postage Stamp was in Sweden at the date of the Austrian-Servian complication, of which he learned just as he was boarding the little canal steamer Venus from Gothenburg for Stockholm. For three days thereafter he was out of touch with all news and not until a day after reaching Stockholm was it known that Austria had declared war upon Servia. It was then apparent that other complications were arising, but it was extremely difficult to separate alarmist reports from bona fide news, and on Friday, July 31, Mr. Melville embarked on the Bore I., a splendid vessel sailing under the Finnish flag for Abo.

Stopped in the Baltic—The Bore I. never got to Finland on that voyage. She left Stockholm at 7.30 in the evening, and by midnight was on the outer fringe of the Swedish archipelago, within two hours sailing of the archipelago on the Finnish side. There in the comparative security of Swedish territorial waters the Bore I. dropped anchor and lay for nine hours. During all those hours they waited patiently for a sign of the sister-ship coming from Abo to Stockholm but as she did not come, a boat was put ashore on one of the little Swedish islands and got into communication by telephone with Stockholm. The vessel from Abo had not left the Finnish port and German warships were in strength in the Baltic ready for what might have been one of the first, and not the least valuable prizes of the war, the Bore I.

Missing Articles.—The Bore I. turned and sailed back to Stockholm, and then for the first time it became plain that affairs were becoming very complex. The Editor decided to omit the Russian part of his itinerary and go straight to Copenhagen and afterwards to Cassel. We have since learnt that all the Editor's articles posted from Stockholm to The Postage Stamp, and to other journals with which he is connected, have never reached their addresses in this country. The next day, Sunday, August 2, Mr. Melville left Stockholm for Copenhagen. The routes available were by this time much disturbed. The magnificent ferry steamers from Trelleborg to Sassnitz were stopped at the first alarm of war. The Editor's route was via Malmo, and crossing the Sound between Malmo and Copenhagen he saw the first elaborate war preparations.

Watching the Entrance to the Baltic.—There were Danish warships guarding the Sound, and a score of enormously powerful searchlights moved across the seas and every now and then one circled the skies. They were operated from warships, from the Danish and Swedish forts in mid-sea, and from land forts on each coast. The tiniest craft could not move upon the face of those waters without its every movement being known to the vigilant watchers. It was after midnight when Copenhagen was reached.

Refugee Russians.—The next day, Monday, the short trip across from Malmo to Copenhagen was greatly lengthened, taking nearly three hours instead of 1½ hours, as the harbour entrances were mined. It was only then that it became clear that the journey into Germany would have to be abandoned, and doubtless the International Philatelic Exhibition at Cassel has had to be abandoned. Every through route to Germany was closed that day, and in the afternoon and all next day Copenhagen filled with Russian refugees who had been hurried across the German frontier, and arrived in the Danish capital with, at that time little or no prospect of getting on to their homes in Finland and Russia. Many of them were in great extremities having suffered severe hardships en route from points in Germany, and although most of them were well provided with paper money, in the first scare of war, they were practically penniless, as no one would accept their paper.

The Position of the Britishers.—Happily most of the Russians got away with the train which took the Dowager Empress right up to the north of Sweden and down the other coast into Russia. At this time the position of the British travellers was uncertain, but few if any of them realised then that the British Empire would be drawn into the struggle, and that they too would experience great difficulty in getting back to their home country.

England Enters the War.—It was long after midnight of Monday that the decision of the British Cabinet Council reached Copenhagen, and although not a declaration of war it implied that, as Belgium's neutrality had already been violated, a declaration of war must speedily follow. As everyone knows, it did follow. The Britishers, or many of them, made poste haste for Esbjerg, but the Editor who had arranged to spend Wednesday at the stamp-printing works of Messrs. Thiele, in Copenhagen, stayed on. All who left for Esbjerg were still there when Mr. Melville joined the anxious throng three days later. The Esbjerg-Harwich route was stopped from Monday, August 3. No steamer left Esbjerg on the Tuesday.

The Sale of Sensations.—By this time Denmark was mobilising rapidly, and the excitement in Stroget and the Raadhusplads was intense. Thousands of people crowded round the newspaper offices when each new telegram was displayed in the windows written large on enormous sheets of paper. The "Latest News" in printed form was being sold like hot cakes, and bought indiscriminately. Numbers of folk bought them 20 or 30 in the day, sometimes to find that in their excitement and impatience they were eagerly digesting a news sheet of yesterday which had been palmed off upon them by a mendacious news vendor.

Off to Esbjerg.—The news of the stoppage of the Esbjerg-Harwich route was a severe blow to Denmark, whose prosperity largely rests on its export trade of bacon, butter and eggs to Britain, and when after some days of anxious waiting the news of the intended re-opening of the route on Friday, the 7th, was displayed on the placards there was tremendous cheering from the crowds in the Raadhusplads. The Editor determined to make for Esbjerg by the first train, and many other Britishers, including some who had already journeyed to Esbjerg and come back again to Copenhagen, filled the train that Friday morning, and set off in good spirits with every hope of getting home.

A Cruel Blow.—But at Fredericia, after a long and tedious journey, a cheerful guard went along the train and said: "Perhaps the dampskibet (steamer) no go." And sure enough when the passengers turned out at Esbjerg about 5 p. m., they had just to join the muster of Britishers who had been crowding into the little port for days. And for one and all, those with money and those without, there was but one thing to do, and that one thing was to philosophically "wait and see." —Postage Stamp.

THE N. P. S. CONVENTION.

The Second Annual Convention of the National Philatelic Society was held at Boston, Mass., on July 27-28-29, 1914. Headquarters were at the Castle Square Hotel, where all the business sessions were held, with President Weiss in the chair. E. L. Clark, acting as secretary pro tem, in the absence of secretary Goodwin. There were present 37 members, while 77 others were represented by proxy. About 20 visitors attended some of the business sessions and entertainments.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—Pres., E. L. Weiss, New York City; Vice Pres., E. L. Clark, Lynn, Mass.; Sec., W. E. Goodwin, Dover, N. H.; Treas., A. M. Wright, Roslindale, Mass.; Int. Sec., L. G. Dorpat, Wayside, Wis.; Directors-at-Large, W. G. Whittaker, Cleveland, O. and W. A. Stryker, Westfield, N. J.; official organ, The New England Philatelist. Next convention, New York City, July 22-23-24, 1915.

Several minor changes were found advisable in the constitution and by-laws, as was to be expected in so young a society. Eight new members were admitted under suspension of the rules.

The society now has about 230 members, and the auction, sales and exchange departments are well managed and well patronized. The Boston Philatelic Exchange Club, with 20 members, is Branch No. 2, and the New York Philatelic Exchange Club, with 41 members, is Branch No. 3. Branch No. 1, at Windsor, Vt., is inactive at present, but will probably be revived this fall.

The social features at the convention included a historic trolley ride around Boston on Monday, in a car chartered by Branch No. 2, and outings at Revere Beach and Nahant, with a banquet at the latter place, on Tuesday. An auction sale and bourse was held on Wednesday, and a moonlight sail to Nantasket Beach in the evening.

The N. P. S. must have a good press agent, as we have seen no less than seventeen clippings taken from Boston papers the last week in July, about the convention and stamp collecting. The society will publish its Second Annual Year Book on Jan. 1st, 1915.

EUGENE DOEBLIN.

Eugene Doeblin, aged 71 years, manager of the advertising department of the Volksblatt and Freiheits Freund, a stamp collector of international fame, the owner of a valuable library of German theatrical books, and one of the best known Germans in Pittsburgh, died yesterday afternoon in his home, 5444 Claybourne street. Mr. Doeblin, apparently in the best of health, was at his office until late Saturday night. At 11.30 o'clock he was attacked by apoplexy and died about four hours later. Mr. Doeblin was born September 11, 1842, in Hohensalza, Posen, Germany. He served in the German army in his youth and saw service in the German-Danish war. He was wounded in the battle of Dueppeler Schauzen, Denmark, in 1864. Following this campaign he came to the United States. Mr. Doeblin came to Pittsburgh about 30 years ago and engaged in newspaper work. He was employed first as a solicitor in the advertising department of the Sonntagsbote, then for several years in a similar capacity on the Beobachter. He had been with the Volksblatt and Freiheits Freund for 17 years. The collection of stamps which Mr. Doeblin had gathered is known throughout the world. It is the result of effort expended since Mr. Doeblin was a young man. It contains rare specimens from all parts of the world and won many medals for Mr. Doeblin. For 15 years Mr. Doeblin was international secretary of the American Philatelic Society, the organization composed of the leading stamp collectors. He was a regular attendant at the society's conferences and in spite of his age was one of the principal figures at the annual conference held this month at Niagara Falls. Mr. Doeblin's library contained several thousand books, principally German plays and works dealing with the theater. He furnished the plays for the leading German theaters and actors all over the United States and he issued annually a catalogue of the works in his possession. Mr. Doeblin was married 47 years ago. He leaves his widow, Mrs. Mathilda Doeblin, and the following children: Louis Doeblin, of Geneva, N. Y.; Albert Doeblin, New York City, and Philip and Ruben Doeblin, of Pittsburgh; also Mrs. Bertha Schlimpen, Mrs. Emma Levy, Mrs. Paula Cohen, Mrs. Frances Blau and Martha Doeblin Morgan. He also leaves three brothers in Germany, and 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren in this country.—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

In perforating the record printing of the 5c green transitorio issue a piece of the perforating or rouletting rule pulled out of the form while the work was being done. THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Gone From Us—It indeed will be a shock to the philatelic world to hear of the death from apoplexy of Eugene Doeblin, Pittsburgh, on Sunday, August 30th, in his seventy-first year. The fact that Mr. Doeblin worked late at his office Saturday night shows how suddenly the fatal attack came; and Mr. Doeblin's presence at the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Niagara Falls earlier in the month, after a trip through the great lakes was taken as an indication of sound health by his friends there. In the death of Mr. Doeblin philatelic Pittsburgh has been bereaved and all America has sustained a loss that is peculiarly severe; and the American Philatelic Society has been deprived of a member whose popularity was unbounded. Mr. Doeblin's connection with the American Philatelic Society was formed in the infancy of the organization and it continued until the end. Almost from the first, Mr. Doeblin attended the annual conventions and took otherwise a keen interest in the affairs of the society. Year after year, he served on the board of directors and supported the local branch of the mother society in Pittsburgh. As a collector, Mr. Doeblin's activities extended over the period of a half century or more. Latterly, the issues of Europe have been his collecting field and his Great Britain and German states and Empire and colonies were of superb proportions. He exhibited from his collection on several occasions and gained a number of medals in competition. Mr. Doeblin, as might be supposed, combined the old and the modern schools of collecting. It was his conviction that the stamps themselves were paramount in importance to their surroundings such as artistically prepared albums and specially ruled pages even though he did not ignore a fitting setting for his stamps. His trade relations with dealers continued almost to the last and his name was about as well known in some of the centers of Europe as in America.

Our Tribute—Our personal acquaintance with Mr. Doeblin was begun in 1893, when he attended the convention of the American Philatelic Society at Chicago and his striking personality made an impression on us that succeeding years deepened. His humor, tinctured with kindliness as it always seemed to be, was so quaint and spontaneous that it took his hearers by storm. To many of the members, Mr. Doeblin was revered as "Papa" Doeblin; and they in particular will mourn for days to come over the passing away of their friend with the heart of gold,—a friend who forgot himself in his wish to make others happy. We deplore the death of one who always personified the "spirit of smiles" and who gave us many a joyous minute; and we shall rear a shrine for him in memory where we may often meditate upon the virtues and endearing human qualities of our departed friend.

Newspaper Notices—The Pittsburgh newspapers contained biographical details of Mr. Doeblin which will be read with attention by those who knew Mr. Doeblin; and we choose an account from the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph of August 31st for reprinting in another column. We might add that Mr. Doeblin's stamp den was one of the famous sanctuaries in this country and those who have enjoyed his hospitality in it have a mental picture not soon to be effaced. Mr. Doeblin usually was accompanied to conventions by his wife and sometimes other members of his family; and to the widow and children we extend our heart-felt sympathy.

History Repeats Itself—The transfer of the seat of government in France from Paris to Bordeaux brings to the minds of philatelists the Bordeaux lithographs and the original movement of the kind in 1870 for the same reason that now holds. Philately teaches history; and will philatelic history repeat itself?

Cent A-Piece—A question in a recent prize contest was: Which country outside of the United States has issued the most stamps that are priced at a cent each in the catalogue? Did you know that it was Austria?

* * *

Jubilee Cancellation—Christiania, Norway, is using a polyglot cancellation in honor of its exhibition. The marking in four wavy lines reads: Norway 1914—Jubilaemus Utstilling—Centenary Exhibition—Exposition du Centenaire.

More Light—Some time ago, we printed a clipping from a Los Angeles newspaper telling of the discovery of the current six cent United States in the color of the four cents. We printed the clipping for what it was worth; and now we learn some interesting particulars from a Los Angeles correspondent who says: "Not long since a postal clerk in the employ of the Los Angeles post office noticed a six cent United States postage in a brown color, the same shade as the four cent of the current issue. He conveyed this information to a Los Angeles dealer telling him the post office from which it emanated. The dealer went to East San Pedro and purchased seven copies or all that were left and disposed of them immediately for fifty dollars each. The postmaster said that he had received the sheet in 1911 from the Los Angeles post office and from then on, the stamp was in continuous use. He is of the opinion that the stamps had become oxidized as his post office is over the salt water at the end of the wharf near where a canning company discharges its refuse. All the stamps of the lot save the seven copies purchased by the Los Angeles dealer were used on packages by the White Star Canning Company for mailing samples of canned fish. If the stamps were not oxidized, the cannery has unwittingly used many thousands of dollars worth of stamps in a philatelic sense in paying postage amounting to but the merest fraction of that amount." What story does per-oxide of hydrogen tell?

Another Constant Reader—Miss Amy L. Swift has a strong competitor in the contest to determine the lady reader who for the longest period has subscribed to the WEEKLY in the person of Hattie R. Stratton, Chattanooga, Tenn., who writes: "May I not be classed among your oldest subscribers in that I have been a subscriber almost from the very first issue of the WEEKLY? Would your books show just when my subscription began? I remember seeing the first issue and know that I subscribed soon after that. I was then teaching in the State Normal School at Montgomery, Alabama. I also read the 'Daily' every day while it was issued,—nine months was it not?" We no longer have the original subscription books of the WEEKLY but we know that our correspondent is deserving of a prize along with Miss Swift for loyalty to the WEEKLY and we shall have pleasure in sending each of them a stamp memento.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—"I have just returned from a two months' trip to Europe and find that my subscription to your valuable paper has expired. Herewith find money order for renewal, as I cannot afford to miss a copy. Glad you have arrived safely and hope you had as good a time as I did. I was with the Temple Tours, and altho we could not enter Germany, Switzerland, Holland or Belgium we had a good time in the cities we visited and saw many wonderful and interesting things. Managed to get through France on passports and reach Liverpool in time for sailing. I saw stamps for sale at Azores Islands, Madeira, and many places in Venice, but they were not exceptionally cheap, and there was a total absence of good U. S. Wishing you and the WEEKLY good luck, I remain," T. RUSSELL HUNGERFORD.

A SEND OFF TO E. M. CARPENTER.

By H. A. Kidder.

A congenial party gathered at the Winter Place Restaurant, Monday evening, August 31, to give a send off to Ernest M. Carpenter, for many years treasurer of the New England Stamp Co., and who was severing his connection therewith. He leaves with the hearty good wishes and the respect of all his associates, as proved by the expressions of good will and esteem voiced at the farewell dinner. John N. Luff came on from New York to be present, and Joseph S. Rich came down from his summer home at Bethel, Me. There were also present President Theo. W. Barry of the Boston Philatelic Society; L. L. Green, C. K. B. Nevin, George L. Toppan, Freeman Putney, Jr., James H. Lyons, Henry A. Kidder, A. W. Batchelder and Mr. Carpenter.

The affair was entirely informal but Mr. Carpenter took advantage of a lull in the feast to express his thanks to those who had arranged the testimonial. In graceful words he voiced his appreciation of the good will of the associates he was leaving and the harmony which had ever ruled in the affairs of the Company. He also took occasion to outline his plans for the future. Though still incomplete, they include a good long rest with occasional automobile trips to vary the monotony. Mr. Batchelder read letters of congratulation and regret at their inability to be present from Willard O. Wylie, M. H. Lombard and C. A. Howes. The latter's letter was in poetic form, and so well voiced the sentiments of those present that it was greeted with hearty applause. After the dinner the party adjourned to the Plymouth Theatre, where "Along Came Ruth" rounded out the evening in an enjoyable way. Here is Mr. Howe's poetical contribution to the good cheer of the evening:

Behold the goodly company gathered here
Around a board well furnished with good cheer!
What means this merry clink of plate and glass?
That time is in frivolity to pass?

Perhaps; yet without pleasure now and then
We'd be a race of dullards and not men.
Our relaxation frees the mind from care
And helps to lift the burden we all bear.

But that was not the only object sought
When summonses to each of us were brought
To join in festal conclave here tonight
And separate a man from business right!

Our friend has been the keeper of the "chest"
For near a score of years; and now a rest
He thinks would be conducive to his health,
While motoring will help him spend his wealth!

We greet him, then, with hearty hand clasp here
And drink a toast in water, wine or beer—
It matters not, so long as what is said
Rings true as coming from both heart and head.

We'll miss him much: a genial, kindly man,
With ever ready help, whene'er he can;
With good advice upon our council board
Where ideas for our magazine are stored.

So fill a bumper up once more to him!
A hearty drink before the lights grow dim,
Lest we delay—for I would have you know
This feast is but the prelude to a show!

And when it's o'er and each has gone his way
We trust our friend will feel that he can say,
As he looks back at times, when years roll on,
"'Tis pleasant to be missed when you are gone!"

A DARING ROBBERY.

Dealers everywhere are urged to be on the lookout for a stamp thief and as well his theft. The following from H. F. Colman of Washington, D. C., tells its own story:—

"Monday, Aug. 31, about 3.15 o'clock, a young man, smooth face, weight, about 135 to 140 lbs., I should judge, inclined to be light complexioned, rather small eyes, dressed in a dark suit, and straw hat, and rather good looking;—came in my store and bought $1.15 worth of stamps. He looked to be between twenty and twenty-five years old. At the time, I was waiting on another customer and my young lady clerk was waiting on the young man. He was in the office about twenty minutes, when Dr. Howard came in and wanted me to go next door with him and get a cigar. At the time, I was busy, both my other clerks being away, but finally, I went out with him. The young man asked my clerk for something else, and while she turned to get it from the safe, he grabbed a stock book of British Colonies, ran down the stairs, and disappeared on the street. The book contained the stamps of Great Britain, British North America, and the Colonies up to Natal,—all 19th century stamps.

"Up to this writing (Sept. 5) he has not been located, notwithstanding the fact that the detective bureau here in the city, has wired all cities from Chicago east, notifying them of the theft and giving his description. I think it would be a good idea for you to warn dealers, as I understand Mr. Klein, and J. W. Scott, and others, have had similar robberies. It may be the same person.

"It looks as if the more publicity this is given, the quicker we can trace the culprit. If dealers are on their guard now, it may be that we can run him down.

"It is impossible for me to say just how much the stock book amounted to, but the chances are it runs up to $3,000 and $4,000—in value. Some of the stamps I could identify, if I could see them."

Advertising Chat—No. 3.

A glance through our advertising columns this week will convince you that the stamp season has opened in earnest and the many offerings will be perused with interest by our readers. Our advertising matter is running much stronger than a year ago and is proof positive of the tremendous value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium.

Dealing in stamps is both a lucrative and pleasant vocation and can be conducted as a side-line, especially in these days of mail order business. A dime will secure our little booklet "How to Deal in Stamps," with many valuable hints for the would-be dealer.

We now have 7700 paid subscribers and it will not be long ere we shall pass another much coveted milestone. It is not an easy thing building a circulation for a trade paper, but our mailing list is on a secure foundation and no stamp paper in the world can touch us in efficiency in reaching the stamp buying public.

Our advertising contracts are described on our editorial page. We urge you to write us if you are at all interested. If you want to sell your collection there is no better way than to make use of our columns.

We sell quarter pages for $15 and they are proving very popular. Note the large advertisement of B. L. Voorhees this week, while the attractive advertisement of Geo. W. Linn Co. will surely be read. A new advertiser, Benj. Weisner, is seen in our columns this week for the first time, while one of our old stand-bys, Burger & Co., favors us with an opening advertisement.

Whether you want to advertise or to assist us in getting new subscribers, we are prepared to do our part in publishing the gospel of good business and count upon the coming season as being a live one for American philately.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

AUSTRALIA.—W. T. Wilson sends us the second (?) printing of the King George Commonwealth 1d stamp which was issued to the Australian offices, July 18. The differences between this and the earlier printings are only for the specialists, and have been fully described in previous numbers of MEKEEL'S.

FRANCE.—The predicted flood of provisionals and new issues resulting from the European war has already begun. W. T. Wilson sends us a specimen of the current 10c of France, which has been surcharged with the Red Cross emblem and "5c". This stamp is to be sold for 15 centimes, of which 5 centimes is to be devoted to the Red Cross work. The surcharge covers the lower part of the Sower's, the Red Cross serving as a "plus" mark between the two values.

INDIA.—Patiala.—We are informed by Whitfield King & Co. that the 1a carmine King George stamp has been overprinted "Service" and the name of the State for use in Patiala.

JAPAN.—Whitfield King & Co. report the 5y and 10y values printed on the new granite paper, watermarked wavy lines.

MEXICO.—Sonora.—Lowell A. Ragatz writes as follows: A California correspondent who has supplied me with G. C. M. Sonora stamps for my foreign customers writes, "Look out for counterfeit G. C. M. They are very well made, and would readily pass as O. K. if not closely examined. The principal points I note are as follows. In the counterfeit the upstroke of 'G' does not touch the upper half, as it does in the original. The final curl in 'M' in the counterfeit goes lower than in the genuine 'M.' In the counterfeit there is a much wider space between 'GC,' while in the genuine the space is very slight in lightly stamped copies, and touches in the heavily stamped ones. The counterfeit 'G' is 16 mm. long, while 15 mm. on the genuine."

PERSIA.—Bright & Son have shown us a series of five postcards, and an envelope issued some time since, but which have not been previously chronicled by either Senf or Bright. The envelope is overprinted "Provisoire—1319" in a frame like Scott's Adhesives, Nos. 173 to 190 in black. Bright chronicles the 10c and 12c envelopes with this overprint, but not the 8c. Two of the single cards have the same overprint, while two single cards and the reply card have control mark "a" of Scott's 1899 adhesive series. The cards thus overprinted are the 1894 type.

TIBET.—Lowell J. Ragatz writes as follows:

"I have just imported some Tibet Native Issue sets, and notice a marked difference in paper used. One kind is thin and when held up to the light, presents an appearance like oiled paper. The colour has soaked through the stamp, and as the design is blurred, it is hard to tell which is the face and which is the back. The other paper is quite thick, yellowish, and very firm. No colour has soaked through. The design is as clear cut as is possible with the die used, and shows off well. The surface of the paper is rough, it takes the ink well. All these stamps came from one Postoffice. It seems that no care is taken to standardize the paper used."

The 320th (regular) meeting of the Society will be held at the Club Room on Tuesday evening, September 15th, at 7.30 o'clock.

Not only will it be time to think of plans for the coming season, but many interesting vacation experiences are doubtless ready for exchange, and the terrible European war, so suddenly developed since our last meeting, will furnish plenty of speculation in the philatelic line.

Come and bring a friend and make a rousing meeting for a season opener.

WITH THE A. P. S. AT NIAGARA FALLS.

The cartoonist of the New England Philatelist presents us with some pictures of the well-known philatelists who figured in the convention of the A. P. S. in August. A melancholy interest attaches to the same in the fact that Mr. Doeblin whose death is recorded in this issue of the WEEKLY is shown in one of the features. A sample copy of the New England Philatelist can no doubt be secured by addressing the publishers at Lynn, Mass.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH STAMPS.

(Press Clippings.)

Immediate action is to be taken to print continuously the new King's Head penny stamps, which are to take the place of the Kangaroo issue. The secretary to the treasurer, Mr. G. T. Allen, states that the die working plates had arrived, and everything was in readiness to go ahead and turn out the 400,000,000 a year which would be required to fill the normal demand.

Approval has been given by the Postmaster-General to the new twopenny stamp, and the printing of the first issue of 100,000 is to commence immediately.

This also has the King's head as its main feature; but it does not contain the kangaroo, emu, and sprigs of wattle, which are included in the penny stamp. It is printed a mauve color, and in the opinion of the Federal officials it is an exceptionally pretty stamp. The first issue is to be printed by steel plate process, but dies are to be subsequently obtained from England to enable further supplies to be provided by the ordinary and cheaper electroplate process.

Acting on the advice of Mr. T. S. Harrisson, the Federal Notes printer, Mr. Wynne, the Postmaster-General, has selected the design for the new 1s postage stamp. The design is taken from the stamps of West Australia before Federation. The new stamp will be printed in sepia tint, this being considered the most distinctive color.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

PAPER.

The question of how to distinguish the various kinds of paper is one that is most puzzling to the beginner, and often confuses the specialist. As paper is the fundamental principle of postage stamps, it is really necessary that collectors should know something about it. I do not urge the beginner to try to collect the various paper varieties, as this work belongs to the advanced collector. However, the beginner will make no mistake by learning the differences so as to be able to distinguish them.

Wood, straw grass, waste-paper, linen and other rags (excepting woolens) are used in the manufacture of paper. Linen and cotton rags make the best quality paper, and as stamps are usually printed on the best paper obtainable, we have to deal with these materials more than the others. After the rags are sorted for buttons, etc., they are boiled in a solution of soda and lime to remove dirt, are then ground to a pulp, and the pulp is bleached. The bleaching solution is next extracted, the pulp is ground further, water is added, and the mixture flows through strainers to an endless cloth of wire gauze, which keeps moving at a steady rate, with a slight shaking motion to eliminate excess moisture and to distribute the pulp more evenly. Two narrow revolving bands of India-rubber, known as "deckles" regulate the width of the paper by resting on the gauze at the required width. The bands are responsible for the rough or "deckle" edges on the paper, and which add such a touch of quality to fine stationery. After the pulp has passed the deckles, it resembles wet blotting paper. It is next passed under the "dandy-roll" which is the most important operation as far as stamp collectors are concerned, for this "dandy-roll" determines whether the paper will be laid or wove, and in the case of water-marked paper, adds the watermark.

In making this "dandy-roll" the letters or devices for the watermark are raised slightly, so that the pulp receives additional pressure as it passes these points, and is just a little thinner in consequence. These letters or devices are usually stamped out of very thin sheets of brass and are soldered on the roller. In the early days they were made from bits of twisted wire sewn to the wire cloth on which the pulp is poured, and the same effect was gained when the cloth passed under the roller.

After the pulp has left the dandy-roll it passes onto a roller covered with felt, and thence over and under several similar rollers and heated cylinders, and is quite dry when its travels through this part of the process are over. After being dried, it is passed between other cylinders which apply the "size" to give it a smooth writing surface,—is dried again, and passed through smooth heavy steel rollers known as "calendering" rollers, to give it the desired polish or gloss.

The paper is manufactured in a continuous strip, often several miles long. After leaving the "calendering" rollers it is cut into the desired sheets, and the rough or "deckle" edges removed, excepting in the case of fine stationery.

Having seen how the paper is manufactured, we are now ready to go into detail concerning the various kinds, as concerning stamp collectors:

Wove paper is the paper most frequently met with, in commerce, and in postage stamp collecting. In making this paper, the "dandy-roll" is covered with a very fine wire gauze, similar to the wire gauze on which the pulp is distributed in its early stages. This paper varies in substance, but essentially it is the same. It is a plain paper and shows no watermark lines excepting the watermark itself. The coarser varieties appear to be watermarked with countless tiny dots.

Examples: The current United States stamps.
This paper.

Laid paper is caused by the "dandy-roll" being covered with wires separated by a space equal to the width of one of the wires. The finished paper appears to be watermarked with parallel lines. When these lines run from the top to the bottom of the stamps, the paper is known as vertically laid, and when the lines run across the stamp, the paper is known as horizontally laid. If the lines run diagonally across the stamp, the paper is known as diagonally laid.

Examples: Vertically laid: Russian 1902-3 issue.
Horizontally laid: Russia 1868-92.

Batonne paper is either wove or laid, with watermark lines showing considerable distance apart, similar to the ruling on a writing tablet. These lines may be crossed, vertical, horizontal, diagonal, straight or wavy. They are caused by wires on the "dandy-roll." If the paper is wove, or the space between the lines is plain, it is called wove-batonne. If the space between the lines shows the fine lines of laid paper, it is known as laid-batonne. This paper is not in common use.

Examples: Wove-batonne: The 1876 issue of Bavaria might be considered as on this paper.
Laid-batonne: The 1875 issue of Bavaria shows the laid-batonne effect. Also the current 1c and 2c U. S. envelopes.

Quadrille paper appears to be watermarked with small squares or rectangles. It is made by covering the "dandy-roll" with a fine wire net-work.

Examples: France 15c blue, 1892, also some French Colonies.
Djibouti and Somali Coast picture stamps.

Soft or Porous paper is wove paper made from a "dandy-roll" with a coarse mesh, giving the paper the appearance of being watermarked with countless tiny dots or pores. This paper is a little thicker and is softer and more spongy to the touch than ordinary wove paper.

Examples: United States 1879 issue printed by American Bank Note Co. also 5c 1882, Garfield.

Hard paper was used by the Continental Bank Note Company in making the United States stamps of 1873, and to distinguish these stamps from those printed on the soft paper by the American Bank Note Company is a problem that bothers nearly all collectors. This hard paper is made with a "dandy-roll" having a very fine mesh, so the paper appears smooth and unwatermarked. Of course, many other stamps beside the United States mentioned above are printed on paper of this nature.

Examples: Continental printing of United States 1873 issue.

In distinguishing the hard paper from the soft in these United States printings let me say that the method of holding the stamp and "crackling" it to hear the difference is neither an exact way to separate the stamps, nor is it beneficial for them. The better way is to compare two specimens, for instance the 5c Garfield (which appears only on soft paper) and the 1c or 2c Treasury Department (which are known only on hard paper) by holding them to a strong light and noting the "pores" in the soft paper variety. After having studied these two kinds of paper, the other values should be easy to classify.

Silk-thread paper has one or more continuous silk threads in it. This paper, invented by John Dickinson, and known as "Dickinson Silk-thread" paper is not very extensively used. The 1855-62 issues of Switzerland are printed on this paper.

Silk paper is the kind used by the United States Government in the bank notes, and also many of the Revenue stamps. This paper differs from Silk-thread paper in as much as the threads are broken, and in short pieces. Also, the threads are not distributed evenly.

Granite paper contains silk fibres, but so very small in size as to be almost invisible without the aid of a magnifying glass.

Examples: Switzerland 1907 to date.
Austria 1890 to 1902.

Pelure paper is a very thin, hard, wove paper, almost transparent. It is very tough, and "wears" well considering its thinness. It is not used very extensively.

Examples: The 1904 issue of Colombian Republic.

Manila paper is frequently used for stamped wrappers, but I can recall no instance where it is used for stamps. It is a coarse paper made from Manila pulp.

Colored paper can be divided into two classes, surface colored and paper colored all the way through. In the latter kind, coloring matter has been mixed with the pulp to give it the hue wanted. In the former, the color is printed on the paper before the stamps are printed.

Examples: Colored all the way through: Most 3d values of England. Surface colored: The new "white backs" of the English Colonies are probably the most prominent examples at present: The Guatemala stamps of 1897.

Blued paper is often made this tint unintentionally, by certain chemical actions, commonly caused by the printing ink of the stamps. This paper is often found among the early British Colonials. The "bluish experimental" paper of the United States caused quite a sensation a few years ago. This latter issue was not caused by the printing, however, but was caused by certain substances in the paper itself.

Examples: Great Britain 1841 issue.

Safety paper is the highly glazed bluish paper used by the English government for the manufacture of the 4d stamps of 1855 and several revenues. By adding prussiate of potash to the pulp, causing the bluish tinge, the paper was rendered so sensitive that any attempt to clean the stamp would cause the design to be removed also.

Example: Great Britain 4d 1855.

Chalk-surfaced or chalky paper is in use at the present time by many of the British Colonies. The chalk wash is applied to the paper after manufacture. It presents a highly polished surface, and is a little thicker. This wash is put on as a preventative against cleaning, as any liquid will remove the wash and discolor the stamp at the same time. After a little practice by comparison of two known specimens, this paper can be readily distinguished.

Example: Jamaica current 3d.

Native paper is a very thin, soft paper, made from rice fibre. It was used for many of the early issues of Japan and the Indian States. There are laid and wove varieties. Some of these native papers are thicker than others.

Ribbed paper is very similar to laid and batonne paper. Ribbed paper is thicker, usually, and the lines or "ribs" show very plainly from both sides of the paper, without the use of a watermarked detector, while in the former kinds the lines appear more as a watermark. This paper is made by passing the pulp between rollers with a slightly corrugated surface.

In closing this article, I wish to say that as most of the facts contained herein were gleaned from Mr. Poole's "Beginner's Guide" the credit for this work really belongs to him. Collectors who really care to study their stamps will find this work to be practically the last word on the subject of collecting as far as the general collector is concerned, and at the small charge asked by the publishers of this paper for the book in question, no collector can "go wrong" by investing in it.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. O. S.—The London print of the 5c Confederate (No. 205) differs from the Local print (No. 206) in texture of paper and in impression. The London print is much finer and clearer in impression than the local print, also the paper is slightly finer.

D. K.—By all means get a catalogue. The Scott 1915 edition will probably appear within a few weeks, though I believe no date has been set as yet. The advance sheets are up to the letter "S" so I would suggest that you wait for it. For your purpose, this catalogue will be the best.

SEEN IN THE DAYS OF MOBILIZATION.

By JULIAN PARK,
Instructor in History, University of Buffalo.

Upon France, Belgium and Luxembourg, the war came very suddenly, that is, to the people. No doubt the officials had been preparing for eventualities ever since, at least, the murder of the Austrian archduke, but, as a traveler through these countries a few days before the war broke out, I can answer for it that it came upon the ordinary people with not a week's warning.

But that week of uncertainty was enough to try the temper of all. The air was charged with an atmosphere of suspense, especially in the country, where news penetrates more slowly than in Paris. One afternoon I met a company of artillery crossing the bridge on the way to the barracks. It was in Senlis, about 40 miles from Paris. There seemed to be something a little unusual about this company; just what, I did not at first realize. A man nearby said: "That's the way when they mobilize." And then I noticed that all were in war trim. "They're bringing everything to the barracks," said the man. "To march tonight if the order comes. Of course—" catching himself up—"it may be just for drill." The somber line of men, stocky fellows with their red pantaloons tucked in their boots, the somber line of horses, the grim file of cannon, rolled down the village street, over the bridge up the hill. Some women came out of a garden gate and stood, white and frightened, looking at the dark column ominous in its war trim. "C'est comme ca quand on mobilise." ("It's like that when they mobilize.")

That day there were not enough newspapers in town; people tore them from each other. The next day the countryside was in a fever. Men conferred anxiously about getting in the wheat. Women—the older ones—talked of 1870. Younger ones wept. And all this before the order of mobilization was posted. Soon, however, the first spasm passed, and everybody regained control of themselves. A period of calm waiting set in, the gloom being successively intensified by the news of Austria's declaration of war, the German mobilization following the partial Russian mobilization, the German declaration of war on Russia, at last the French mobilization and finally the German declaration against France.

But behind the gloom, in that little city where I spent the night, there was something else, something that has been growing for years. It can be best illustrated by an incident which the hotelkeeper told me of, that occurred a month previous. It was at a "noce de campagne"—one of those wedding gatherings where, better even than at country fairs, one can study the collective peasant mentality.

This was a modernized wedding; there was no fiddler; the guests in citified clothes sang citified songs. Montmartre songs, some of them—at least, what sounded like Montmartre songs and passed for them in the country. Finally, a young peasant rose and sang a song of 1870 about Bazaine's treachery—set to a melancholy chant, such an air as the French "folk" have used for centuries for the singing of their sorrows and tragedies. To an outsider it would have seemed an absurd choice for a wedding. But the peasants listened with hushed attention as if—no, not as if in church. They had laughed and talked in church that morning. To this song about Bazaine, who lost for them Metz, they gave a significant, dead silence, a brooding silence, such a silence as one gives to the recital of humiliations one wants to burn in one's mind—for future use. That night, in the midst of the dinner jollifications, I was told, they asked for the song again.

Things have changed in France since 1870. The cry of "On to Berlin" is no longer heard. They respect their foes too much for that.

In Paris, too, the week before the war, it was a changed Paris, so sober and subdued that it seemed hard to believe it was the same Paris as that which I had left the first of July for a jaunt in Belgium and the Vosges mountains. Up to Saturday, the first day of August, there was just one topic of conversation. "Is it coming—mobilization?" The words were said not boastingly, not sadly, nor yet gaily—just calmly. It seems strange that the French, so ready for noisy demonstration on subjects of less import, should find themselves nearer to the great day of reckoning with their old enemies than they have been for 44 years, and yet remain tranquil, unexcited, no more deeply interested, and clearly resigned, if the worst is indeed to come, to meet it firmly.

H. F. COLMAN,

Then, about four o'clock on Saturday, was posted the order of mobilization. It was hand written on a huge piece of paper; there was no time for printing. There was no need either for many words. It was all in two lines: "Order of extreme urgency. First day of mobilization, Sunday, August 2." That was all. It was enough, for each reservist, following the wonderful system in vogue had known ever since he left the active army, just what day, what train, and what hour he was to go in case of mobilization, and to which barracks he was to go to get his gun and uniform.

"What day do you go?" It was the question you heard whenever men below 50 years of age were gathered together. Some had to leave, of course, at once. Chauffeurs were hurrying their cars to the garages. "I rejoin at Toul on the first day," said the telephonist at my hotel. Toul—right on the frontier. Life has abrupt changes for men of a continental nation; to be working a telephone one day, and perhaps a few hours later, to be right in the thick of the most desperate battle of nations since history began.

One's acquaintances began to take on a romantic interest of which they would have seemed hardly worthy a week ago. The head waiter over there will be a sergeant, giving orders instead of taking them. One has a sudden consciousness of one's inferiority among these people who are so ready to take their places as parts of the vast fighting machine, coupled with a vague feeling of resentment that all this time they have been leading double lives. Who would have dreamed for instance, that that tall young man in the barber shop is really a cuirassier and will very likely be charging about in a gleaming breastplate, flourishing a heavy sabre to cut off heads instead of trimming them?

These things seem unreal, impossible of occurrence in such a highly refined civilization as that in which we are supposed to be living. If anyone had said in the beginning of July that a month later in Paris no subways or omnibuses would be running, that the cafes would close at eight o'clock, that the grand boulevards — the world's promenade ground—would be deserted after dark, that half the stores and more than half the hotels would be closed, one would have replied that only a universal cataclysm could have produced such a revolution in the life of Paris which everyone loves so well.

And if Paris has so suffered and changed, what shall be said of the region which, unwittingly and so undeservedly has become the theater of warfare? Coming down through Belgium, Luxembourg and Alsace to Metz and Nancy, I was but a week in advance of the German armies. Ostend, though not so lively now as in the days of Leopold II, being still the favorite watering place of Europe, was thronged with a cosmopolitan crowd; Bruges and Ghent, which the Germans may or may not have spared, were still dreaming along their canals and sleepy waterways; Antwerp and Brussels, the busy marts of commerce, were celebrating the Belgian Fourth of July by a great military review, and I saw King Albert, a tall, handsome figure on horseback, at the head of his troops. Liege, being almost a purely commercial city, does not attract tourists as do the other Flemish towns, but it will do so henceforth, and travelers will flock to pay honor to that heroic defense. Namur, which I saw smiling in the freshness of a July morning, has a splendid location on the Meuse. A further descent of the Meuse will bring the traveler to French territory not far from Sedan, where I was on the fourteenth of July, the French national holiday. Two miles from Sedan is the village of Bazeilles, where the remains of the disaster speak vividly of the horrors of war. At Bazeilles is the "house of the last cartridge," the ruins of which still stand, a monument to a French detachment which there perished to a man.

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg, adjoining Belgium on the south, France on the east, and Germany on the west, was the first to suffer in the present conflict. Nature fashioned this romantic and picturesque country in a moment of happy inspiration, and nowhere in such small territory is such a pleasing variety of beautiful landscapes. The southern part of the country consists of softly undulating wood and meadow lands, offering a sharp contrast to the bold and rugged contours of the northern highlands. The whole country is but half the size of New Jersey; its army consists of 500 gendarmes, and the ruler is the Grand Duchess Adelaide, a girl of 20 years. The independence of the country has been guaranteed by a treaty of the powers, the signatories to which included, of course, Germany.

The City of Luxembourg occupies one of the most picturesque natural sites of any town in Europe. Perched on the top of an enormous rocky mass that falls away in sheer precipices on three sides to the river beneath, it is surrounded on all sides by the remains of massive fortifications, eloquent testimony to its past greatness. The deep and narrow valley is bridged over by two imposing, many arched viaducts, and by the new Adolph bridge, a masterpiece of engineering containing the largest stone arch in the world.

The wildest part of the miniature country is to be found about the village of Vianden, which boasts a castle famed as one of the finest specimens of medieval architecture. High above the houses, on an enormous isolated rock, tower the stately walls of the castle—eagle's nest brooding destruction over the entire valley. On every hand mountains stand sentinel, between whose rugged flanks the river, Our winds its way in graceful curves to join the Meuse. The view from the ivy-crowned battlements down to the village nestling below, and beyond up and down the valley until the river is lost to sight, is one of impressive grandeur and takes one back to the stormy days of the proud race that reared this mighty pile, which is quite as interesting in its romantic decay as it would be if restored.

From Luxembourg City it is a short run down to Metz, essentially a military town. Its position is one of the highest strategic importance, and though a small place in itself, its garrison seems to be half the city in population. The special attraction for the writer was a visit to the battlefields of 1870. Gravelotte, Mars-la-Tour, Vionville, and the other sanguinary engagements around Metz. The frontier! The same race, the same land, practically the same wheat field—but different countries. This countryman over there, plowing his fields, is a German and will have to fight against that other farmer a few rods away; both have a common language, French; both have common traditions, French. But when the telegraph clicks, one puts on his red trousers and kepi, the other his helmet and gray uniform. Such is war!

Unlike Metz, Nancy, the French frontier city, is unfortified, but is protected by a chain of forts on the border. From a historical point of view Nancy is one of the most interesting of French cities. The history of Lorraine and of the great Lorrainer Stanislas, king of Poland, is memoralized as is that of no other region of the country in any other French city. Nancy has a population of about 100,000, about 30,000 more than Metz. Of this population, the garrison forms about a quarter part. I was talking with a non-commissioned officer in a cafe and told him something of Buffalo, how I, too, lived in a frontier city, with a population of nearly five times as great as that of Nancy, but that the garrison consisted of less than 500 men. He refused to take me seriously. America has much to be thankful for in her splendid isolation.

I. X. L. STAMP CO., ABSECON, N. J.

As for the war itself, what to say? No American tourist this summer has seen, or will see, anything of the actual fighting. Even the war correspondents are finding things made so hard for them that much of what they report must be chiefly hearsay. There never was such a strict censorship of news. Authentic news on the German side is hard to obtain on account of the cutting of the cables; on the French and English side, good information is hardly less difficult to receive because of the strictness of the authorities. The French have profited by the lessons of 1870, when the loss of the battle of Woerth was attributed by the war office to a Paris paper, Le Petit Parisien, which published advance information of the French movements and German spies in Paris succeeded in smuggling the paper through to their staff officers.

The English officers whom I saw in Havre while we were waiting for the steamer to sail, seemed to think the conflict would be a long and stubborn one. The hopes of one of them seemed to rest largely on Italy's action. If she could be induced to abandon her allies, or even to threaten to do so, she would, said the officer, throw the scale in favor of the Triple Entente, for such action would necessitate the entire attention of Austria and deprive Germany of the help of the several Austrian army corps now engaged, apparently in Alsace.

The reception accorded the British troopers on their arrival in Havre was indeed something to remember. Transport after transport made its way up the harbor, crowded to the rails with kahki clad men who returned the French greetings with quite as much noise. Some of the expeditionary corps were fresh from Egypt, tanned by the tropical sun and in the pink of condition. Most of the French officers spoke English, since they are obliged to learn it if they serve in the north of France, in the same way as French officers serving on the German, Italian and Spanish borders must learn the languages of those countries. Hence the disembarkment was effected under French orders, with a minimum of confusion. Twenty thousand British troops landed in Havre, the rest of the army being disembarked at Boulogne, Cherbourg, Dunkerque, and Ostend, 150,000 in all.

As, finally, the French liner carrying the stranded American tourists steamed proudly out of Havre, to the salute of every boat in the roadstead and the cheers of the townspeople, the last sight which we glimpsed on shore was one French infantryman between two English soldiers, their arms about each other—symbol of not only alliance but friendship, all the firmer for the differences which have made them enemies in the past.—Buffalo News.

MELVILLE'S WAR CHAT.

A Ship's Crew on Strike.—An enterprising Danish fisherman who had a motor attached to his vessel, offered to take the Editor and five others across for 2,000 kroner (not much short of £120) per head. His plan was to sail north keeping close to the Danish and Norwegian coasts and then to cut across to Aberdeen or some other northern port in Britain. But every now and then there was a fresh rumor of an intended sailing by the United Shipping Co. of one of the regular steamers, and the extravagant and adventurous offers were set aside. The intention to reopen the route was due to the Danish butter merchants guaranteeing the war risks, but the Company had reckoned without the sailors who went on strike, demanding double pay, and heavy compensation to be paid to their wives or families if they came not home again.

German Reign of Terror.—The Danes, of course, were all kindness and consideration for the Britishers and the stay in Esbjerg was made as comfortable and pleasant as was possible in the circumstances. Here many who had suffered persecution and brutality at the hands of the German military in the passage to the frontier found a haven of rest and freedom from the terrors of the German regime. Nearly all who came from Germany lost all their luggage, and most of their money. Two English schoolgirls had been five days and nights without rest or sleep, in the clothes they stood up in, having had to leave their luggage through sheer inability to carry it along with them. They had been shut up in railway carriages, fourteen in one carriage, and a sentry at each door, with the windows closed and the blinds drawn. From the roofs of the carriages, suspended so high as to be out of reach little grotesque effigies of the monarchs of Britain and Russia were dangled to tantalise them. One of the girls had 2 kroner (2s 2d) in her possession when she reached Esbjerg.

A German Officer—and a Gentleman!—One and only one instance of decent treatment from the Germans was narrated to our Editor. A small party of young fellows returning from business in Germany, and girls returning from schools in that country had been arrested several times on their way, and often treated roughly. But at Rendsburg, a young German officer was so considerate and helpful to them that the boys lifted him shoulder high and carried him around to the shouting of "For he's a jolly good fellow." Let us hope that this experience of one small party of British refugees is not altogether an unique one.

Home at Last!—It was not until Sunday, August 9, the day on which it had been intended to open the Cassel International Philatelic Exhibition, that terms were arranged with the crew, and after many delays, much struggling, and many formalities, the bulk of the Britishers in Esbjerg got away in the steamer A. P. Bernstorff and after a calm and quiet, uneventful passage were escorted by a British torpedo boat into Harwich in the small hours of Tuesday morning, August 11. The Editor was amongst the crowd, and reached home just in time. His deputy, Mr. L. W. Crouch, who is an officer in the Territorials, had left the previous day under orders with the colours.—Postage Stamp.

Half Catalogue
I have bought the duplicates of one of my customers who has a large general collection. The stamps were mounted by Mr. R— himself on 40 small books and correctly catalogued and numbered by Scott's catalogue adding upwards $1000.00.
I have also taken against an account another consignment cataloguing $1,000.00 more.
I offer the above books on approval at a uniform discount of 50%
Both lots are absolutely unpicked and just as I received them, though there are many stamps I would gladly buy at "half off" myself. (For example—the first three stamps in Book No. 1 of Mr. R's duplicates are three fine 5c 1847 U. S.)
The stamps are arranged more or less alphabetically (the U. S. in both cases being by themselves) so I can as a rule submit countries or groups as requested. To general collectors with no particular choice of country I will send the best books available.
References that will bear investigation are essential.

The above is a special offer distinct from my well known "Red Books" by countries. These have nearly all been remade and any country or Colony can be submitted on request.
The books are arranged by latest Scott or Gibbons' catalogues and priced net, but prices are really low and at a substantial reduction from catalogue quotations.
All collectors who appreciate fine copies of genuine stamps at right prices should see these books.

EDITORIAL.

At Indianapolis—The philatelic convention season so far as the national societies are concerned was closed for the year by the annual meeting of the Southern Philatelic Association at Indianapolis on September 8th and 9th. The growth of the Southern Philatelic Association during the past year has been strikingly rapid and now a membership of seven hundred has been reached. Indeed, the strides with which the association has been advancing have been so great that there has been a disposition on the part of some members to express a preference for a name for the organization that would afford fuller scope for growth on national lines. However, so long as the name, Southern Philatelic Association, is the one under which the association has achieved its present numerical standing, the sentiment of the members prevented any change in name in view of the fact that there is no restriction affecting the residence of members in any part of the world. The question of change of name was signally defeated.

New Constitution—The constitution of the Southern Philatelic Association was designed for an organization by no means the size of the present body and in the light of today, it is obsolescent and defective. The officers and others were aware of the limitations of the present code and so, the most important committee appointed at the convention was that on constitution. In presenting its report, the committee submitted an entirely new constitution and it was approved section by section on the floor and only in a few instances were the recommendations rejected or changed. The result is that a wholly new code of laws for the government of the Southern Philatelic Association is in force and we consider this constitution which in great part was the work of Albert E. Gorham, LL. B., LL. M., Washington, an admirable example of constitutional codification. The provisions of the new constitution will dismiss the element of doubt that attended the interpretation of many of the working laws of the old constitution. Under the new regulations the affairs of the association should be administered much better than before and danger of contention such as prevailed during the recent campaign will be removed to a large extent. We may observe here that the clouds that showed on the horizon before the convention while lowering at times were soon dispelled by considerate measures employed by those whose opinions were opposing ones.

Special Stamps Wanted—The work of the Southern Philatelic Association convention was chiefly in the nature of internal improvement but a resolution endorsing the proposal in the following letter was endorsed: "Honorable John W. Kern, Senator, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir:—In anticipation of the centennial of Indiana as a State, in 1916, the Indiana Society, Sons of the American Revolution in annual meeting assembled, decided to request our representatives in Congress to confer with the proper authorities relative to an issue of postage stamps to be used by post offices in Indiana for a period of time during the Centennial year. It was suggested that the stamps be of larger size than usual and that for the one cent stamp a picture of the Soldiers' Monument with the name, Indianapolis, be shown. For the two cent stamp, the outlines of the State of Indiana showing the location and name of the three capitals, Vincennes, Corydon and Indianapolis, have been recommended. For the five cent stamp the outlines of the State of Indiana, showing the location and names of the five largest cities, to wit: Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Evansville, Terre Haute and South Bend are desired. For the ten cent, the outlines of the State of Indiana with the location and name of Indianapolis, showing the many steam and electric roads radiating in all directions are suggested. As this is to be an Indiana celebration, the citizens of the state are especially interested in the above suggestions, if for no other reason than if carried into effect the same would be an excellent advertising medium. It is the hope of this society and of a great many business men that our representatives in Congress will leave no stone unturned to carry out their wishes in this matter. Very truly yours, (Signed) Theo. Stein, Sr." It was suggested that members of the Southern Philatelic Association ask business men everywhere to send similar letters to their representatives in Congress.

Revenue Tax—The plans of Congress to meet the deficiency in the nation's customs receipts that are reported to be under consideration are of different kinds but we are told that a stamp tax on checks, documents and other paper is not likely to be acted upon favorably, the intention being to avoid any embarrassment to ordinary business procedure.

Seizures—The occupation of Upolu, the island on which Apia, the capital of German Samoa is located took place on August 29th by a detachment of troops from New Zealand. The governor and other officials were taken in charge. An Associated Press despatch says that the British fleet has occupied the seat of government of the German Bismarck archipelago and the Solomon Islands. The area of the archipelago is given as 18,000 square miles and is off the north coast of Australia and southeast of the Philippines.

Green—A letter from Guatemala has just been handed us bearing a block of four, among other stamps of the "1913 Seis Centavos" surcharge in green instead of black.

Little Effect—From the International Stamp Company, the inquiry has been received: "Will you please advise on the attached card if very many stamps have come on the Chicago market due to conditions arising out of the war." The answer was made that the number of stamps coming on the market at this time in Chicago is practically the same as in former years at the beginning of a season; and that thus far, war conditions have caused no abnormal movement in that city.

Massachusetts Transfer Tax—From Mr. William T. Kimball, Lawrence, Massachusetts, we have received the text of "An Act to provide for the Taxation of transfers of stock," to be found on pages 668 to 671 inclusive of the Massachusetts "Acts of 1914." This legislation was approved July 7, 1914, and the act provides for adhesive stamps for the purpose of paying the excise in such denominations as the tax commissioner may prescribe. In another column we shall give excerpts from the act under notice.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—W. F. Slusser makes a report upon J. Davis, who was recently advertised in the WEEKLY as securing approval selections and making no returns thereon. The San Francisco P. O. Inspector states that Davis is a boy of thirteen years and that settlement will be effected for all approval lots sent him.

—Henry Woelfel, a valued subscriber, wants to know why some dealer does not advertise used English stamps of the present issue, including the high values. Also old plate numbers on U. S. 1878 to 1884. Can some dealer accommodate him?

—J. E. Handshaw writes us from Stockholm under date of July 27. We quote from his card, "This is a fine city. We have visited Rotterdam, Hamburg, Copenhagen and Christiania and expect to go to London soon."

—If Mr. Hogan of Allerton, Mass., will send street address to P. W. Reidell, set of stamps will be sent him.

—The state revenue stamps to be issued by Massachusetts for stock transfer purposes are being prepared by the tax commissioner and will no doubt be available shortly. The statute goes into effect December 1.

SOUTHERN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION.

Convention at Indianapolis, September 8th & 9th.

The annual convention of the Southern Philatelic Association was called to order by President Kissinger in the Palm Room of the Claypool Hotel, Indianapolis, Indiana, Tuesday morning, September 8th, at 11 A. M. The session was opened by prayer by the Reverend Willis D. Engle of Indianapolis. The out-of-town members present were: C. W. Kissinger, Reading, Pa.; C. V. Webb, Perry, Ohio; Charles Roemer, San Antonio, Texas; Albert E. Gorham, Washington; C. D. Unger, Columbus; Erwin L. Fischer, Cincinnati; Eben S. Martin, Covington, Ohio; C. E. Severn, Chicago; Henry Ades Fowler, Chicago and L. T. Brodstone, Superior, Nebraska. The local representation was composed of Messrs. Pond, Wallis, Stayman, Engle, Stayman, Davis, Hollis, Janus, Schneider, Stanbrough, Harris, Fischer, Jones, Portland, Indiana, and others, as well as a number of visitors.

The reports of officers were read and accepted and the address of the president, C. W. Kissinger follows:

PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

To the Members of the S. P. A.:—

We are again assembled in convention to discuss the best method for our advancement for the following year. I am glad to notice that the lively spirit displayed in the welfare of the association since we have assembled shows that the interest is greater than ever. In fact, so much interest has been shown during the last four or five months that I feel safe in saying that the following year will be one of our brighest.

Another year has passed into history since our last Convention, and it again becomes my privilege to bid you all a hearty welcome. I hope that each member will endeavor to do his share of this work so that every stamp collector will realize the importance of belonging to a Society. At all times there is one fact that should be remembered and which I cannot impress upon you too forcibly; i. e., unless each member will do his or her part, all such undertakings are sure to prove abortive; no matter how willing your officers may be they are sure to become discouraged unless they receive the aid and coöperation of the members at large. Furthermore, our old adage, "In union there is strength," should not be lost sight of, as no truer words were ever written.

Nearly everybody collects stamps now-a-days; it has grown to be an enormous business, and young and old seem to be alike fascinated with it. Once a person becomes interested in the collection of a few stamps, he soon becomes familiarly acquainted with advantages of different countries as well as geographical locations and the study of lives and characters of the different countries' rulers. This is an agreeable as well as instructive occupation and refreshes the mind very much after all other elements that enter into our busy life have failed. It puts us in close touch with the world, and at this particular time, when all our foreign countries are fighting for that one thing that seems to mean so much to them, I believe we have learned just what educational influence it awakens. All these disputes will be recorded in history, and this war, will, I believe, make the United States the most powerful nation in this world. Following the successful termination of our own slight unpleasantness with Mexico, the European countries became estranged—and in consequence, I believe, they will become republics.

It would not detain you long to present for your consideration a brief summary of the events which make up the history of our Association for the past year. No very marked occurrences have characterized it, no exciting contentions or discussions have interrupted our way, with the exception of the last few months, when certain matters have perhaps drawn a cloud over the heretofore almost perfect sky. Our affairs have been faithfully managed, I think you will admit, and we may rightfully rejoice in the large measure of prosperity that has fallen to the lot of the S. P. A.

The detailed reports of our various officers will afford you the best means of judging for yourselves as to what has been accomplished with the Society and what has been rightly and what unwisely done. We can scarcely dwell too often on the thought that among the chief of the benefits of our Association is the mere fact of its existence.

In conclusion, I cannot refrain from again expressing my thanks and appreciation to the Officers of our Society, who have coöperated with me to make the passing year one of the most active in the history of the Society. Not that we have had no work to do; not that complaints against members have been fewer, not that the troubles have been any less, but the vigor with which each officer went at things made it a most successful one.

Our most worthy Secretary has always been very prompt, and had it not been for his coöperation I fear that I should sometimes have been found lacking; he was always ready to help me with anything that I suggested that was for the benefit of the organization. As Treasurer he has always handled the funds of the Society in an entirely satisfactory manner, and whether we owe our credit balance to his services, I leave to his reports. He has done a lot for the Society; he willingly and unstintedly gave of time and money, only thinking of the best interests of the Society.

Our Trustees have always been on the job, likewise the other different departments, and I wish to thank them heartily for the coöperation they have given me in the past, and hope to continue with their coöperation.

I fear that our Library is sadly in need of repair, and hope that we may soon have one that we can be proud of. I believe if our members should look over their own personal libraries, they might find something of which they had an extra copy, or which they had finished with, and would be glad to send us such editions. Any such copies or editions would be appreciated by our Librarian. I received from Fred J. Melville, a noted English collector, a book edited by himself and entitled, "All About Stamps," which will be turned over to the Library.

Last of all, we must express our gratitude to the Committee on Arrangements, who have endeavored to give each of us a most enjoyable time, and I am sure that, after the close of the Convention we will feel indebted to their hospitality.

It may seem to some of our members that at times I did not have the interest of the Society wholly at heart. In answer to this, allow me to say that I ALWAYS have worked for the Society's interest and I am proud to say that we have accomplished quite a bit during our term of office.

I am pleased to welcome those present and regret that the only way I can extend my fraternal greetings to the members who could not attend, is through this report.

Fraternally yours.
C. W. KISSINGER, Pres.

The report of the Secretary-Treasurer, C. V. Webb, showed a wonderful growth numerically in the association during the past year and the figures submitted indicated that the financial situation was secure.

The report of the committee on credentials which had been awaited with much interest because of the political activity shown in the campaign was received after the standing committees had been appointed. Upon the conclusion of the report, it was decided that consideration of it be deferred until the afternoon session.

The afternoon session was called to order at 2 P. M., after a group picture of the delegates had been taken on a flight of steps leading to the Soldiers' Monument. The report of the committee on credentials as read by Mr. Pond, chairman, was divided into three sections; the first concerned a protest against the legality of the election; the second part submitted the numbers of ballots that in the opinion of the committee were valid ones and the third, those ballots which in the estimation of the committee were irregular and technically rejected. The proxy count showed that the president and secretary and their friends were the large holders and held the balance of power.

The debate on the report in so far as it involved the ballots was a somewhat lengthy one that at times became spirited and after the subject had been viewed from different angles, the following equitable arrangement was agreed upon: In view of the fact that the poll of the ballots both valid and invalid, so-called, resulted in no change in result except in the case of the office of exchange manager, it was decided that a special election should be held whereby the members could vote for either Mr. Wallis or Mr. Aldrich, the two candidates for the office of exchange manager. The "valid" ballots showed the election of Mr. Wallis while the "invalid" ballots returned Mr. Aldrich the winner by a large majority. The decision was a compromise measure made in the desire to conserve the welfare of the association and it will work hardship on neither candidate as under the supplementary election there will be no cloud on the title.

The reports of committees were received at this session and regularly disposed of. An address of welcome to the visitors was made by Mr. Harris, the president of the Indianapolis Branch of the Southern Philatelic Association and was warmly applauded.

WEDNESDAY.

The report of the committee on constitution engaged the attention of the members all morning and progress was made in approving the provisions of the new constitution. Finally, the work was adopted as a whole and the association may now rejoice in its possession of a new set of laws which read admirably, we should say. Further committee reports were received and accepted and various questions of policy were discussed.

The fourth and last session was given over to the reading of the constitution and polishing off any rough edges until well along in the day. The protest which had been registered previously attacking the legality of the election and condemning the conduct of the secretary who had made the amende honorable some time before was withdrawn.

The office of secretary-treasurer was separated into two offices, that of secretary and treasurer respectively; and Erwin L. Fischer of Cincinnati was elected to the office of treasurer. It is needless to say that C. W. Kissinger and C. V. Webb had been elected president and secretary, respectively, previously on the general ballot. Among the other officers elected was W. R. Ricketts as librarian; and it is a source of congratulation to the association that Mr. Ricketts accepted the office. Fair allowances were made to the secretary and other officers who receive some remuneration for their work.

The place of next convention was decided in favor of Reading, Pa., in competition with San Antonio, Texas, Los Angeles, California, and Philadelphia, Pa. Reading was an easy winner amid much enthusiasm. After a vote of thanks to the Indianapolis members for their hospitality, the convention adjourned sine die on motion of Mr. Fowler.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—R. W. Boisselier submits a block of the current 8c stamps, with a decided yellow shade, instead of the deep olive usually seen. The difference is quite pronounced.

AUSTRALIA.—We should have stated last week that the 1d King George shown us by W. T. Wilson was the new printing from electrotype plates, instead of from engraved plates like the first printings. The appearance is cheap and unsatisfactory, the finer parts of the engraving muddy and the whole stamp far inferior to former issues. If the Kangaroo design was not strikingly handsome, it had the merit of being simple and the engraving lent itself to the process of surface printing. Whitfield King & Co. have also shown us the new stamp.

Ewen's Weekly collates some interesting information from various Australian papers regarding stamp matters in the Commonwealth. The Melbourne Age says that the new 1d King's Head plates and dies were made by Perkins, Bacon & Co., London. Treasury officials claim that the stamps printed by the electrotype process "are as good, if not better, than those printed by the more expensive steel engraved system." It is intended to print 1,000,000 2d King's Head stamps, 1,000,000 6d stamps with the Kookaburra and 1,000,000 1sh stamps with the black swan as the principal feature.

According to a correspondent of Ewen's Weekly, the electrotyped 1d stamps were issued in Melbourne July 17. The "effect is poor and infinitely inferior to former steel emission. There is too much colour (Kangaroo and Emu are now in solid colour instead of shaded), and there is not enough relief in the new plate. What a blotch of colour it may become when worn. The new copy is full of minor differences from original, but the outstanding one is that the words 'Australia' and 'Postage,' and the numerals are now considerably smaller. These are printed in sheets of 120 in two panes of 60 (6 x 10) as in Kangaroo. Perforation is by single cutters; there are four minute dots of colour off corners of each, four frames to guide this operation, yet it seems impossible to obtain a well centred sheet, perhaps because there is too much space horizontally between rows of stamps and not enough vertically."

The Melbourne Argus says regarding the new stamps:

The design for the new 2d stamps has been approved by Postmaster-General Wynne, and the work of printing the first million will be put in hand at once. The new stamp is to be mauve in colour, and its only adornment will be the head of the King, without any flora or fauna on the margins. Secretary to the Treasury Allen stated that the first of the new stamps would be struck from steel plates by the Federal note printer, but as soon as possible dies would be cut in England so that the cheaper electro process might be substituted. Mr. Allen described the new design as "charming in its simplicity, and one of the nicest we have had yet."

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Hermann Focke reports having received the ½d and 1d values in the "Postage & Revenue" type, and the 3d and 11d values in the "Postage—Postage" type of King George. All the rest of the set is still coming in the Canoe design of 1909.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS
BOSTON, MASS. [eow2

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—According to Ewen's Weekly, the supply of the 3d on yellow tinted paper has been completely exhausted, and the stamp is likely to prove one of the scarcest provisional printings. The 3d King Edward stamp is again current. The next 3d King George stamp is likely to be on full yellow paper.

FIJI ISLANDS.—The Postmaster at Suva, under date of July 30, while sending the new 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d, 5d and 6d stamps with head of King George, informs Mr. Focke that all the King Edward stamps have been withdrawn and are no longer in issue.

FRANCE.—Whitfield King & Co. have also shown us the new Red Cross 10c + 5c stamp, as noted last week. This stamp was placed on sale August 25.

GILBERT & ELLICE ISLANDS.—In a consignment received from these Protectorates Mr. Focke finds the 2d and 2½d of the Pandanus type, and the P.M. informs him that these two values have not as yet appeared with head of King George.

HAYTI.—In a recent letter, Hermann Focke writes:

"You have not heard from me for sometime, owing principally to the fact that no news worth printing has come in, and furthermore the European calamity has to a certain extent 'knocked the gum out of me' and I have little or no inclination to occupy my mind with other things, however wholesome it would be to distract my thoughts for a time at least. Still, today, I can send you a few Haytian provisionals of the issue of February 7, and I believe that these comprise the entire issue of surcharged new values. MEKEEL'S has already chronicled the 1 cent on 50c yellow and must now add the 1 cent on 50c red; 1 cent on 1 piastre purple and 1 cent on 1 piastre claret; Scott's types A19 and A27 of 1906 and 1912. I also enclose the 7 cent on 20c orange red and 7 cent on 50c claret, Scott's A18 of 1904; the latter two provisionals are for domestic postage, in the Gourde currency which is about 25c gold to the Gourde, whereas the piastre represents the U. S. gold dollar."

The two "7 cent" provisionals have the overprint arranged in diamond shape with "7 Fev. 1914" across the centre, "Gl. O. Z." above and "7 cent" below. The others are like the regular Gen.

Zanor overprints, but with an additional line reading "1 Cent de Piastre."

HONDURAS.—Allan Greeley also reports the "10 cent" on 50c rose of 1913, as chronicled in No. 1236.

MEXICO.—Frank B. Eldredge has shown us a curious cover from Torreon, Mexico, recently received in the mail in Attleboro, Mass. The foundation is the 5c orange Hidalgo envelope of 1910. This has "Gobierno Constitucionalista" across the left end, reading up. There is also on the cover a 5c stamp of the Denver issue and a Mexican 10c postage due stamp of 1908. The latter has been surcharged "Gobierno Constitucionalista" in small type, diagonally, reading up, and used for regular postage. This came through by registered mail, though why it was not rated up for additional postage by the United States officials is not clear.

It may interest collectors to know that the new Constitutionalist stamps are not accepted in payment of international postage, writes Hermann Focke, but are affixed to letters as a sort of Surtax. Several letters received from strictly Constitutional territory with only the Denver, etc., labels, had to pay postage due here. It is true that some such letters have escaped the watchful eyes of the proper authorities and have been delivered free of extra charge, but "collectors should, for the present at least, be careful with the revolutionary moneymakers."

NEW ZEALAND.—A correspondent writes to the Postage Stamp that the delay in issuing the new Georgian set is caused by the disapproval of the Postmaster-General, and the die has been returned to England for alteration. As the die must be sent to Wellington and back to England again it will be at least some months before the set can be printed and issued, probably the issue cannot now take place before Christmas.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke reports having seen the ½c, 1c, 2c, 3c, 5c and 25c values of the new issue, reported quite a while ago.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.—The Sterling Stamp Co. submits the 4p dark blue stamp on the paper with single-lined watermark, as noted some time since. This stamp is now being issued in the regular way, and completes the set on the new paper.

S. P. A. PERSONALS.

The Indianapolis members were untiring in their attentions to the visitors and pleasant recollections of the personal side of the conventions are a memento of the delegates. The Indiana capital was inviting in appearance and the streets were enlivened by crowds, a part of which were attracted by the State Fair. The badges of the two dozen delegates to the convention were not inconspicuous in the lobbies of the Claypool Hotel, however, and on the bulletin board of the hotel the time and place of the philatelic meeting were listed.

Monday night found a number of visitors present and the local men lost no time in seeking them out. Tuesday at 1.30 P. M., the group picture was taken but the negative was defective and so, a second photograph was posed for at 4.30 P. M., this time with successful results. In the evening a house party at the home of Mr. E. T. Wallis at Irvington was a most enjoyable occasion. There were music, cards, stamps and refreshments in abundance, Mr. and Mrs. Wallis were delightful entertainers and the evening indeed was a merry one.

On Wednesday night the Indianapolis members gave a banquet to the visitors in Parlor K of the hotel which was followed by an auction sale at which many good stamps were disposed of by Henry Ades Fowler, the impromptu auctioneer.

President Harris of the Indianapolis Branch had his auto at the convenience of guests and he was a wizard at the wheel. He safely conducted fourteen of the stamp folks to the hotel from Mr. Wallis' home in Irvington and his auto protested only to the extent of a low moan or two and a suppressed groan now and then, so seductively did he cajole his car.

Mr. C. L. Pond worked on the committee on credentials until his last drop of perspiration had oozed away. The ballots and proxies were counted and then the report had to be presented in a way not to offend the most fastidious. Mr. Pond qualified as a diplomat under all emergencies and exigencies.

Mr. Eben S. Martin was keen in debate and entered earnestly into the proceedings. He had certain things in mind and he felt that they were better left said than unsaid.

Every now and then President Kissinger felt the restraints of his dignified position and called the Vice President pro tem, Mr. Severn, to the chair so as to work off his enthusiasm in the well-known few remarks.

Secretary Webb's conduct at the convention was impeccable and he filled his difficult role to the utmost satisfaction. He made friends by his tactful course, we are sure.

We all felt better after the earnest prayer of the Rev. Willis D. Engle and it is the first time on record we believe that a stamp convention was opened under such inspiring circumstances.

Mr. Erwin L. Fischer gained the confidence of members so completely that they turned over their money to him gladly. The new chancellor of the exchequer showed some of the Indianapolis men how he fills the treasury when it runs low.

Will nothing make Mr. L. T. Brodstone unhappy? He was all smiles before and after his paper was almost unanimously chosen as official journal for another year. He probably knew that he had a sure thing.

Mr. Henry Ades Fowler was the handy man of the convention. He worked and he played and his voice was always at its best. As an auctioneer he kept the crowd in a good humor, while he airily extracted its coin.

Mr. Charles Roemer was a center of interest and he guarded the sanctity of the name, Southern Philatelic Association so faithfully that none dared to tamper with it.

Mr. E. T. Wallis was the busy bee of the convention and he was always to the fore as guide, philosopher and friend. He may know that his efforts were appreciated and that his reward is in good wishes of the visitors.

Mr. Albert E. Gorham, the expounder of the constitution was a valuable addition to the gathering and as a parliamentarian his aptitude made an impression. The manner in which he poured oil on the troubled waters would cause John D. to chortle with glee.

Then there were others—and as for the Indianapolis lot, the cataloguer would describe them as fine specimens and an ornament to any collection.

WAR STAMPS WE MAY EXPECT.

The first notice of special war stamps in connection with the titanic struggle now progressing on the Continent was contained in a recent issue of this journal, where it was stated that: "We learn from an authoritative source that the French Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, M. Thomson, has authorised the issue of a particular postage stamp of the value of 15 centimes to be available for inland postage only, the extra five centimes being handed over to the Red Cross Funds."

This, therefore, is the first philatelic product of the Great War. "From where," we may well ask, "will the next war stamp (or stamps) emanate?"

In attempting to answer a question of this sort one must turn to the past philatelic histories of the combatants involved and base one's theories upon such history. At the present moment no country is more in the public eye than Belgium, and so it is to this kingdom that we look for the first signs of War depicted on stamps.

That the Belgians believe in issuing special stamps for a good purpose is clearly shown by the 1910 Brussels Exhibition issue which were sold at double face; the proceeds being devoted to charity.

What, therefore, could be more natural than that the Belgians should issue a series of War stamps to celebrate the part they have played in the War of Wars—and incidentally to help and support all those homes deprived of everything that is dear to them.

To turn to the more Eastern theatre of operations, it is by no means improbable that Russia may, sooner or later, provide us with a new series which might serve the same cause as the well-known 1905 Charity War Stamps. It is true that under normal circumstances we philatelists eye the issue of commemoratives—or "unnecessary issues," as we term them—with contempt. But a stamp or issue produced to raise money for a good and great cause cannot be regarded in the same light, more especially is this the case at present, when enormous sums of money will be—and are—required to help all those made homeless and destitute through the cruel ravages of War.

Should Servia overrun Bosnia, the land of the "million perfs" may open a new page in our albums—but all must be (at the best) wild conjecture for some time to come. Quite apart from actual special war issues—including new Togoland stamps?—there will certainly be some interesting Field Post Office covers and postmarks brought out.—Stamp Collecting.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

A FEW SUGGESTIONS CONCERNING BLANK ALBUMS.

As new stamps are issued, collectors often wonder where to put them since there are no printed spaces for them in their albums. In too many cases the new stamps find places on the margin of the page, thus spoiling the effect of the entire sheet. Sometimes, too, the collector artistically or otherwise rules spaces for the stamps, usually with poor results, from point of beauty. The same remarks apply to the oddities, shades, etc. that accumulate in every collection.

To overcome these faults, the writer would suggest that every collector equip himself with a blank album to use in addition to his printed book. These albums may be obtained from a few cents up to several dollars, according to the desires of the collector. Later, too, when the collection has passed the "infant" stage and is quite large, or is to be specialized, the collector will find it necessary to mount it in blank albums, as the printed albums are not at all satisfactory for large collections where any attempt at specializing or including pairs, blocks, shades, or minor varieties is made.

The writer has had quite a little experience with blank albums of various kinds, and uses them entirely at the present time. A very nice album can be made by purchasing some quadrille ruled paper and a loose leaf binder from almost any stationer. It is quite essential that the album be loose leaf, for the difference in cost is very slight, and the extra convenience is worth the difference many times.. In fact, a bound album is almost out of the question if any attempt at decorating is to be made. In Chicago, is possible to purchase a very neat oth bound ring binder in various sizes r from 25c to 50c. The same in leath- is very much higher priced, but is ier, of course. The paper can be ob- ained for about 50c a package.

For new issues, an album size 7½ by ½ is quite suitable. This accommo- ates a page size 6 by 9. A page of this ze is just right for a single set of amps, or several short sets. The quad- lle or "squared" paper is the best to se, in the writer's opinion, as the quares aid materially in placing the amps in straight lines, with even spac- g. These two features are absolutely ssential in designing an artistic page. lothing spoils the effect of a page so much as a row of stamps mounted at any distance whatever, without regard for uniformity, or in a crooked line.

In mounting your stamps, avoid crowding them. Wherever possible, allow two or three squares between the stamps. Also, it is a good idea to allow the same number of spaces between rows as between stamps. In designing the pages, do not mount your stamps in row after row, like this:

1 2 3 4 5 6
7 8 9 1 2 3
4 5 6 7 8 9

Instead, space them in lines of different lengths, making more of a variety in the album, for instance:

      1 2 3                 1 2 3
4 5 6 7 8 9           4 5 6 7 8 9
1 2 3 4 5 6           1 2 3 4 5 6
      7 8 9                 1 2 3

Many artistic patterns can be worked out with a little careful study, and will make the book even more beautiful and interesting than a printed album.

In planning an album page, the only way to do is to work out different designs with the stamps until one is found that is satisfactory. A design that may look well with one set will not be suitable for another.

As a help in finding spacings quickly, a scale may be made by using a sheet of the squared paper. After mounting this sheet on a piece of stiff pasteboard, rule a number of lines below each other, making the first one one square in length, the second two squares, and so on, up to eight or ten. A little experience with this scale will enable one to find the required distance readily without the work of counting the squares. Also, the various distances may be counted off on one side of the paper, near the edge, ruling one square in length first, two squares next, etc. It is advisable to number these lengths.

The matter of lettering and designing a blank album is largely up to the collector. If he is a good draughtsman, he should experience little trouble, and should get much enjoyment from the work. If the collector intends to go into this work to any extent, he should purchase a ruling pen, dividers or compass, drawing ink (black, is best, though red or other colors may be used for initials, etc.) drawing pencil of medium hardness to erase easily, a short rule with metal edge, a good ink eraser, and a "clean-up" eraser. This equipment looks rather extensive in print, but does not cost a great deal. Also, if the collector is not versed in drawing, a book of alphabets will prove its worth many times over. These books cost from 50c up, but are very handy for any sort of designing. The question of what style pen to use should be settled by the artist. Personally, I find it best to use several pens, according to the style of letters I wish to make.

In lettering the pages, work for uniformity. Use the same style of lettering throughout the book. In my collection, I use plain block letters slightly less than one-eighth inch in height. Avoid making your letters too large. When possible, I work on a line of the ruling, of the paper. This necessitates only one pencil ruling for a guide line. I ink in my letters free hand, but would not suggest this until the artist has practiced this work a little. After a little experience, he will find it easy to letter the pages, and will find that it makes a neater job if the pencil lettering is dispensed with. However, rule your guide line! A mark or variation of the size of a pin point will spoil the effect of a hand lettered page, so use care that your words are in an absolutely straight line. In wording, make your expressions as short and concise as possible. Learn to balance your words, so as not to give the whole page an uneven appearance or make it look "one-sided." In spacing your stamps, make allowance for lettering. However, space your stamps first. To prevent any accidents, space your stamps by a fine pencil mark at each corner of the space, and do not mount until after the lettering has been completed. To balance the page find your center lines, horizontal and vertical. In lettering, have the exact center of each line of lettering pass through the center vertical line (except in case of notations under or over stamps not in center of page, in which case, center of phrase should be on a line with the center of the stamp.) There is little need to explain this, as the artist should be able to determine this for himself if he has any eye for proportion.

A good plan is to write out the phrase first, on a separate paper, find the center letters, and work backwards and forwards from the center line. A guess will most usually fail in this work, so don't try it.

After the ink is dry, the soft "clean-up" eraser may be rubbed over it, removing the pencil guide lines and the usual fingermarks which will accompany the drawing.

For titles, the writer has a unique scheme which has proven very satisfactory. As my albums are quite full, I use the transparent paper designed for interleaving to prevent rubbing. On the transparent interleaf preceding each country, I outline the name of the country by tracing a large alphabet, the letters being nearly one inch in height. I use red ink for the initial letter, and black for the balance. As this paper is not absorbent, it is not good policy to make letters solid, as the ink will cause the paper to wrinkle in drying. I also work out maps and other designs on this paper, as well as the various notations and descriptions. In this way, the actual pages of my book are free from lengthy descriptions which are apt to mar the appearance of the sheet. Of course, it is not necessary to use this transparent paper, though it is advantageous for large albums, more especially of types other than the ring binders.

In connection with the subject of lettering, let me state that all perforation varieties are more easily distinguished by mounting them on either black paper such as is used by jewelers on a space with a blackened border.

The problem of ruling and lettering is much harder for the collector who does not use quadrille ruled paper. Much greater care should be exercised in spacing, mounting, and lettering, as these are all apt to go astray without the guide lines. As these extra stamps are so liable to crowd a page, I think it best to have a separate book for them, since the book can be obtained for little money.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M. N.—In many cases, great quantities of unused stamps especially the lower values, have come on the market from government channels after the stamps were demonetized, or made invalid for postal duty. It is a practice of some governments to sell all remainders, usually to the highest bidder, as new issues appear, or shortly afterward. Sometimes these stocks are absorbed without affecting the market, other times the price drops. Of course, the vast majority of old issues are almost unobtainable in this way, or even in any quantity any way. Only the more speculative issues are sold below face as a rule. When a stamp is demonetized, it loses its face value. Seebecks were printed for some time after they were obsolete, but the plates have now been destroyed. Genuine Seebecks are very scarce, as these later issues are the reprints almost always found.

Punched copies of Revenues are not as desirable as copies cancelled otherwise. The same applies to any punched stamp.

F. J.—I note your remarks about your 1c black U. S. 1908. As no black stamps were in print at that time, it is very improbable that this stamp was printed in error. I am of the opinion that some chemical process or similar treatment has changed the stamps in question. To settle the question, would you mind showing this stamp to our Mr. Severn, 714 Oxford Building, some time when you are in that vicinity. It is possible that some error has crept through undetected as yet.

Your illustration evidently represents a religious label of some sort, for charity or advertising purposes. I am not familiar with it. You are really a very good philatelic illustrator.

WAR IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY!

Think of the intense interest young folks all over this country are taking in the great events which will change the map of Europe! How much more exciting than ordinary now becomes the collecting of stamps from these warring countries! Think of the new collections that will be started as soon as German and Swiss toys become scarce. Think of the way St. Nicholas has been urging purchases of stamp albums, running prize contests for stamp collectors, and encouraging parents to aid their children in this hobby. Think of the leisure time you will have to build up this splendid class of trade now that most of the professional trade is dull. If you are looking for business opportunities, let us tell you why St. Nicholas can help you.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE, Managing Editor.

The men who contribute to this symposium are men of long experience in the stamp business. They have seen seasons of prosperity, and possibly depression, but the present outlook does not belong in the latter class. The sentiments expressed in the following summary would seem to indicate that the United States collector will profit by the stock that must come on the market but in the most of this business the American dealer will be the channel through which the stream of stamps will pass.

We cannot rejoice in the course of events that retards and destroys business in our sister countries, but the great disaster will not diminish the great interest that America is experiencing in stamp collecting circles. The collector who can afford his stamp purchasing pleasures will find the winter of 1914-15 the best year he has ever known to build up the contents of his album.

We append some opinions relative to the trade situation that will prove of more than ordinary interest and by virtue of his years of experience we give the veteran dealer, J. W. Scott of New York City, first place:—

J. W. SCOTT CO., N. Y. City.

The "Stamp Season" opens the day after Labor Day and always has since Mr. J. W. Scott created the stamp business in New York over fifty years ago. The business of the firm has shown a steady advance from the first year to the present day, a fact so universally known that remarks on our business are unnecessary.

Will business be better or worse? Will prices be higher or lower? What effect will the war have on the stamp trade?

First, we can all be sure of one thing, and that is, as long as civilization lasts, there will be stamp collectors. We do not anticipate any special change this year. Business will improve in October as it always does. Some people in the Eastern cities will lose their positions and be unable to spend as much as formerly, but against these, we can place the farmers of the great West who are experiencing unprecedented prosperity. The average collector is of moderate means, and will spend as much as ever he did, while to the millionaire amateur, losses or gains are of small importance as regards his usual mode of life. Business will be good.

The proposition of prices is not as clear. A number of foreign collections may be offered at low figures which would reduce prices, but it would increase the number of collectors, and thus cause an advance. New issues must advance in price, because money orders to foreign countries cannot be had. Rates of exchange have gone up and war risks have to be taken into consideration.

We now come to the organized robbery and murder now affecting the greater part of the world. Without considering which party is likely to be the nominal victor, all must be impoverished to exhaustion. Foreign trade is eliminated from our calculation, and, in a comparatively short time, the United States will have the trade of the world. The great boom in business may commence in the Spring, or it may be put off for another year, but nothing on earth can prevent or long hold back the business boom which will enrich everyone in America, and make stamp collecting more popular than ever before. It will enrich every amateur who has had sense enough to purchase when stamps can be had at reasonable figures, before the great advance in prices which postage stamps must share with all other commodities.—J. W. SCOTT.

SCOTT STAMP & COIN CO., N. Y. City.

A very natural and general subject of conversation in stamp circles to-day is the probable effect of the European war upon stamp collecting. In this city the general tone is quietly optimistic. For our own part we see no special occasion for worry, but rather the contrary. Stamp collecting and dealing are firmly established, and have passed through several periods of business depression in the last twenty years without suffering any decrease in the number of collectors or serious reductions in prices.

H. F. COLMAN,
Second National Bank Bldg., WASHINGTON, D. C.

Collections of great value are necessarily in the hands of men of wealth. They have bought their stamps for amusement, and are not forced to part with them when the market is dull. They may, perhaps, limit their purchases for a time, but there is very little probability that they will be willing to part with their collections at great sacrifice or have occasion to do so. In the same way the large stocks of stamps are held by well established firms with good financial backing and credit. They are well prepared to meet periods of slack business, and to make the most of opportunities to build up their stocks by advantageous purchases.

It is quite probable that when the war is over—though we fear the end is not in the near future—some people in Europe may feel it necessary or desirable to dispose of their collections and may send them to this country for sale. Every year numerous collections are sold here at auction and to the dealers, and the stamp market is stimulated by the sales; why then should we fear a bad effect if a few more or better collections than usual change hands? We feel that the fine collections and the big stocks are too firmly held for any hasty attempts at disposing of them, and that any anticipations of a stamp panic and a wrecked market are unwarranted.

On the other hand we look for revived and increased interest in stamp collecting and a greatly enlarged number of buyers especially for stamps of low and moderate prices. The experience of the past has been that war calls attention to stamps and stimulates collecting. When two countries have been at war there has always been a demand for their stamps. How much greater may we expect the interest and the demand to be when a war is being waged that involves so many of the greatest countries of Europe and may possibly draw others into it and that commands the almost breathless attention of the whole world.

We predict that many collectors who have dropped their stamps will resume collecting, that a very great number of new collectors will be made, especially among young people and school children. We anticipate greatly increased sales of albums and stamps to beginners, especially the issues of the countries involved in and adjacent to the great conflict. An improvement can already be noticed in what might be called the small business, the sale of sets, packets and medium priced stamps.

A change in the government of a country or colony invariably brings a demand for its stamps. The rule holds good today, and the stamps of a few German colonies that have passed into other control and of some that are regarded as liable to so pass are already in demand.

We regard the business outlook as good and the prospects encouraging for an active and prosperous winter in the stamp business.

E.B.POWER, Mgr. STANLEY GIBBONS Inc.

During June and July of this year the usual summer dullness was upon us and, therefore, we had no reasonable basis on which to judge the winter business. Commercial trade has been bad in the United States for more than a year and the stamp business has, I think, suffered less than other lines. In August, almost immediately upon the outbreak of war, our particular business began to slow up. Active buyers suddenly reported "no more stamps till things settle." The result has been a heavy falling off of receipts. As a continuing force we expected to have heavy liquidation offerings of stamps for sale which have failed to materialize. In fact, early U.S. are selling at stiffer prices than ever. I have been repeatedly asked what, in my opinion, will be the result of this European conflict on stamps here. I believe, firstly, that a very large quantity of really good stamps will be actually destroyed. Secondly, I believe that European dealers will hold on to their merchandise and commence business as soon as hostilities are over. I do not believe there will be any dumping of much foreign material over here because the dealers could not replace the goods at the prices an overloaded auction field would produce. As far as American dealers are concerned I find, on almost daily conferences with one or more, a distinct feeling of optimism not in the business of today but tomorrow. America now has the opportunity of her life to capture and hold trade that has never been hers owing to the opposition to a mercantile marine. America can manufacture anything if her manufacturers are only given encouragement. Why should we buy European matches, European dyes, European fashions, European clothes, etc. What is the matter with American matches, American dyes—oh yes, they can be done easily—American dresses and American clothes and wools and whatnot. Therein lies the point for the stamp dealer. The money you pay for the European match goes to Europe and is spent in Europe and the European stamp dealer gets your money which the American dealer should get. Personally we believe that a little more commercial patriotism is needed here. Our American stamp dealers are an honest

NEW ENGLAND STAMP CO., Boston, Mass.

What is to be the effect of the war on the stamp business?
First—uncertainty.
Next—a tremendous increase in general interest.
Then—the largest sale of albums, supplies for new collectors, etc., between November 1st and May 1st, ever known.
Lastly—the number of real collectors in the end will be greatly multiplied.
Uncertainty at first is only natural. It would be foolish to ignore the fact that certain lines of business (notably bankers and stock brokers, and merchants who either as importers or exporters have extensive business relations with those countries now at war) are seriously interfered with, temporarily at least, by the great European war, or to minimize the fact that the stamp collectors engaged in those lines of business will naturally curtail their stamp purchases. Some may even cease buying altogether for a while. This loss can be offset only by increased purchases by others who are already collectors or by new converts to philately. It is almost wholly to the latter class that dealers must look to make good their losses on account of those who drop by the wayside.
This will take time, therefore we may expect uncertainty for some weeks. The greatest loss will, of course, come from those who buy the higher priced stamps. This must be made up by new buyers taking their places. Under ordinary circumstances, this would take considerable time, but the very war itself is going to help us out. It will awaken renewed interest in enough old time collectors to make business brisk in far less time than would ordinarily be the case.
There is, of course, the possibility of a slump in the auction market, caused by a certain proportion of auction buyers dropping out temporarily and a possible influx of collections sent from abroad to be disposed of by this method. I do not believe that so much as some people think will be put on the market in this way, but this factor can not wholly be ignored.
I can not see any possibility of serious trouble in any other direction. That the number of young people, and of older ones who perhaps might be classed as medium buyers will increase and multiply as soon as colder weather sets in, is as certain as is that same colder weather.
Now as to the further effects of the war. I have been in the stamp business without a lapse, for more than forty-five years, first as an agent for other dealers, next as a buyer of collections which I broke up and distributed among a circle of personal customers, and for twenty odd years as a sole means of livelihood. I therefore should be in a position to judge (as well as anyone can of the future) as regards stamp business, and if experience is worth anything, I should be able to take advantage of it. Looking back I well remember the first great boom in stamp collecting. It came during and following the Franco-Prussian War in 1870.
I lived in Salem then as now. Every afternoon I went to the store of S. E. Cassino, afterward the publisher of the Boston Stamp Book, who had a counter about ten feet long in his father's picture store and for a time the stamp business threatened to swamp the picture business. Mr. Cassino had two assistants and at times I too helped to wait upon customers. There never was a time from 1 P. M. until 6 P. M. that there were not anywhere from six to ten customers trying to get to that counter. In those days a stamp was a stamp, Hamburg locals were as good as many stamps that are now worth dollars.
Personally, I was in clover; many of my companions were the sons of Salem merchants and sea captains and the harvest I gleaned from them I regularly sold to Cassino for big prices. He had to buy in order to sell. This boom lasted for 10 years and was the direct result of the Franco-Prussian War.
Will history repeat itself? In my opinion, yes. Every boy and girl in the United States to say nothing of their elders, is reading the war news, and the connection between taking an interest in other countries and collecting the stamps issued by those countries is so close that it needs no prophet to understand why the sale of albums the coming Christmas and following spring will be the greatest in all stamp history. I know that other dealers and particularly the album makers share this belief, and are preparing to supply the goods. Can anyone doubt that the number of collectors will be multiplied many fold, old collectors will have their interest renewed, young people in great numbers will join the ranks, parents and friends will take the fever from the young and a wave of stamp collecting will sweep around the world that will not recede for years.
The New England Stamp Company will back up this belief; we have been advertising for months to buy good things with very barren results. We are prepared on very short notice to buy a collection and pay cash anywhere from $5,000 to $100,000; we have done it before and will be only too glad to do it again. What we want, however, is cream and not skim milk. Other business may have its ups and downs but, as soon as cooler weather sets in, the stamp business will have a boom that can be likened only to that following the Franco-Prussian War.—A. W. BATCHELDER.

NASSAU STAMP CO.

The stamp market seems to be sold out with very little offered for sale,—much less than usual. I found the same conditions prevailing on the other side and whatever U.S. stamps were obtainable were held at prices considerably in excess of our local market quotations.
There is no doubt that the war will have a decided effect upon stamp values and I look for a considerable advance in prices.
The history of past wars shows that paintings, books, manuscripts and other works of art have enhanced greatly in value after every such period, owing to the destruction of such property. Postage stamps are now recognized as belonging to this class.
The greatest stamp collecting nations are now at war with each other and in the attendant destruction of property, millions of dollars worth of stamps will undoubtedly be destroyed and as soon as the collectors and dealers attempt to replace their losses the prices must go up in accordance with the natural law.
However serious matters may appear on the other side, the domestic market does not seem to be affected to any great extent. Our business has been better during the past few weeks than at any corresponding period for the past several years, which, if it is a forecast of what is still to come, means that we are facing one of the most prosperous years in our business existence. JOHN A. KLEMANN.

FROM VARIOUS CENTRES.

Philately is a hobby of peace and when war comes the album must be laid aside. When the world's greatest philatelic nations are engaged in strife its effect must be and is felt by us in America.

To the United States the war will open a new era. The bumper crop now being marketed at high prices, the increased demands that will be made on our merchants and manufacturers will bring to us great prosperity.

In the winter evenings about to come, countless albums will be opened and our farmer, merchant, manufacturer will become philatelists and in adding to their treasurers forget the little troubles of the day.—FRED MICHAEL.

Business is good—Sales above corresponding period last year, partly due to flurry over white backs and incoming current new issues—I predict a steady local, season trade. Collectors will be on the alert for any temporary issues. —J. A. GALBRAITH.

There is one rift in the clouds,—buying must be done in America, and some good will come of it. if these fellows who think they must buy abroad only learn what decent sort of chaps we American dealers are. Our August business was the best we have ever had.—B. L. DREW & Co.

1915 will be the chance for this generation to acquire stamps—good things at fair prices but let no one think they are going to be given away. Our July and August sales away ahead of a year ago, and we can see nothing but a busy year from now on. A square deal for buyer and seller—confidence in your dealer and this season's business will be the best ever.—W. L. ALDRICH.

I, of course, believe the war will somewhat effect business with those who have European clientage. However, it might keep many good things in this country, which will be a great benefit to our collectors. I am starting in the auction field this season with sales of United States exclusively and I am very grateful to find that many collectors are enthusiastic over this innovation. I think the business in this country is without limit, if collectors can get what they want. The demand for United States stamps has been wonderful during the summer and I have recorded some record months. For the past four or five years, I have noted that American collectors are becoming more exacting, due no doubt to the wonderful detailed work that some of our eminent men have been doing. I am preparing for a busy season and early indications certainly point to such a condition.—WENDOVER NEEFUS.

I believe that for the next six or eight months the market will be firm and expect quite a substantial business. As to the war, should it terminate within the next two or three months, there is little question in my mind but that the United States will be the dumping ground for innumerable foreign collections, but I believe our market is capable of absorbing all of these without any great decrease in prices.—E. R. WOOD of WOODWIRTH Co.

NO WONDER MR. KRASSA ADVERTISES.

"Against the above Mr. Krassa is somewhat pessimistic—altho' he showed me that he had received $150 worth of orders from a seven dollar ad. in your Boston contemporary. Some contemporary."

This is taken from the New York correspondence of the Philadelphia Stamp News. May we suggest that it teaches a powerful story.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—If those dealers who have had dealings or experiences with J. L. A. Couture, Quebec, who was mentioned in our issue of August 8th, in connection with a request made by him for stamps on approval from the Postage Stamp Company of San Francisco, will submit particulars to Mr. L. B. Lincoln, room 1112, at 112 W. Adams Street, Chicago, it may prove ultimately to their advantage.

—From Mr. E. C. Dodd, LaGrange, Illinois, we have received a wholesale price list of twenty-four pages, which reflects the huge size of Mr. Dodd's stock. The list speaks for itself and no doubt the prices tell an eloquent tale.

—Herman Boers, sending in a clipping dealing with the pigeon post service in the siege of Paris 1870, tells us that blocks of 1895, 10c and 50c must be scarce. Not one offer did he receive on a recent advt.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Allen S. Davenport and H. W. Boers.

SONORA.

Re-issue of the Green Seal Stamps.

By BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

Those newspaper readers who have followed the trend of events in Mexico of late will no doubt have gathered that the Constitutionalists are by no means unanimous in their opinions just now with the result that the sovereign state of Sonora is in a state of revolt. Of course this has had its effect on the postage stamps used in the state, and, temporarily at any rate, the type-set stamps have been reverted to as these bear the proper designation of the State of Sonora. First of all, however, let me quote from a Tucson, Arizona, newspaper report published in the early part of this month (September):—

"The postoffice in Nogales, Sonora, is a busy place these days. Throngs of people crowd the lobby at all times of the day, as it is now necessary to mail everything for the south, through the postoffice window only temporary, but it is causing no end of inconvenience to the patrons of the office. The Carranza officials left with all the stamps that were on hand at the time, and the new administration is unable to get any more for the present. The result is that everything has to be paid for in cash. To complicate matters further, the present officials will not allow the use of the last edition of stamps as sold by the former officials.

Francisco Velasco, postmaster-general of Sonora, has issued a circular in which he prohibits future use of Constitutionalist stamps upon mail matter in the state. Maytorena stamps have been prepared and must be used instead, the circular stated.

In cases where letters bear the Constitutionalist stamp, they will be carried through to their destination, but the postage will be collected at the other end.

Slight as the order may seem in its effect, its promulgation has caused much bitterness among the anti-Maytorena faction. They declare that it but emphasizes what they have insisted all along—that Maytorena is attempting to set up a separate government, deriving its revenues from the usual governmental channels and has no intention of obeying the order of Generals Villa and Obregon."

From the above it is clear that all the Constitutionalist stamps, including the "G.C.M." surcharges and the so-called Denver issue, have no franking power in Sonora itself. For a few days postage had to be paid in cash and as this caused considerable inconvenience the authorities had to make strenuous endeavors to supply postage stamps of some sort. It so happened that the forms used for printing the type-set stamps of 1913 had been carefully kept standing at the printing office in Hermosillo and it was decided to resuscitate the stamps with green seal overprint, printing them from the original type-set forms. The forms were, of course, those that had been used for the stamps with black roulette all round there being one form for the black portion of the stamps—identical in all values—and a form for the red portion which had to be altered to serve for the several denominations. The values issued were the same as before, viz.:—1c, 2c, 3c, 5c and 10c. The 5c has the large thick numeral, so rare in the original stamps, but as they have black roulette all round they are easily distinguishable. The same remark applies to the 10c for the originals were not issued with the black roulette. These two denominations, therefore, constitute entirely new varieties, but the 1c, 2c and 3c are so like the original stamps that they can best be described as reissues. In fact when used, or in singles, many of the types would be difficult to distinguish from the originals though they can easily be differentiated when in entire sheets.

Speaking generally they represent a very worn state of the type, being a later state than the original 1c which was. I believe, the last of the green seals to be printed with black roulette all round. On all the sheets I have examined the "red" is a deep dull color, almost a dull carmine,—whereas in the original issue this color is generally bright.

The five types are all as follows:—

A.—The Z of Marzo is a wrong font letter and the O of Centavo (s) at right is a cypher.

B.—The date, 1913, is 19!3, though it is indistinct. The O in Centavo (s) at left is a cypher and the letters E and T of the same word are badly broken.

C.—1913 is printed !913 and the T of Centavo (s) at left is badly shaped. The right hand scale in the green seal has a distinct uncolored flaw projecting from its base.

D.—1913 is printed 19!3. The C of Centavo (s) at right is a wrong font letter and the C at right is very thin.

E.—The t of Estado is very thin.

Stamp Dealers Go Out of Business.

No, your name does not appear in this list because as soon as the war started you immediately saw the splendid opportunity afforded to develop trade among interested and enthusiastic youngsters. You foresaw that many people would buy albums for Christmas presents instead of expensive imported toys. You also anticipated the feverish interest the youngsters would take in getting a complete foreign collection before the map of Europe changed. So you looked carefully around, selected the magazine with the 43-year reputation, and the stamp department that had done so much to encourage stamp collecting; the magazine that went to people who could afford 25 cents for a young folks' magazine, where you could be sure of dealing with carefully brought up folks. And you started your campaign in St. Nicholas and built up such a splendid business, that you not only got safely over dull times in the professional world, but built up a line which promises to be as great a success as that of other well-known stamp houses. If you want this to really be your experience, now is the time to start and St. Nicholas is the starter. Let us help you.

THE SEASON'S GREETINGS.

The stamp season is on!

This particular number of the WEEKLY will have compelling force in stimulating any wavering interest and in increasing the present day ardor in stamp collecting as an ideal hobby.

Who can look through this issue without being impressed with the truth of the words spoken by some of our veteran dealers? We do not need to quote them, they speak for themselves!

American collectors cannot help profiting by the great war now being waged in Europe. We did not want it, we would have prevented it if possible and we can only hope and pray that our beloved nation may remain a neutral nation to the very end.

In the months to come the United States must needs be a busy spot and philatelists will share in the general prosperity. In the meantime do not forget that the enterprizing stamp dealer gives his best offers newspaper publicity and the columns of this paper are just bulging with tempting bargains.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

The War—Not a few of our readers have written to us for an opinion on the probable effect of the war on stamp collecting in this country; and for a time, we answered such inquiries by letter but the question is now asked by subscribers in some number and it becomes advisable to speak on the subject publicly. We must confess that even though the request shows a flattering regard for our views yet our remarks are in no way "inspired" or based on any information that is private or secret. So, dismissing any claims to prescience, we can but base our observations on the opinions that come to us from all over the country from different sources ranging from the humblest to the highest. We have correspondents throughout the country who write us occasionally or when they have some subject of interest to discuss. The war which has made so painful an impression on all thinking persons has occupied the attention of these unattached members of our staff and we have been in receipt of many views from correspondents for whose words we have respect.

No Alarm—It is noticed that those who question us about the war in its relation to philately in America are not disposed to take a pessimistic stand but rather it is almost invariably asked if the times are not propitious for investment in certain lines of stamps that may be said to be in the war zone. The inquiries proceed not from any uneasiness but from an intention to take a speculative advantage of the situation, if possible. So there is no fear of the stability of philately reflected in the minds of these people. Instead, a belief in the permanency and growth of the pursuit is confirmed by the wish to seize the speculative chance so dear to the hearts of our collectors, not so much for the sake of the dollar, you know, as for the satisfaction of the thing.

In This Country—If we are to confine ourselves to a consideration of conditions in this country, we need only say that the war has curtailed the importation of continentals and wholesale lots from French and German dealers; and while this restriction is real, it is not particularly serious as there is much reserve stock in this country. New issues are coming in smaller number from the dealers who conduct a service of the kind but it is almost certain that the normal quantity again will be supplied within a short time or when the period of adjustment is over. Broadly, domestic conditions are not disturbed to any extent even approaching restiveness. We learn that there is no hasty or undue liquidation of stamps and while perhaps stamps are being used rather freely as collateral, there is no radical movement to alarm the most conservative. As we have said, there is no great pressure on the market by the unloading of large holdings, or forced sales; and if there was no war, the present conditions would not excite apprehension. The market is too seasoned for a slump now and offerings will be in such demand that the equilibrium will be held. We cannot conceive of that emergency or exigency that will make prices fall materially and our faith is such that philately will sustain a level on a par with business generally,—aye, we think that it will do this and a little more.

Firm in the Faith—We who are in the ranks of philately professionally and who are convinced of its firm foundation know that collecting will be shaken only when all else is, likewise. On this premise, we know that philately will not be singled out for attack. A reason for the security of our pursuit is that no real speculation enters into it. Of course, collectors buy for investment or even speculation but they do not overbuy; and what is more to the point they do not borrow the money for the purpose of buying stamps for a future rise. Dealers who did big business with Europe and who constantly were on the alert for really good things for their customers abroad will feel the harsh effects of war but on the contrary, the collectors in this country will have the chance to obtain these select stamps on favorable terms. The average dealer will pursue the even tenor of his way and will be only slightly affected by the war. We believe that stamp collecting will be welcomed as a foil for the strenuous thought that all citizens are devoting to the war and that it will increase in the number of its followers here even under the dark conditions that are prevailing abroad.

Sobieski—Mr. Fred G. Ross, New York City, calls our attention to the following paragraph from a special cable to the New York American. The characteristics of the prisoners captured from the Austrians by the Russians are discussed in a Russian publication and the Galician troops among the captives are represented as having said: "When we left Vienna, we were told the Austrians had taken Belgrade. At Cracow we were told that all Servia was conquered and the army was approaching Nish and that the Germans had entered Warsaw. When we were lead to positions we were informed that a Polish monarchy was already established, proof of which was shown by stamps with the effigy of King Sobieski the Third." This is a case of philately to the fore and lots of other things.

From Germany—Mr. Paul J. Miller, Poughkeepsie, New York, writes: "Thinking it might be of interest to you, I beg to inform you that on a letter received from Germany there are three different inscriptions stamped as follows: One showing that the letter could be forwarded sealed; a second showing stamp of the General Commando and the third, giving permission of officers to allow the letter to pass sealed.

Now the Due Stamps—Letters have been coming with the postage due stamps of Mexico, 1908, surcharged for the use of the constitutionalists and we suppose that the enthusiastic collectors of the "rebel" stamps will give them a hearty welcome on the theory that one cannot get too much of a good thing.

* * *

Dealers Beware—Commenting on the recent stamp thefts from dealers in New York City and of the Chapman stamps from the New York exhibition last year and the robbery of Mr. H. F. Colman, Washington, D. C., Mr. "C. Beck" in the Philadelphia Stamp News makes the plausible observation that an organized band of thieves may be operating at the expense of the dealers and that further a "fence" for the disposal of the stamp spoil may be in existence. We suppose that dealers generally will be alert to prevent losses of the kind and no doubt, they have in mind, the character of the booty that has been stolen so that they may act accordingly if it is offered to them.

THE WAR'S EFFECT ON BELGIUM.

St. Michael and the Dragon.—Every stamp collector remembers the Exhibition stamps of Brussels issued in 1896, whereon the patron of the city, St. Michael, is shewn victorious over Satan, as we may yet hope that King Albert will crush under his heel the many-fanged Teuton plunderer. The Londoner in the Evening News has something to say of St. Michael's City:—

St. Michael is patron of Brussels. He warred against the dragon. You see him in the armorial shield of Brussels, thrusting hard with his spear, and you see that it was a terrible dragon, a scaly, brazen beast, that trailed along, as spiky as a German army. But I believe that St. Michael had the better of the dragon. I believe that he will win again and see the wounded dragon go lolloping back to its nest in the sand wastes and marshes of Prussia.

To-day's map may show the Dragon with one claw in Brussels market place. I see it, curve beyond curve, writhing from Turnhout down to the parts by Colmar, where its tail is sore for the hurt that it had at Mulhouse. But St. Denis of France is in arms besides St. Michael: our St. George comes riding under the red cross banner. Those three champions shall deal with the dragon that has affronted St. Michael's city.

Malines.—Another beautiful Belgian city, at the mercy of the invaders, has a very significant connection with philately. It is the ancient cathedral city of Malines, wherein is situated the stamp printing factory of the Belgian government. Malines is no great way from Antwerp, and is occasionally referred to in the newspapers under the Flemish name of Mechlin. Here in the station road, is the factory which for nearly fifty years has been the fountain spring of the Belgian postal issues. Here also the Congo State stamps were printed from 1886 to 1894, and the well-known Greek stamps designed by the Belgian artist, Hendrickx. It is no vast factory like that of the De La Rue's or Harrison's, but it employs 100 workmen and about 12 women. All the present Belgian adhesive stamps, the stamped postcards and stamped envelopes are turned out here, and in ordinary conditions the output is about two millions a day, or about one-eighth of the out-put of ½d and 1d adhesive stamps of Great Britain.

The Projected New Issue.—It is not generally known that Malines was about to give Belgium an entirely new series of stamps of a more ambitious order than the present series. Such was the case, however, and London was producing the machinery. The postal authorities also had paid the British stamps the compliment of adopting a size of stamp identical with the King Edward VII stamps, and with the same narrow gutters and identical perforations. But the stamps were to be, and I hope still will be printed from recess-plates, by a new process—new so far as philatelic uses are concerned.

Dujardin Dry Recess Process.—The new machine for printing the Belgian stamps is being constructed side by side with a similar one being built for the Chilian government. Each of these machines is to accomplish the miracle of printing from recess-plates on dry paper. As all collectors should know it has always been regarded as unavoidable in recess plate printing that the paper should be printed upon when damp, a very troublesome factor in this class of printing. But the Dujardin machine has overcome this difficulty (as Mr. Stickney, of the Washington Bureau is also believed to have overcome it) and the success of these machines may revolutionise stamp printing in the next year or two. With the opportunity of printing intaglio stamps on dry paper the intaglio process is brought more nearly down to the limits of costs of production of stamps allowed for in countries which are at present using surface-printed stamps.

Some Technical Details.—Having referred to the preparations for the new issue I may add further details. The dominical label is being abandoned, and the plates will be constructed to print sheets of 300 in two panes 15x10 stamps each, with a centre pillar rather more than stamp width. The size of the stamps was arranged as 17x14 equivalent to the King Edward stamps, and the perforations .035 inch diameter. The combs are arranged to perforate the long edge forward, just as in the British 240 set.

A Postponed Issue.—All these plans were well forward, but of course the next issue of Belgian stamps must be postponed indefinitely for with matters of vastly greater concern on hand the gallant Belgians need ammunition more than stamps, and big guns instead of printing machinery. In any case the machinery cannot be delivered at present, though we shall yet see these machines of peace safely transported across the sea, and set to work producing, I hope, tiny portraits of the chiefest hero of the war up to this date, the gallant King Albert of Belgium. Those will be welcome additions to the album of every patriotic philatelist in the United Kingdom.

Philately in Belgium.—In all these Belgian towns, many of which we have located on war maps for the first time these few days, are the homes and the rendezvous of many brother philatelists for whose perils in these days we in Britain have the deepest sympathies. There have been philatelic societies in the never-to-be-forgotten town of Liege. Louvain, where the Belgians lost so heavily the other day is the headquarters of the Federation of Belgian Philatelists, and there are similar philatelic bodies at Antwerp, Brussels, Bruges, Ghent, Marchiennes-au-Pont, Tongres, Tournai and Verviers.

Our Belgian Contemporary.—And there are many individual philatelists throughout the Belgian towns now overridden by German troops, collectors known to many of us by correspondence if not in person, and dealers whom it was occasionally our privilege to welcome in London. And that ever-welcome visitor, l'Annonce Timbrologique is among the absentees these days, as who shall find time or heart in brave little Belgium at this time to pursue the peaceful avocation of philatelic journalism?—The Postage Stamp.

OLD ONE WITH VARIATIONS.

Eddie, of Cornalla and Eddie, has a peculiar sense of humor which he is apt to display at unexpected times and places.

The other day, strolling up to the stamp window in the post office, he asked the clerk, "Have you any nice fresh stamps to-day?"

The clerk, being somewhat of a humorist himself, answered, "You betcha," dove down into his desk and brought up a new sheet of a hundred stamps. Holding it up to Eddie, he said, "Take your pick."

"Gimme that one in the middle," said Eddie.

"Sorry, sir, that one was ordered by telephone this morning," replied the clerk.—New York American.

Advertising Chat—No. 5.

With which—hearty greetings!

This is our "season-opener" and a right good number, too. Of course, there is a bit of war flavor to the advertising but that is to be expected. Look the paper thru and see if your collection will not be the richer by buying some of the wares offered.

Of course Negreen's page advertisement plays a very strong part but the half pages of Scott Stamp & Coin Co., advertising the new 1915 catalog, and Griebert's, advertising his ten per cent new issue service, will attract attention.

We have some new advertisers this week and we welcome them. Olaf Grilstad of Droutheim, Norway, has a display adv. that merits larger and more conspicuous space. B. Max Mehl sends us a series of advs. and will be on hand regularly. On coins he is the authority. Chas. Nissen and Co., London, is also in trade column. "Everybody's Philatelist" has a quarter page that speaks for itself and is not likely to be overlooked.

Once more H. H. A, Fox of Oswego, N. Y., will be found on page 3. We know him to be all right for we have visited the Fox house and got acquainted with him and all the little Foxes. His specialty is British Colonials.

Harmer's wholesale offerings should be especially attractive to the smaller dealers. The large advs. of Wolff, Ginn, Dodd, R. Thomas, Garden City Stamp Co., etc., merit the close attention of our subscribers.

With which—more anon!

Eighteen stamps are pictured in part by this rebus. Seventeen are illustrated in the catalog while one not illustrated represents a United States stamp. The designs, and this is especially true of the "names" given, are greatly enlarged. We offer a Scott's 1915 cloth bound catalog to each of the five contestants sending in best lists before Oct. 31. ACKERMAN'S VIEWS ON CHINA.

E. R. Ackerman has just returned from a trip to the Orient and to a New York paper he gives the following impressions of his visit in China:—

"If the United States does not snatch the Chinese trade shut off from Europe by the war it will be the fault of the American business man. China is anxious to meet us half way, for it thinks more of us than it does of any other foreign nation."

Senator Ackerman sailed from Japan Aug. 12, just before Japan entered the great conflict.

"China," said Senator Ackerman, "is a great nation which has become imbued with western ideas and spirit. There is a marvellous change in the country. The Chinese are becoming accustomed to a republican form of government, and they are all at work. They are building railroads in every direction to develop the country, which cannot be told from Kansas, Nebraska or any middle western state. They are extending commerce, pacifying the outlying districts and working night and day to become Occidentalized.

"You never hear now of the old cry against disturbing the spirits or bones of ancestors; you never hear of ancient conditions. They are up and alert all the time. I tell you in going from Shanghai to Nankin I got two as good meals on a dining car as I ever got in this country. Our sleeping cars were as good as any one could desire. They are talking business and doing business all the time now.

"They love Americans. They can never forget that we do not want their country, and further, they cannot forget that the Boxer indemnity we turned back to them is educating their young men. They show their appreciation in every way."

THE HINGE

A Journal that Sticks to The Hobby.
Edited by Josiah Slicer Haight.

Vol. I — This Month, Same Year. — No. 2

Publishers Notice

No, Chauncey, the HINGE is not a house organ, it is not even the mouth piece for a tin horn. So you will listen in vain for it to peal an air as a house organ, yet like all good hinges, we guarantee it peelable.

We also wish to contradict the rumor that the HINGE is an endowed journal. Ours is not an endowment fund, it is a sinking fund and if HINGE subscribers don't come through pretty quick it will sink out of sight.

The Waiter: Did you order a rare steak.

Collector: No. Bring me a common one, I have just returned from a stamp auction and have only twenty cents left.

Tuckahoe News Notes

We have just seen Mr. Hen Koop's collection of onions and we do not hesitate to assert that it is the finest collection to be seen in these parts. Mr. Koop began collecting onions about two months ago and his collection is growing rapidly, in fact some of them are sprouting, which is, we believe the only drawback to onion collecting. He has many duplicates, including some of the Bermuda variety, which he would be pleased to exchange. He looks upon garlic much the same as stamp collectors regard reprints, they are acceptable because they are interesting, but he refuses to place them in his collection. Mr. Koop conceived the idea of compiling an onion catalogue, but whether a sprout adds or detracts from the value of an onion—was a problem he could not solve, so he abandoned the catalogue idea.

Mr. Walter Marks is sending out stamps on approval and we wish to state that his approval stamps bear the stamp of our approval.

Mr. Fuller Prunes breezed into our office today. We showed him a fine lot of stamps, all mint, o. g. "Very interesting," he said, "by the way, have you seen the new Julip stamp "

"What in all Tuckahoe is a Julip stamp?" we asked.

"Mint, Oh, Gee!" he replied.

We are sorry now that we threw the telephone book at him as he ran out of the door, because we hit a customer who was just coming in.

Editor Hinge—

Dear Sir; For six days I have had a vague impression that there is something that I started and did not finish—an important task left uncompleted. Today it came like a flash, I omitted to sign my name to that letter addressed to you, subscribing for the Hinge. I now sign my name—

Yours Truly
Isadore Shutt

Your favor came Dooly to hand (our postman is named Dooly). We are pleased to paste your name over the vacant space in your first letter where it belongs. This leaves quite a gap in the second letter which we have placed in the cheese box with our collection of "human documents" and some day it may prove exhilarating mental exercise to guess who that letter is from.

News item: The next great battle will take place at Indianapolis where the S. P. A. is mobilizing its forces for a decisive struggle.

And when the battle is over,
It makes us shudder to think,
Of "dead soldiers" we did not help to kill,
And the waste of printer's ink.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

TO THE GIRL COLLECTORS AND THE "OLDER BOYS."

While this column was originally intended for the benefit of the boy collector, it is quite apparent that there are a few girl collectors, and also a number of collectors mature in years but young in experience who are anxious to partake of the benefits of this department. To these collectors, let me say that this space is as much their own as it is any other readers, and I will be pleased to hear from any reader who has a question, or a hundred quetions, whether said reader be of either sex, and seven or seventy (or more, to include our oldest friends). This department is conducted for the purpose of instructing the collector of meagre experience in the wiles and customs of philately. With the aid of our learned editor, Brother Severn, and the various catalogues, and hand-books, it is possible to unravel most of the snarls that make collecting hard for those who pursue it, and it will afford me great pleasure to serve any of the readers of this paper in any way I can.

Since we are on the subject of girl philatelists, may I say that it is a pity there are not more stamp collectors among this sex? Philately, being an art, should be appreciated the more keenly by the gentle sex. Compared with the number of collectors, the number of women interested is very small. Isn't it up to the boys to get busy and start their sisters, mothers and sweethearts in the game? Come on, you collectors who are anxious to promote your hobby, and "loosen up" with some of those duplicates. Get an outfit for the girl, any girl, and teach her. She'll follow you, and will beat you at it if you aren't careful. Also, you married boys, some of these winter evenings that are on the way, take friend wife into your confidence and let her know of the charms of collecting. Change that "my collection" to "our collection." Remember, when the wife has an interest in the book, and wants to see that page completed, she will not mind the expenditure of that piece of your hard-earned salary you put into your stamps each month. Let her have some of the fun, too.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN AMERICA?

Appearances indicate that Nicaragua will give the collectors a rest for a short time, at least. The permanent set is gradually taking the place of the surcharges. Some of the officials surcharged for ordinary use will be mighty scarce.

The new Venezuela set is coming through. It is certainly an improvement over the rather crude labels that have been in use previously.

The collector who looks upon the American countries as the worst "new issue offenders" will be interested in recalling that Brazil is using the same set of stamps issued in 1906; Peru the series of 1909; Bolivia the 20c 1901-2; Guatemala the series of 1902, and Colombian Republic the 1908 series. Of course, a few things have happened in between these years, but isn't that a pretty good record for stability?

We're all very anxious to see the new Panama stamps commemorating the Exposition. These ought to appear very shortly. Canal Zone promises her surcharged set, too.

Speaking of the high cost of collecting, some of the American values are mighty good things to own just now. The wholesale prices, when they can be quoted in quantity, of some of these values make the catalogue prices look like an 1840 edition of Joe Miller's Joke Book. Half-catalogue wholesale is cheap for some of the current and recent stamps.

Did you know that South America, especially Chile and Argentine, is filled with stamp collectors. The Chilian collectors have a stamp paper of much worth. Also, the Argentine collectors have a fine society, and many stamp dealers thrive and profit on the local trade, chiefly along the lines of the Euronean dealers, however.

The 12c Chile President series, which has jumped to 6c in the new catalogue, used, may be expected to jump higher still. That stamp is easily disposed of at 10c, when anyone has any to dispose of.

Speaking of scarce ones, the 8c Bolivia, the 14c and 60c Chile, and the 20c Uruguay are seldom seen. The 4c and 20c Costa Rica are not common, either. A number of the little colons are making their appearance, but even at that, they are mighty good property.

Indications point to some large stamp doings at the Fair in San Francisco. Those who are fortunate enough to attend should keep their eyes open for the stamp stuff.

War sure is what Sherman said it was, when it makes Sonora stamps. They're awfully good for the man who has them, and bad stuff for the collector who has to pay for them. Mr. Carranza could have printed his 10c first issue on gold without affecting its value.

Ever notice the rain-sticks on the 50c Argentine Centennial (1910) set. They look like State Street on a wet day to me.

Watch for errors in your recent Nicaragua and Honduras surcharges. They're to be found, especially in the former. Some periods omitted, misplaced letters, and misspelt words go to make up the assortment.

The new Honduras surcharges, by the way, are showing signs of becoming good stock. The 10c on 6c new issue, in black, is a good one, because it has been replaced by the red surcharge. The black one is a hard one to locate because of the purple-brown colored stamp. Lots of them slip by unnoticed. Also, authorities say that the 10c on 50c will be a good one.

Wasn't that 2c on 20c Honduras a sleeper, though? A local dealer wants a five-dollar bill for one he has, and he'll get it.

Isn't it the height of disappointment to get a beautiful block of four of the one colon Salvador lightly cancelled, on cover, and upon soaking it, find that each stamp has been torn in half and replaced?

In the way of odd values, Salvador leads the world with her 17c, 19c and 29c stamps. Uruguay comes pretty near it with her 23c.

The demand for early United States stamps has not decreased. It seems to be a fact that no matter how high you pay for a fine United States, someone will be glad to pay more for it.

Another Honduras patriot has sold his supply of the red Bonilla 1912. If they would all sell out, the market wouldn't be affected very much.

Peru doesn't need much inducement to issue a provisional. From the scarcity of that 8c on 12c 1912 provisional, the demand for this stamp must have been terrific! In looking through as many as ten thousand covers, never an 8c have I found. Peru could use a 22c to greater advantage.

Hortense says those new 5 milesimo Uruguays match her cerise stationery to perfection. Too bad she can't mail her letters in Uruguay instead of U. S.

The "white backs" of the British Colonials seem to have faded away into history. Used copies are really rare, especially since many are ruined in soaking.

Some new U. S. Peace Centennial stamps are promised. Will this prove an incentive for certain European nations too numerous to name?

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

D. A. J.—Your cover is a "freak", whether made intentionally or not I cannot say. The fact that a Canadian and United States stamp are used on the same envelope may be explained by the fact that some people, being ignorant of the postal requirements, suppose stamps of each country to be necessary in sending a letter from one country to another. I have known this to happen. Also, the cover might have been made by some one for a philatelic curiosity, as it certainly is odd. There is no postal ruling governing this.

I thank you for your suggestions and assure you that I will act on them at an early date. However, articles on "good stamps to buy" and "new issues" appeared only a few months ago. Look up your back numbers.

E. W. B., Jr.—If your foreign duplicates are worth anything to a dealer, the local dealers will give you as fair a price as any. I do not know of any dealer who wants the most common U. S. cancelled stamps, and do not consider these worth the trouble to save. The values above 2c are saleable in quantity, however.

B. L. W.—The printed "O. S." surcharges on the Liberian stamps are not as coarse as the hand-stamped impressions, and are clearer. Also, while the printed surcharges are in black as a rule, the hand-stamped over-prints are in various colors, including a bluish black. No effort was apparently made to check the various varieties of these stamps, and they exist in quite a number of varieties. Use a magnifying glass on your copy and I think you will be able to distinguish it very easily.

British Stamps, King George, King Edward, also Controls, etc., List free. NISSEN & CO., 63 High Holborn, London, Eng. [55*

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

BRITISH GUIANA.—Hermann Focke reports having received the 24c and 48c recently chronicled, but is informed that the 60c, 72c and 96c values have not yet been issued. Under date of Aug. 31, his informant writes that "the dates when the subsequent issues will appear is uncertain."

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—Hermann Focke sends us the 2½d and 5sh King George stamps, which, though reported as having been supplied to the Colony some time since, did not appear until Aug. 1, and only reached this country a few days ago. The 3d King George stamp is sold out, and the King Edward stamp of the same value is again in issue. The former, which is on the surface-tinted paper, will no doubt become scarce, as the new printing ought to be on the all-yellow paper.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The Post Office Circular of Aug. 25 announces as shortly to be brought into use the Georgian 2d embossed postage stamp, and the colour of this new stamp to be amber. This will not be issued in the ordinary way for sale at Post Offices, but only supplied to order on private covers impressed with postage stamps by the Inland Revenue Department.

Envelope.

HONDURAS.—Hermann Focke writes that novelties are coming forward almost daily: "Honduras is now trying to compete with Nicaragua in complicated surcharges, and herewith I submit a creation, the actual values of which cannot be easily made out by unexperienced people. The 1c violet of 1911 was surcharged a short time ago with the value of 20 cts. in black and "Oficial" in red for official use. This provisional was regarded as very scarce, probably because there is not much use for it, but it seems that the supply has exceeded the demand, and now we get this stamp with a third surcharge, vertically across the former two. This reads, "Oficial—10 cts" in black in two lines, thus making this curiosity a provisional official stamp of 10 centavos value.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke reports having received the new 10c yellow, previously chronicled, but only recently issued.

TIMOR.—The 1914 issues of entires for this colony have been shown us by Mr. Schachne, as detailed below:

The various issues since 1900 are summarized in Table A. This table is made up from data supplied through the courtesy of the Director and from the annual reports of the Post Office Department and those of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Various details have not been verified and the table is presented subject to correction by any philatelist who discovers an error.

The following list of plate numbers used in printing booklet issues has been supplied, in slightly different form, through the kindness of the Director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Errors may have been made in transcribing it and if any may be discovered they should be reported to the Editor so that corrections may be made. It is known that this list does not agree with that published in the Philatelic Gazette but no attempt to rectify this list has been made on that account for the list in the Gazette is known to be in error in several instances.

UNITED STATES LOCALS

We have commissions from several very big collectors to secure fine U. S. Locals on the Original Covers. Anything common is not wanted, but the rarer things are wanted two and three times over and any collector or dealer having any stock or specimens is invited to send us a description of them. We also want many modern U. S. Stamps between 1882 and 1893 in block form and would be glad of quotations. Three Cent vermilion wanted in large quantities unused at three times face value.

OUR SPECIALTY IS FILLING WANT LISTS.

Send us a list of any odds and ends in either U. S. or Foreign that you may need to fill up your sets, (even if the cheaper grade), and we will forward them for your inspection, neatly mounted and each stamp priced separately, and you have the privilege of returning any of them for any reason. We only send out perfect specimens and our prices are right, a trial will convince you, and we recommend this method of filling up your blank spaces. Our stock is alphabetically arranged and it enables us to select want lists without delay. We can also make up selections of any countries. Send us THAT LIST of HARD to FIND STAMPS.

If unknown to us, kindly furnish references.

A BIT OF HELP NEEDED.

During the past ten days we have received considerable assistance in our subscription propaganda and we are very much pleased with the manner in which our campaign for new subscribers has been welcomed.

Some subscribers have sent in two new subscriptions when renewing their own, and a bit of help like this is greatly appreciated.

All you need do is to show this copy of the WEEKLY to a collecting friend, and it will be a very easy matter to secure a new subscriber. Moreover, our list of premium offers will give you or the new subscriber an extra incentive for this bit of effort upon your part.

This week we print 7800.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

On The March—We have been informed that a number of our readers in Canada, Great Britain and other countries have gone to the front. We can only hope that they will return unscathed to their albums. Continental publications seem to be suspended as we have received no stamp papers from France or Germany for some time. The English papers with the exception of the Monthly Journal are appearing almost as usual, and as might be imagined, the shadow of war is over their columns.

* * *

As Usual Here—In America the effect of the war so far as surface indications are to be read is slight and there is no appreciable sign that the activities of buyers are curbed. As we said before, the market is not straining at all to absorb the stamps that are being thrown on it; and it is noticeable that the largest dealers are making cordial overtures to those who have good stamps to market. We may say conscientiously that there is not a tremor of uncertainty shown in the minds of collectors over the stability of stamp conditions, so far as our range of observation extends.

EUGENE KLEIN, 142 So. 15th St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Too Severe—A reader writes: "Say, can not you do something to mitigate the horrors of war as reflected in the stamp press under prophecies of territorial adjustments when the conflict is over. It is our idea of the misfitness of things to hear a fat-witted philatelic editor flounder about in guessing at the results that may be expected in a geographical sense. The effrontery of some of those 'ye editor' fellows passeth all understanding and if there is anything more irritating than to wade through predictions of 'prophets' anywhere, I cannot name it." Why so truculent, ungentle reader? Editors of high and low degree are making these guesses without exciting their readers unduly and it seems to us that philatelic editors are equipped by training to have a fair idea at least of political and geographical possibilities the world over; and of all persons they have some justification for entering into the guessing contests. Our correspondent's strictures are made with a vigor out of all keeping with the importance of the subject he tilts at.

False One—Mr. A. Roterberg, Chicago, has given us two copies each on the original envelope of the G. C. M. monogram surcharges on the Mexico five centavos, and one of the surcharges is forged even though the stamp bearing it did full postal duty. The counterfeit surcharge may be told by the variation in the curl of the last downward stroke of the M in comparison with that in the genuine impression. The forgery was committed with the intention of deceiving the postal authorities more than philatelists.

Condemned—From Mr. William C. Michaels, Kansas City, Mo., we have received the following information: "I have not seen in any of the stamp papers anything regarding the proclamation of the Postmaster General of the 'Constitutionalista' regarding the forging of the five cent 'Transitorio' stamps. I enclose herewith a clipping from 'La Voz de Cananea,' signed by the local postmaster at Cananea, Sonora, of the 'Constitutionalistas' setting forth the proclamation of El Administrador Principal de Correos." Circular Number 15, dated at Cananea, July 30th, 1914, calls attention to a counterfeit "Correos Mexico Transitorio" stamp, the five centavos; and it is ordered that all mail matter bearing these forgeries be removed because of the invalidity of these stamps. The public is advised to use the new issue. The employment of the ten centavos cut in half for provisional use as five centavos is prohibited by the document which is signed, "El Administrador de Correos, J. Pesqueira."

Opposition—There are many protests being voiced against the provisions of the war tax measure and interests that are marked for taxation are organizing opposition to the act; and we hear that there is a movement by the real estate men of the large cities to oppose the levy of a stamp tax on contracts, deeds and other instruments that enter so extensively in the business. New revenue stamp issues would be welcomed by many collectors who remember how interest in this class of stamps was stimulated in 1898 by the issue of general issue revenue stamps as well as private proprietary stamps later.

Time Told—A correspondent says: "Some time ago, or in 1912, I purchased a block of the eight cent olive green No. 349, which was a very dark olive green. A few months ago, I purchased some eight cent stamps at the local post office which were of a decided yellow olive green and these I placed in my album alongside the dark olive green and the contrast between the two shades was very strong. Not having looked at my stamps for a month or so, I decided yesterday to take a peep at them and you may imagine my surprise when I found both of my eight cent blocks were of the same shade, yellow olive green. I could, however, trace signs of dark olive green in the borders of my first block. This is just another argument to be careful about the green shades as well as the lilacs."

Early This Year—We wish to commend the publishers of the standard catalogue upon their intention to issue the seventy-third edition of the catalogue on October first. In previous years the publishers have been called to account for the delay in the appearance of the catalogue and have been charged with retarding business by the lateness in the season when the new edition was distributed. It is fortunate that this year there will be nothing to disturb conditions on this score.

As To Counterfeits—The inquiry has come: "Will you please publish the law against counterfeiting of foreign stamps in this country? Tell me, too, is it permitted to make fac-similes of obsolete foreign stamps, in case it is illegal to reproduce those that are still good for postage?" The only information at hand in answer to the foregoing question is embraced in Title LXX, Ch. V, Section 5,465, of the revised statutes of the United States, as follows: "Any person who shall forge or counterfeit, or knowingly utter or use any forged or counterfeited postage stamp of any foreign government, shall be punished by imprisonment at hard labor of not less than two nor more than ten years." We believe that there are other regulations covering the subject and we should be pleased to learn of them from any reader who is in a position to inform us.

MORE SONORAS.

We have received from W. J. Stanton the following reference to some new Sonora stamps and we quote from his letter:—

"I have a complete sheet each of the 5 centavo and 10 centavo, second issue of Sonora, with green seal, that I have not seen in any of the check lists of this issue, and believe it is a new variety.

In the 5 centavo the setting does not follow any of the check lists, and the lists do not give the large figure of value rouletted all around in black. In the 10 centavo the setting is entirely different from any given in the lists, and the only roulette given for this value is colorless roulette. Can you throw any light on these two values as given above?"

It is very evident that the stamps in question are those referred to in Mr. Poole's article of Sept. 26. We sent Mr. Stanton's letter to George W. Linn, a student of Sonora stamps, and received the following in reply:—

"Your letter regarding new Sonoras at hand. I had already written Mr. Severn about this issue and recent developments as reported in the newspapers bear out my opinion on the matter and show us that these stamps are the result of a new revolution against Carranza.

The issue consists of a 1, 2, 3, 5 and 10c value. The 1, 2 and 3c are of same style as former issue. The 5c is like the last 5c with green seal but has the heavy thick figure five as used on the first white issue instead of the thin figure five. The 10c is like the old green seal 10c except that it is rouletted in black lines the same as the other values.

A careful examination and study of this set shows clearly that the original type forms for five stamps as used in the former printings of the green seal stamps have been left standing and have been again used in their original state. The errors in the black portion of the printing and the spacing of the lines in the black are so near identical with the other printings that this must be the case. I would also say the same of the red forms. I know for a fact that some of these stamps were printed some two or three months ago. Of course the 5c and 10c values are so different from the other 5c and 10c stamps that we need no method of distinguishing them from the earlier issues and only need a way to tell them one from the other in plating and this is quite easy.

I believe that one little point only, which does not show on any other of the five stamps will cause less confusion to the collector who wants to separate these stamps for plating.

5c black red and green, rouletted in black lines on soft white wove paper. Unwatermarked.

Stamp No. A—Z in Marzo is inverted. This shows in all values, 1 to 10c.

Stamp No. D—C of Centavos at right is wrong font.

Stamp No. E—This stamp has no errors in it.

10c black red and green, rouletted in black lines on soft white wove paper. Unwatermarked.

Stamp No. A—Z in Marzo is inverted.

Stamp No. B—Both of the letters Z in Diez are wrong font.

Stamp No. C—1913 is printed !913. However, the ! is so worn that it appears like a solid perpendicular line. This can be distinguished from a figure 1 because the figure one has a serif on it.

Stamp No. D—C of Centavos at right is wrong font.

Stamp No. E—I of Diez at right is inverted. Sets higher than other letters.

The 1, 2 and 3c values can all be distinguished from the earlier printings by differences in the type but an easier and surer way is by the seals. The five seals are all different and most of them have become scratched or marked in such a way that they are easily distinguished one from another. In the former printings of these stamps the position of the green seals on all stamps was the same in all the printings except in the 5c lilac brown shade and in the 10c value. Both of these values come with the seals in their usual order and with the seals in a shifted position. To explain this we will take a sheet of one of the old printings and call the seals beginning at the left side of the sheet, Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. Now on the two stamps above noted, from the former issue and on all values of this new issue the seals have been changed in this manner—Seal No. 1 has been placed on the last stamp in the row and seals No. 2, 3, 4, and 5 have been shoved over one stamp to the left. Thus the original position of the seals was

and the new position is

2 3 4 5 1

If collectors will take a full sheet of any of these issues and examine carefully they will find the following characteristics about the seals which will enable them to place any of these stamps correctly.

Seal No. 1. The ray running out from the cap at left side, nearest the center of the seal is on a line with the ray running out at the right. This is also true of seal No. 4 but seal No. 4 has a much larger white mountain shaped spot in the cap.

Seal No. 2 has a scratch running across the three chains which support the basin of the scales at the left side.

Seal No. 3, is scratched in several places in the left upper quarter section of same. These scratches will appear quite readily when one has examined several of the stamps.

Seal No. 4, besides the large mountain in the cap, has a rather heavy scratch at the edge in the left upper quarter section, also quite a dent in the outer line.

Seal No. 5. The lower ray which runs through the chains at right seems to turn slightly upwards.

There are many other little differences in these seals and a little study of a sheet will soon enable one to place any of these stamps accurately by the seals."

REVENUE STAMPS FOR VERA CRUZ.

By Lieut. W. E. Mills.

Upon the taking over of the Mexican stamp office at Vera Cruz, by the U. S. Army, all regular revenue stamps of Mexican origin were surcharged "Gov. U.S.A." Tobacco and cigarette stamps were not so surcharged.

The Mexican law requires that the design of the revenue stamps, except for tobaccos, be changed on July 1st of each year. The U. S. Govt. printed a new series of stamps and put them on sale July 1st last. As the supply of stamps for boxes of cigars was about exhausted, these were also printed but were not put on sale until about the 1st of August.

Ordinarily there were four series of stamps issued by the Mexican Govt., but as some of the uses of these stamps seemed to merge, the U. S. Government printed only two series, ordinary revenue and Federal. The Ordinary is used for bills of sale, notes, legal papers, etc., and the Federal, for the collection of the Federal Tax for the support of the Mexican Government.

The stamps to date printed and sold by the U. S. are: Ordinary Rev., 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c, 25c, 50c, 1p, 5p, 10p, 50p, 100p; Federal 1c, 5c, 25c, 1p, 5p, 10p, 50p.

As the supply of stamps for packages of tobacco of 100 grammes, foreign entry, was about exhausted the stamps for boxes of native cigarettes were surcharged in red "100 gramos, tobaco cernido y rape. Gov U.S.A"

The stamps are both perforated and rouletted and combinations of these.

Advertising Chat—No. 6.

We are rightly pleased with the splendid issue of the Weekly that appeared last Saturday, reflecting as it does a remarkable stability in the stamp trade so far at least as the United States is concerned. Our issue consisted of twelve pages replete with advertising.

We shall follow this special number with another to be issued October 31. The month of October is always a good one with the stamp trade and the new Scott catalog will give added impetus to business.

The Nysted Stamp Co. takes space this week and will become a regular advertiser. This firm advertised with us occasionally last winter and makes a specialty of the stamps of the Scandinavian countries. Emily King is back again and will be with us regularly.

Would you like to deal in stamps? If so, purchase our book bearing that title, price 10c, also Poole's "Stamp Collector's Guide," price 25c. With this equipment you can lay the foundation for a good business.

Remember, our quarter pages at $15.00 offer the cheapest stamp advertising on the face of the globe.

is a book that should be in the hands of every philatelist. It describes and illustrates:

Regular Government Issues
U. S. Envelopes
Carrier Stamps
Confederate Provisionals

The illustrations are large and clear. There are no less than 15 for the 1861 issue. The cog wheel punch, triangles and capped "2's" are finely pictured. The manner in which the five dies of the 1853 envelope is treated is alone worth the price of subscription, while the collecting of Reays and Plymptons is made as easy as rolling off a log. We don't sell this book—WE GIVE IT AWAY!

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

GUINEA.—The 1914 series of entires for this colony have just been received by Mr. Schachne.

Post Cards.

1c green and black on buff.
2c red and black on white.
1x1c green and black on buff.
2x2c red and black on white.

Letter Cards.

2½c dark lilac on yellow.
5c dark blue on white.
2½x2½c dark lilac on yellow.

HONDURAS.—Dr. Roy F. DeSart submits used specimens of the lithographed stamps of last year, showing new shades and curious varieties of printing. Pairs of the 2c rose show that the transfers were carelessly placed on the stone so that the designs do not square, either with each other, or with the perforations. Dr. DeSart sends specimens of the 5c, 6c and 10c lithographed stamps in new colors, the 5c being bright ultramarine, instead of dull blue; the 6c in purple, instead of purple black; and the 10c in brown, instead of blue.

Adhesives.

5c bright ultramarine.
6c purple.
10c brown.

Dr. DeSart gives the following list of split provisionals from Honduras:

1911—Vert. ½ of 5c.
Vert. ½ of 6c.
Diag. ½ of 6c.
1911—Vert. ½ of 10c.
Diag. ½ of 10c.
Diag. ½ of 2c on 1c (No. 141).
1911—Diag. ½ of 20c.
Vert. ½ of 20c.
1913—Diag. ½ of 2c.
Diag. ½ of 6c.
Vert. ½ of 6c.
Diag. ½ of 20c.
1913—Diag. ½ of 10c on 2c.
Diag. ½ of 10c on 6c.
Diag. ½ of 10c on 50c.
Vert. ½ of 10c on 50c.
Horiz. ½ of 10c on 50c.
1914—change of color.
Diag. ½ of 10c brown.

According to Dr. DeSart's experience there are less of the 1913, 10c blue, to be had than some of the surcharges of 1913 yet the latter continue to be held at high prices.

The C. E. Hussman Co. sends specimens of new provisionals, the 5c carmine steamer type, overprinted "Oficial," having surcharged with two new values in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

"1 cent" on 5c carmine and black.
"2cts." on 5c carmine and black.

MEXICO.—Dr. Roy F. DeSart reports having seen a cover with a 4c regular postage stamp and a 1c postage due stamp making up the 5c required.

A. C. Roessler writes us as follows:—"The story on how to tell counterfeit G. C. M. overprints in Mex. federal stamps in New Issue dept. recently was quite inaccurate in several respects. To say the measurement is 15 mms. on one and 16 mms. on the other or that the loop of the g or m does that or this is all amateur work. Commonsense will explain the differences. The overprint is applied by a rubber stamp. Pressure or lack of it supplies the answer.

PAPUA.—Hermann Focke writes thus entertainingly of stamps Papuan:

"It is quite a while that the once famous Papua has fallen into oblivion, and even to-day there is nothing new of interest for the general collector. On the other hand it may interest the specialist that at last the 4d olive and the 2sh 6d carmine of the present issue have appeared with the letters "O S" perforated for official use, a letter-package received from Port Moresby under date of July 20, bearing these two stamps not previously chronicled.

"Whereas with the first 3 issues of Papua stamps the inverted watermark had been quite common, this is not the case with the present unicolored set, with the horizontal Crown over A watermark of the South Australian type. Here it is generally in a position reading from right to left, the reverse being extremely rare. Still, I have just received the 1d rose with the watermark from left to right (reversed) and besides have in my collection the ½d peagreen, 2d violet, 1sh yellow. Ewen, who makes a specialty of these varieties, only mentions, as set No. 27, the ½d and 2d values so that the 1d and 1sh values should now be added to the list; of the former I have 8 and of the latter 3 copies."

[CHAP. 770.]

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR THE TAXATION OF TRANSFERS OF STOCK.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby imposed and there shall immediately accrue and be collected an excise as herein provided on all sales or agreements to sell or memoranda of sales or deliveries or transfers of shares or certificates of stock in any domestic or foreign corporation made after the first day of December, nineteen hundred and fourteen, whether made upon or shown by the books of the corporation, or by any assignment in blank, or by any delivery, or by any paper or agreement or memorandum or other evidence of transfer or sale, whether or not entitling the holder in any manner to the benefit of such stock or to secure the future payment of money or the future transfer of any stock, on each one hundred dollars of face value or fraction thereof, two cents. * * *

SECTION 2. No person, firm, association or corporation, other than a corporation organized under the banking laws of this state or under the national bank act of the United States, or a duly authorized agent of the tax commissioner, shall sell or offer or expose for sale any stamp issued pursuant to this act, without first obtaining from the tax commissioner his written consent, except that in connection with a sale of, or agreement to sell, stock a broker or agent of the principal making such sale or agreement to sell may supply and affix the stamp or stamps required by this act. No person shall sell any such stamp for a sum less than the face value thereof without the written consent of the tax commissioner. Any person violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

SECTION 3. SECTION 14. The excise provided for by this act shall accrue and be payable on and after the first day of December in the year nineteen hundred and fourteen; but for all other purposes this act shall take effect upon its passage. [Approved July 7, 1914.]—Massachusetts "Acts of 1914."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Any lover of philatelic publications desirous of obtaining a library either in whole or in part will do well to communicate with Edwin B. Hill, Granite Reef, Mesa, Arizona.

—After one year of existence on the troubled sea of philatelic journalism, Stamp Collecting, the latest English stamp weekly, has been compelled to temporarily suspend publication. In his valedictory the editor states that the paper will be revived at as early a date as is possible. The war is working sad havoc with the philatelic publications of England, France and Germany.

PEACE STAMPS IN ABEYANCE.

Correspondents have inquired as to the status of the proposed peace stamps and the following communication from the P. O. Dept. will furnish the desired information. It would seem as if the project had received a quietus as a result of the war in Europe. The letter follows:

"Your letter of September 18th is received. Some months since, at the instance of peace societies of this country, preliminary steps were taken looking to the issuance of peace postage stamps. However, since the outbreak of war in Europe, and at the request of members of peace organizations, action in the matter has been suspended and the whole question is held in abeyance."

NEWARK CLUB'S ANNUAL MEETING.

At the meeting of the Newark Stamp Club, in its new rooms, 33 Court street, on Friday evening, Sept. 18, President Roessler exhibited a proof of the Mexican revenue stamps used by the American military authorities in Vera Cruz. The stamps are attached to bills of lading, legal documents, etc., and show payment of taxes and duty.

There are six denominations, and each stamp has the initials, "U. S. A." It was announced that these are the first stamps issued by a foreign government bearing the United States imprint, though in the case of the present Philippine stamps, which are engraved and printed in Washington, D. C., the inscription reads, "Philippine Islands, United States of America." In the case of the Vera Cruz revenues the workmanship is far different from the steel engraving of the Washington plant. The stamps are homely, of poor paper, crudely lithographed in dull colors and perforated, rouletted or imperforated, as suited the makers' convenience. There was need to issue the stamps quickly, and art was only a secondary matter.

Each stamp is in two parts, the lower being a small label, or "talon," as the Mexicans call them. The collector of customs attaches one part of the stamp to the document and retains the talon as a check on his accounts. His cash box must tally with a certain amount in talons and cash, upon the visit of an inspector.

At the Stamp Club's meeting the annual election of officers resulted in making A. C. Roessler president, H. A. Henckel vice president, E. W. Fuss secretary, H. T. Darlington treasurer and H. Planck sales manager. The club has about sixty members, and its meetings on the first and third Fridays of every month are open to all stamp collectors.

GERMAN SAMOA.

SURRENDER TO NEW ZEALAND.

Apia, the capital of German Samoa, surrendered on August 29th to an expeditionary force sent by the Governor of New Zealand.

The Samoan Islands in the Southern Pacific Ocean are midway between Fiji and the Penrhyn Islands, about 1600 miles north of Auckland, New Zealand. The largest of the islands are Savü, area 660 square miles. Upolu, 340 square miles, and Tutuila 54 square miles. Apia on the north coast of Upolu is the most important harbour. Mount Vaca overlooks both Apia and Vailma the home and burial place of Robert Louis Stevenson, on which a monument stands to his memory. From 1887 to 1900 Britain, Germany and the United States directed the native kingship, but the situation became so embarrassing that in early 1900, greatly to the regret of the Samoans, Gt. Britain withdrew her claims receiving recompense in other parts, and the United States withdrew from Islands west of Tutuila.

A provisional set of postage stamps was issued in 1900, the German 1899 issue 3, 5, 10, 25 and 50pf being overprinted "Samoa." These were shortly superseded by a permanent issue in design, shewing the Imperial Yacht Hohenzollern, and comprised thirteen denominations:—3, 5, 10, 20, 25, 30, 40, 50, 80pf, 1, 2, 3, 5 marks.

What may we look for?—Stamp collectors live at present on the tip-toe of expectation. There is no knowing what interesting provisional varieties may be shortly issued and which Colonial territory or island will race to hold first place with such historic souvenirs.

Summary of what may be expected:—

Togo stamps overprinted British Togoland, ½d, 1d, etc.; or G.R.I., ½d, 1d, etc.; or Gold Coast stamps overprinted British Togoland.

Samoa stamps overprinted N.Z. Dominion, ½d, 1d, etc.; or N.Z. stamps overprinted Samoa Is.

Kamerun stamps overprinted Nigeria, etc.; or Nigeria or some other British African stamps overprinted British Cameroon.—Ewen's Weekly.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 15, 1914.

The 320th (regular) meeting was held at the Club Room this evening with 26 members and friends present. In the absence of the President and Vice-President, Mr. Wm. G. Bail was elected Chairman pro-tem.

Mr. Dunning put in a plea for more new members and suggested that as he appeared to be the only member of the present Recruiting Committee, the President appoint some others to act with him. The matter was referred to the President.

The Secretary introduced Ex-President Willard O. Wylie as the speaker of the evening, who gave a very entertaining talk about his trip abroad the past summer and his experiences at the opening of the great European conflict in an endeavor to return home. A rising vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Wylie at its conclusion.

The Secretary gave a short talk on some new developments he had discovered in regard to the former sale of the 8½ cent Nova Scotia stamps.

The names of Dr. Henry J. Perry and Robert W. Carpenter were proposed for membership.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SPECIALISM FOR THE MEDIUM COLLECTOR.

This being an age of specialism in every line, be it medicine, machinery, law, or postage stamps, the thoughts of collectors are turned more or less to the subject as related to stamp collecting. Nearly every mail brings letters asking advice as to what countries to collect, how to "specialize" and kindred questions. Having taken up the question of specialism from both sides, I believe I can throw some light on it. for those who seek to know.

In the first place, I would advise the general collector not to specialize if such action meant a sacrifice of his general collection. It is true that all collectors have certain countries or group of countries that receive more favor in their eyes than others. For instance, in America nearly every collector is interested more or less in United States stamps, as Chilian collectors are interested in Chilian stamps, and German collectors in German stamps, this feeling being largely due to patriotism. Collectors the world over seek to enlarge their collections of their favorite countries. However, the general collector pays some attention to all countries as he receives stamps from them, and in this way, he gradually learns the history, geography and general nature of all countries. His knowledge is not confined to any one section of the globe. In these days of varieties, even the collector of moderate means can gather a very nice representative assortment from all nations at little expense. To the non-collector, such an assortment is far more interesting than a highly specialized collection showing watermarks, perforations, shades, hair-lines, fly specks, thickness of paper, and other trivial details often invisible to the naked eye and sometimes existing only in the imagination of the possessor. If it is the collector's desire to break away from the beaten path of philately and dip beneath the surface of his favorite countries, into the watermark and perforations. let him do it, but not at a sacrifice of his other countries. Secure a blank album, and go at the specializing of your country but do not dispose of your general collection. Keep it. You may want to go back to it some time, to take up other countries, or maybe all countries. Besides, you will always receive stamps from countries you are not specializing. Better than throw these away, put them in the general collection. In summing up my argument, let me state that if you feel like specializing on one country, go ahead. Keep the other countries, though.

There is really nothing nicer for the beginner and medium collector than a general collection. As occasions of interest happen in the various parts of the earth, his interest can be increased by his stamps of these sections. At the present time, more or less attention is focused on the European countries, and accordingly their stamps are in the lime light. A good general collection is always interesting, as it never tires the collector. Before the writer took up specializing, he gathered a collection of ten thousand varieties. He found at times his interest turning to South Africa and accordingly accumulated the stamps of that part of the world. Later, the Oceanic colonies drew his attention, and so on, through the whole world. Any country, be it Colombian Republic (probably the least interesting of any to the general philatelist) or Ionian Islands (certainly the easiest to complete) will contribute to the fun of collecting if attention is directed to it. There is no country in the world that will not give the collector keen pleasure if he studies it. However, these pleasures are varied, so the collector who mixes his countries, gets more pleasure because of this variety. You remember how those curious Persian stamps struck your eye when you first looked at them, and the fun you had when you looked up the country and its other stamp issues? You recollect how you got all excited when your friend gave you a stamp from Orange Free State? If you were a small boy you hurried home and showed it to mother. Also, you no doubt can recall the time your Danish cook gave you that envelope with the Iceland stamps on it, which her brother sent her. You wondered at the time who could be in that barren place to write letters. If you were of a curious frame of mind, you investigated it, or asked father about it when he came home, and you learned that Iceland is south of Greenland, that it is an important Danish colony, and that its products are others besides polar bears and Iceland Moss. You used to take your album out at night, after supper, and before bed-time, and run through it, dreaming of the strange places these little messengers came from. You saw the Chinese junks as they lay on the moonlit waters. As you looked at Hawaii, you heard the sleepy lullaby of that tropical place and the waves that washed on the shores of that dreamy land. You saw the curious steamer on the river of Congo, the ant-eater of French Guiana, and in United States, you saw the old-fashioned locomotive on the 3c 1869 and the picture gallery on the different United States sets made you think of the great things these men had done for their country. Didn't you tell mother that night that you wished you could grow up and have your picture on a stamp like George Washington? Suppose you had made a fine collection of Nicaragua, for instance. Instead of seeing the different scenes and getting an insight into the mode of living of the various people on the earth, you would be confronted by an exhibition of the carelessness and shiftlessness of Central American printers. True, these inverted surcharges and misspelt words would be interesting and unique, and it would be sport to see how many kinds of them you could find, but would you get the same enjoyment from looking over stamps with surcharge normal, the same stamps with surcharge inverted, then with the error "valb" and finally with the period omitted, that you would from looking over the same value in stamps from different countries? I think not.

Most general collectors use a printed album. When the general collector specializes, it often means that he specializes only to the extent of completing the countries as out-lined in his album. Most albums contain spaces for all the stamps a representative collection should include and in the case of the International album, many spaces are included for even the less important varieties of watermark and shade, so the collector can use this album and still specialize to some extent. Such specialism as this should be encouraged, for while the collector is devoting his interests to the country in question, he will at the same time pay some attention to the other lands. Work on your favorite countries. Learn where to draw the line concerning varieties, however.

I have heard collectors say, "I cannot afford to collect everything," and "I can never get every stamp" and straightway they start to specialize, usually on United States. Of course, they cannot afford to collect every stamp, and could not get every one if they could afford to pay the price. Probably, Mr. Worthington and the King of England have about the finest private collections in existence, and they are not complete. All of these collectors could no doubt afford to buy any stamp needed for their collections. There are varieties of which only a very few copies and one of which only one copy are known to exist. With all their money, these collectors cannot each have one of these stamps. No, you can't get every stamp. Of course, since you can't get every stamp, specialize on United States. Complete collections of United States stamps are very common and only cost a good number of thousand dollars. Your chances of completing United States are quite as few as of completing the balance of the world. Also, a hundred dollars in United States stamps will bring fewer stamps at the present market price many times over than the same money invested in a general collection. They will be worth more, however.

From the foregoing the reader will understand my views on specialism. I believe in it only to a limited extent, that is, I believe that the beginner and medium collector should give his chief thought to general collecting, and specialize on the side. However, the advanced collector, after he has gathered a large general collection, should specialize.

I may appear inconsistent when I state that I collect twentieth century Western Hemisphere issues only. I have passed through my stage of general collecting, though unfortunately, I sold my original collection. In fact, I have sold many since then. If it were possible, I would buy back that original lot, with its damaged and fingered specimens, at half catalogue. Since I can't duplicate it, I must specialize to a certain extent. From interviews with specialists large and small, I know that I am not the only one who is sorry he disposed of his original collection. If circumstances permit me, I will take up the various groups of countries until I have another large collection, and while I limit myself to one group at a time, I cannot fail at times to buy and put away some stamp not in that group, because my thoughts are ever turning to my first introduction to stamps, which came shortly after I learned to read and write. If this article will help to keep some other collector from making my mistake, I will consider it work well done.

At an early date, I will take up the subject of specialism for the collector who feels that he wants to carry it on to a certain extent, and desires to know how to specialize, and how not to do it.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. W.—I do not know what value is placed on Consular Fee stamps. As a rule, they do not bring very much, and few collect them. No doubt your stamp would have some value to a collector of these.

The Mexican Constitutionalista surcharge you mention is really too new to place a value on. There are several different styles of this hand-stamp, used in various places, and rumors indicate that some will be very good. I would suggest that you hold your stamp for further developments. Scott 1915 lists the Sonora stamps, including the G. C. M. surcharge, so they will have a firm foundation.

Your German stamp is a local of some sort, just what kind I do not know. There are a great number of stamps of this nature. Pairs of the 50c 1909 and 1912 stamps are worth at retail from 8c to 15c each, depending on condition. Exceptionally lightly cancelled pairs might bring even more. Initial perfs. are not worth as much, of course.

H. P. H.—"Faith, and oi think yez will pay aboot $16.50 or $25.00 for a 1c Pan-American with its middle up-side-down, an aboot $125.00 to $175.00 for a 2c, all depinding on circumstances. I do not think yez will make much of a profit on th' dail. Why don't yez buy a Ford? The foive cent Lincoln whit no wholes betwain the shtamps is wort aboot foive bucks a paire, an' oi doon't think the proice will joomp in th' nixt year or two. You see, the questions came like this: "Dear Sir William:—

Now would ye be so koind so too advoise me at aboot what ye figer the 1 scent and 2c shtamps whit their middles up-side-down av the nineteen-hundred and 1 set is wort? And do ye think they would be a prophatable purchace? have always been our specialty. We don't talk much or parade our virtues, but when it comes to doing business we just refer you to those we've served. EXPERIENCE is a good asset; THAT as well as a first class clientage of BONA-FIDE auction buyers takes years to acquire. We have both, and for first class collections we can and will secure first class results. We should like to correspond with any who really want to turn their COLLECTIONS into CASH and want dates and terms.

I am breaking up a fine collection of nearly 12,000 varieties contained in six large volumes. This is a splendid opportunity for serious collectors to add fine items to their own collections at the price of ordinary approval goods. To collectors who are willing to spend at least ten dollars on a selection, will be pleased to submit these volumes, one at a time, on five days approval. First come, first served. A deposit or good reference essential from those not known to me. This is your chance to look over 12,000 varieties, and compare with your album, page for page. Many fine items never found on ordinary approval selections, and the condition will please you if you are a condition crank, but the cost is no more. 50% discount allowed on everything, except when it will bring unused stamps below face value. Those of you who frequently pay two-thirds and full cat. for certain desirable stamps will appreciate this discount.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY. WRITE NOW, and state if you collect 19th or 20th Century stamps, or both. To those inclined to make smaller purchases, my regular line of Superior Approvals contain better stamps for less money than usually found on an approval circuit, and testimonials received daily verify this. Premiums of recent Mexican Provisional covers to all collectors answering this advertisement, and enclosing return postage, and reference. [30

A GREAT ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY.

$15 It was a happy thought for us to decide upon the plan of offering a full quarter page for $15.00, and we feel that our patrons are appreciating the opportunity of getting space in our publication at 10c per line.

$15 It will cost you over $125 to send a circular to 7800 addresses and here we give you an opportunity to send your message to 7800 addresses for only $15.00. This proposition is a good one and we want to drive it home to every advertiser.

$15 Bear in mind that the ranks of stamp collectors are constantly changing. They come and go. Any dealer's list six months old has lost much of its virility, but in our mailing list you have the very bone and sinew of collecting enthusiasm.

$15 Any number of the WEEKLY is a good one to use but the issue of Oct. 31 will be unusually good. Try a quarter page and you will be convinced. A column space or a six inches double column will give you great publicity.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

The Revenue Bill—From Mr. W. E. Marsh, we have received a copy of "A Bill—To increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes. By Mr. Underwood. September 21, 1914.—Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means and order to be printed. September 22, 1914.—Reported with amendments, committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and ordered to be printed." We need not say anything of the importance of the proposed legislation in a national sense; it is sufficient for us to consider the philatelic aspect that is given the bill through its provisions for adhesive stamps to represent the levy of the special taxes. It is safe to say that the bill as passed by the House will become a law without substantial changes, although no little opposition has developed to some of its terms.

Thorough—In reading the bill, one who remembers the revenue bill of the civil war period recognizes the present proposed enactment as a somewhat similar, though briefer, document, and by the same token the bill of 1914 is more embracive in its measures than the revenue bill called forth by the Spanish-American war of 1898. Under Schedule A of the bill, headed "Stamp Taxes," the instruments subject to tax are listed with the rate at which they are dutiable. As we shall reprint the paragraphs of this schedule to an extent, it will not be necessary to refer categorically to the specifications here; and we shall merely observe that the tax is a documentary one chiefly, although telegraph and telephone messages for which a charge of fifteen cents or more was imposed are taxed at one cent each. Palace and parlor car seats and sleeping-car berths when sold are charged with two cents to be paid by the company selling them.

Duration—The final section of the bill under notice determines the period of enforcement of the provisions. The act is to take effect the day next succeeding the date of its passage, in general: "Provided that on the day after the thirty-first day of December, nineteen hundred and fifteen, the taxes levied under Schedule A of this Act shall no longer be levied and collected." After the date aforesaid, unused stamps will be redeemed from the holder according to stipulations that he may prescribe. It is to be said that the revenue stamps will be general in their application and will not be issued for any special or restricted service as in the instance, at first, of the revenue stamps of the civil war time; but the stamps may be used interchangeably.

Adhesive Stamps—The section, "Adhesive Stamps," says that the levy shall begin on the first day of November, 1914. The penalty for ignoring the tax is a heavy one, at the discretion of the court, one hundred dollars being the maximum; and as under previous laws the instrument unstamped "shall not be competent evidence in any court." For the acceptor of a bill of exchange without a stamp, the penalty is heavier, the limit of the fine being two hundred dollars at the discretion of the court. The forging of any stamp, die, plate, etc., is given close attention and further, "piecing" is named as an offense and the washing off of cancellations or restoring the stamps for a second use is proscribed under pain of punishment. The manner of cancellation of the stamps is specified and as formerly, the stamps are to bear the user's initials with date of delivery. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue is instructed to prepare "suitable stamps" and he is given authority to change the manner of cancellation if he deems it advisable to do so; or he may take additional cautionary measures. So, it may follow that the cutting of or otherwise mutilating the stamps will again be enforced.

Printing License—There is a possibility that all the stamps required under the new enactment will not be printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing as we read: "The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this Act by contract whenever such stamps cannot be speedily prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; but this authority shall expire on the first day of November, nineteen hundred and fifteen, except as to imprinted stamps furnished under contract, authorized by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. That the adhesive stamps used in the payment of the tax levied in Schedule A of this Act shall be furnished for sale by the several collectors of internal revenue, who shall sell and deliver them at their face value to all persons applying for the same, except officers or employees of the Internal-Revenue Service; Provided, That such collectors may sell and deliver such stamps in quantities of not less than $100 of face value, with a discount of one per centum, except as otherwise provided in this Act." It is plain that collectors may look with every assurance for interesting developments in a philatelic sense upon the final adoption of the revenue bill. There may be stamps prepared by firms other than the Bureau as well as by our standard producer and it is certain that stamped revenue paper will be printed under contract as was done under the revenue bills in the past.

They Come Clean—Lest any reader remember aspersions against the character of the Mexican constitutional set printed at Denver, it is only fair to say that the stamps in question are coming in such numbers to the United States on letters on which they rate the full postage addressed to business firms, for instance, that there does not remain the scintilla of a suspicion against the postal adequacy of the stamps.

Censored Letters—Letters from the countries at war are now seen in some profusion with the censor's labels on them, showing that the methods employed by the postal scrutineers are somewhat similar in about all the cases. The thoroughness of the espionage of the service is impressive and it reflects the earnestness with which the restrictions are enforced.

Too Analytical—A reader says: "In reading your summary on the stamp situation, in the recent Special number, and I found your remarks interesting and plausible, I find the words: ' . . . While perhaps stamps are being used rather freely as collateral . . ' Now, what do you mean? Are the stamps given to the bank as collateral for money borrowed," and so on. We may as well say outright that we meant that the stamps were pledged at the loan-office, or, if that is not plain enough, the pawn-shop. We cannot say that stamps are not serving as collateral at regulation banks, as well.

MORE ABOUT MEXICO.

By GEORGE W. LINN.

I have just noticed a note regarding the second issue of Sonora being again on sale. This statement is incorrect and should be corrected. There has been a new printing of the Sonora Green Seal issue and the values are 1, 2, 3, 5 and 10c. The 1, 2 and 3c are of the same design and arrangement as the last printings of these values, but the 5c has the thick heavy figure of value in place of the thin figure. The 10c value is the same as the previous green seal 10c but is rouletted in black lines. These two values, 5c and 10c, are clear and distinct varieties, but the 1c, 2c and 3c are so like the earlier printings that they will confuse many collectors and to be plain about the matter, the ordinary collector will be satisfied with either the earlier or this printing for his examples of these three low values. However it is easily possible to distinguish any of them from the former printings and the five varieties on a sheet can readily be plated.

It is my firm opinion, however, based on my study of the events and conditions existing in Mexico that this issue is already a thing of the past. About two weeks ago the newspapers contained items about the new trouble between Governor Maytorena of Sonora and Carranza, and a few days later, statements that our friend Villa had settled the squabble. Although I am not positive, I believe that this issue of stamps which I believe was used only at Magdalena, was put out by Maytorena and that the trouble now being settled, the issue is a dead one. The stamps I believe were in use but a few days and that they were used is proved by the fact that within three days I received two parcels and three letters bearing these stamps in all values from 1c to 10c. One parcel had a full strip of five of the 10c value on it. One letter which came registered, I will describe to you. The party sending it evidently took it to the post office with a strip of four of the 5c Denver issue on it and a pair of 2c U. S. stuck on below for postage in this country. I suppose that when he presented it for registration that the postmaster must have told him that those 5c stamps on the letter were N. G. and that the country now belonged to a new crowd; anyhow across these 5c red stamps were pasted a 5c and 10c of the new Green Seal issue. The cancellation is a new thing too. It is said that the postmaster who was on the job for Carranza skipped out and took all the post office utensils with him and the stamps come cancelled with the word "Mexico" in green ink, the letters being about ½ inch in height. I also have a letter mailed from Magdalena which has the stamp cancelled with an indelible lead pencil. I also have one of the Perforated Transitorios which is cancelled with the large word Mexico.

It is said that Maytorena had planned to issue a set of stamps with the picture of Madero on them but these evidently did not get finished.

Judging from newspaper reports about the Mexican situation it would appear that we will soon be done with Sonoras as I should judge that Mexico City will soon take the entire postal business in hand and that will probably mean either a universal use of this Denver issue throughout Mexico (which I doubt), or a new issue for the country. As this would take some time to prepare unless already ordered, I would not be surprised to see the stock of the Federal Mexican stamps on hand, surcharged in a neat manner and used until a new set can be prepared.

I also would like to say a word about the stamps which are coming to various dealers with the Surcharge "GOBIERNO CONSTITUCIONALISTA either diagonally across the stamps in two lines or horizontally in three lines thus:

Gobierno
Constitucion
alista

The type is about a 14 point italic letter. I believe these are all fakes although I may be mistaken, but I have yet to see one on cover or which looks good. Several used copies which I have seen show portions of the dates and these dates are in some cases back in 1913. I have also had sent me a bunch surcharged with a rubber stamp in letters a little less than ¼ inch in height. These are also fakes but I have seen this surcharge in larger letters which are about ⅜ of an inch in height and at present believe they were issued thus.

Some people enjoy knocking the G C M issue because of the variety of colors of surcharge, only three. I believe as a whole, that this issue is a very clean one. Just imagine if you can the extraordinary possibilities for freaks, doubles, surcharges, inverts and what not, that could have come in these stamps, but after examining something like 8000 of these stamps of all values and all colors, I can really say that I was greatly disappointed in the small number of varieties that I found. I am now making up a check list of all varieties of which I know and will send you a copy when ready. The list will contain a few little surprises.

TRANSFER OF THE FRENCH STAMP PRINTING WORKS.

The French Government has decided to establish a new stamp factory, which is already in active preparation. The Postage Stamp understands that Marseilles will be the locale of the new establishment, which, although partly necessitated by the circumstances of the war will yet be a permanent institution in that city. Machinery of the latest type is being prepared for the new factory, and important contracts in connection therewith have been placed in London.

The size of the stamps will be as heretofore, the perforations similar also, but the sheet arrangement provides for the printing of the stamps in two panes with a narrow pillar down the middle of each pane, and a centre pillar of about 24 mm.—Postage Stamp.

Advertising Chat—No. 7.

Our advertising columns continue to reflect the increased activity of the stamp business. Old advertisers are again taking space and new dealers never before in our columns are now with us.

The J. M. Bartels Co. will have regular space on page 3. Mr. Bartels recently reached home, having gone through the experiences of a troubled European trip. This firm is well known to our readers and we bespeak for it a goodly patronage.

C. H. Nammack, whose advertising has appeared regularly in the WEEKLY during the past year, expresses the conviction that the stamp market offerings for the next year or so will be greatly in excess of the demand. He writes however, "I am nevertheless going out after business and expect to use increased space in your old reliable paper this season."

There is no doubt but that the collector who has a dollar to spend will get more for his money the coming season than he has ever secured before.

One of our younger advertisers is H. Raymond Stiles of Schenectady. His announcements have been of a modest character but this week he branches out with larger space. We have never had a single complaint from any source, of any kind, in regard to Mr. Stiles' business dealings.

It will be noted that the Scott Co. is advertising for an assistant. This looks good. By the way, we failed to note last week the fact that Maxwell Krause was again represented in our columns.

Don't forget the next special number, to be dated October 31. We shall make this a business bringer and it will come at a very opportune time. Remember, our quarter pages are only $15 and no stamp paper or magazine anywhere in the world can touch this proposition.

We will come again.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—The current "Officially Sealed" stamp has been issued on watermarked paper. As this stamp is "not official," this marks a radical change in postal practice. The New England Stamp Co. has shown us a full sheet of these stamps with the new watermark, which consists of an enlarged representation of the Great Seal of the United States. The stamps are printed in sheets of twenty, arranged in four rows of five stamps. The watermark covers twelve stamps, four stamps at each end of the sheet being unwatermarked.

Charles M. Breder calls attention to shades of the current 3c stamp, something not at all rare in all issues in violet, lilac or purple.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us more of the new King George stamps from these Islands. The design is that used for the stamps of Grenada.

CANAL ZONE.—According to the Philadelphia Stamp News the new Panama commemorative stamps are to be overprinted for use in the Canal Zone. The number to be overprinted will be 100,000 each of the 1c, 2c and 5c, and 50,000 of the 10c.

COSTA RICA.—The C. E. Hussman Co. has shown us some novelties from Costa Rica, including the Scott's No. 100, with surcharge in blue; an unused pair, one without surcharge; and the 1 colon olive bistre and black of 1901, surcharged "Correos—Habilitada—Un centime," in three lines in black.

HONDURAS.—We are indebted to the Rev. Louis Voss for a copy of the current 10c lithographed stamp in brown, as noted last week. Hermann Focke has also shown us the new colors and provisionals noted last week.

MEXICO.—George W. Linn has shown us further varieties of surcharged "Constitutionalist" stamps. The latest is a large double-lined circle, with "Gobierno" above and "Constitutionalista" below. Mr. Linn says: "These stamps come with the surcharge covering a pair of stamps and also in center of a block of four. It would seem that this surcharge was intended to use in center of a block of four as this would allow them to overprint a sheet with 25 overprints and cover all stamps. The overprint is evidently used for the purpose of protecting the Constitutional Government but not allowing the use of stamps without the overprint. I suppose these are coming from the Villa branch. Have already seen these on the 1, 3, 4, 5, 15 and 20c values in various colors. I expect we will find them in all values and all colors. To get this set right one will have to have at least pairs or blocks of four, the latter preferred. However, they are being offered much cheaper than 'G C M' and this won't break a collector up."

J. P. Crawford sends us information regarding the surcharges being placed on the Federal stamps of Mexico, by the Constitutionalist authorities. He also reports having seen a Federal envelope surcharged "Gobierno Constitutionalista" in a circle, with "A M" in the centre.

Hermann Focke adds to our budget of Constitutionalist surcharges, having shown us stamps from a printed form mailed at Puebla. As he says, it is the most decent looking of anything yet seen. Mr. Focke writes: "I do not know whether this is a local product of the city of Puebla, or whether it has been issued by the Central Government at Mexico City; it is the first and only one I have seen. The '$' mark between the two words 'Gobierno' and 'Constitucionalista' is not intelligible, but may represent the value of the currency, as 10 cents Mexican money today barely represents 2 cents in our coin."

Mr. Focke has also shown us a Federal wrapper, with the usual "Gobierno Constitutionalista" overprint. This was issued at Monterey, with hand-stamped overprint.

MOZAMBIQUE.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the 1914 issues of postal cards and letter cards.

Post Cards.

1c green and black on light buff.
2c red and black on white.
1x1c green and black on dark buff.
2x2c red and black on white.

Letter Cards.

2½c lilac and black on yellow.
5c blue and black on white.
2½x2½c lilac and black on yellow.

NICARAGUA.—The York Stamp Co. has shown us several varieties of the Cordoba surcharges of 1913. The second "1" of "1913" being broken across its centre.

—"Reference my recent letter on the U. S. Issues of Mexican Revenues I wish to add that in the ordinary revenues there was a 3 cent printed at the same time as the others, but this was not put on sale till after my last letter. The first sale being Sept. 21st. I also failed to state that the stamps for boxes of 25 cigars were surcharged Gov U. S. A. with the other stamps and that these stamps were reprinted and marked U. S. A., the same as the revenue stamps. The sale of the new issue did not begin till about the 1st of Aug."—W. E. MILLS.

STAMPS BY THE POUND.

The WEEKLY declines to accept any further advertising of stamps by the pound, whether foreign or United States. WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

WHAT SHALL I COLLECT?

Following my remarks last week on "General Collecting," I will now take up the subject of "Specializing" for the benefit of those who have decided to abandon the general collection, or who desire to enlarge on certain lines of it. In order to do justice to this subject, it is necessary to first point out a few lines to collect, and later tell how to specialize these lines.

UNITED STATES AND COLONIES.

As is to be expected, this country stands first in the hearts of all American collectors, or nearly all, and figures show that there are at least ten times as many of United States specialists in the American Philatelic Society as there are of any other country. As many members do not designate their specialty, it is impossible to give the actual figures.

United States, its colonies and side lines, offer a field that is a big contract. The United States specialist will have quite as much work cut out for him as the ordinary general collector, if he intends to carry his work to extremes, or even to moderate specialization. In fact this field is so very large that no small number of collectors divide it into small parts, and still have plenty to collect. Dr. Carroll Chase, a distinguished specialist of United States stamps, confines his entire attention to the issues of ten years, from 1847 to 1857. Dr. Chase has accomplished some very wonderful things in these three issues, and his work is not as yet completed, nor will it be for some time. Several other collectors are also interested in the stamps of these first issues. I would not suggest such specialization as this for the young collector, or the collector of moderate means. One can secure quite as much enjoyment by collecting more varieties and not covering the details so minutely. Unless the collector is a very patient and energetic student and is fond of microscopic work, I would not suggest the specialization of any one issue.

A very popular way of specializing a country is to divide it into the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. In the case of the United States postal issues, a better place to separate these issues is with the issue of 1894. This issue is the first of the United States stamps to be printed by the government bureau of printing and engraving, as all previous issues were made by private bank note companies. This particular branch of our country's stamps is quite extensive, and means an expenditure of money, especially if the shades and minor details are included.

The departments, envelopes, telegraphs, locals, newspaper stamps, and revenues are all extensive side lines, and can furnish very interesting material for a collection. Of the above classes, probably the revenues are the best for the collector of moderate means and experience to work on. Envelopes can be obtained for little money, and a nice representative collection made for a small sum, but any attempt at specializing these will mean considerable study to distinguish the various dies. As adhesive stamps seem to be the most popular with collectors, envelope collections do not realize as high a price as the "stickers."

The Colonies offer a very attractive field for the collector, though there are not a great many minor varieties. I do not include the Spanish issues of the Colonies in my statement, as I do not consider these a part of the United States Colonies. The collector who cares to include them will find that he has a few hard nuts to crack. Taking everything into consideration a general collection of United States and Colonies offers as nice an opportunity as any collector can desire, whether highly specialized or "just collected."

BRITISH COLONIALS.

The stamps of these countries include the "cream of the earth." Probably this division is the most popular of any in the world with collectors. British Colonials rank a very close second in popularity in America, and taking all collectors the world over into consideration, they probably draw many times the attention devoted to any other section. Like the United States, they are impossible to complete. In fact, the collector will find it practically impossible to complete most of the colonies. These stamps include a great many of the world's greatest rarities, and nearly all colonies can boast of some expensive stamps. In design, they are second to none. For the most part, they are clean legitimate issues, with very few speculative and unnecessary items. There are enough varieties of perforation and watermark to delight the most rabid specialist, and yet the collector who wishes to simplify his work can do so. The endless variety of design and color permits the making of a beautiful display in an album. The collector who wishes a real stamp hunt should endeavor to collect these stamps postally used. His work will be never ending.

OTHER COLONIALS.

The French, German and Portuguese colonials are quite popular, and make very nice collections. Some are quite costly, though less so than the British Colonials. The main objection to these stamps is that the same design is used for nearly all of the colonies, and repetition tends to spoil the effect of the display. With the exception of the Portuguese, these colonies are quite free from speculation and are very "solid." However, speaking as a class, there is not as great a future for these stamps as for others.

SOUTH AND CENTRAL AMERICA.

For many years these stamps were not very popular with collectors, partly because of the speculation in some of the issues, and chiefly because of the difficulty of obtaining these stamps and information about them. No great effort was made, as the eyes of the collecting world were focused on Europe and its colonies. In the last ten years, however, much attention has been turned to these countries, and they are rapidly growing in favor. As is usual with any large number of countries, there are quite a few very scarce stamps included. Of course, there are quite speculative and unnecessary issues, but the collector who really puts his heart into his work will find even these more or less interesting. The large number of surcharges offer all the minor varieties a collector could wish for. Owing to the fact that exchange facilities are not as well developed with these countries as with others, not as much is known of these stamps. At first sight the long lists of surcharges will stagger the uninformed collector, but after a little experience, he will agree that most of these are within reach. For true specialism, better material will be found in these countries than in almost any others.

Nicaragua alone makes a splendid collection. The man who likes inverted surcharges, misplaced letters, errors, imperforates, and other minor varieties will be in clover. He can spend the rest of his life collecting this country, and there will always be a few left for his descendants to gather. At the same time, he will need so many to complete his collection that he will shed no tears over the fact that he cannot find No. 253 or No. 133a used on cover, or a few of the others. Salvador is even worse than Nicaragua, as it has not been treated as thoroughly by the specialists. In fact, the lack of hand-books and check lists on these countries adds materially to the difficulty in collecting them. They offer an opportunity for some philatelist of literary turn of mind to make a name for himself. If no one else comes to the rescue. I am afraid I shall have to study these stamps and write them up.

EUROPE.

There are so many very common stamps of any of the European countries that it is possible to make a nice specialized collection of these countries, showing shades, post-marks, etc., for a very little money. The early issues are in some cases quite expensive, and nearly all are in great demand. The imperforate issues, especially in blocks and pairs, are growing steadily scarcer, and are proving mighty good property. The stamps are all more or less interesting, though some are very common. For this very fact, however, specialized collections showing shifted dies, shades, blocks, pairs, post-marks, and the other differences gathered by the specialist, are seldom met with. Collectors seem to direct their attention more to the smaller countries where the stamps are harder to get. The philatelist who desires to study hair-line varieties, and who enjoys looking through thousands of stamps of one kind for minor details, should devote his attention to the European stamps. There is still a great deal to be learned about these stamps.

OTHER LINES TO SPECIALIZE.

In outlining this article, it is not my intention to go into detail and pick out every line that it would be possible to specialize. The space is limited, and besides, collectors will pick their lines for themselves, regardless of any article on the subject. In fact, the best rule for specialized collecting is: collect what you want to, and dispense with the rest. Pick out one stamp or set from a country if you want to.

Some popular lines collected are: Commemorative stamps—a splendid chance to make a beautiful collection and also to learn history; Proofs and Essays—interesting and scarce, but should properly be collected with the regular postage issues of the country; "Specimen" stamps—same remarks; stamps on covers; blocks, pairs and strips, especially imperforates; precancels; revenues; post-cards; postage dues; envelope stamps; special delivery; revenue stamps used for postage, and errors and novelties.

The collector who does not care to collect a group of countries, can specialize in any country he chooses and have a lot of fun with it. If he has ambitions and plenty of money, let him collect some country with many stamps, Colombian Republic, for instance (a homely but very fertile field for specialists.) If he feels like having a stamp collection and a bank account, probably his attentions had better be directed on the Ionian Islands (even these will "set him back some" if he tries to get them in blocks and used on covers.)

Next week, I will try to give the would-be specialist some pointers on "How to Specialize," and as I am still in favor of general collecting, I sincerely hope that no one will follow my suggestions.

WAR MAKING BUSINESS DULL?

It needn't, if you conduct your affairs along the line of offered opportunity. Small traders and amateurs afford a splendid chance to develop a profitable business. Don't overlook the youngsters. Times have to be pretty bad when they can't get a quarter or a half dollar from Dad to add a few new stamps to their collection. Build up your business now when world wars make stamp collecting especially interesting. But begin right—get acquainted with the St. Nicholas youngsters. Send for rates in our stamp directory and ask us to prove why we claim leadership.

A STANDARD DECIMAL CLASSIFICATION FOR UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS.

By H. L. WILEY.

The check list or standard classification of United States stamps which is presented herewith is the result of the writer's efforts toward constructing a rational system of classifying the postage stamps of the United States.

The decimal system has been used throughout. It is without question the only satisfactory system which will permit infinite extension of any species or variety included in its principal index without involving the use of a multiplicity of meaningless hierogliphics.

In the writer's classification brevity has been sacrificed to some slight degree, in several instances for reasons which will presently be apparent. The first general principle of the system is that the figures and letter or letters to the left of the decimal point designate the denomination of the stamp and the year of issue. Stamps issued during the nineteenth century have for the first figure of the index, the numeral "1." Stamps included in issues of the twentieth century have for the first figure of their index, the numeral "2." Philatelists of today are not concerned with stamps of a century or two hence except in so far as their moral obligation to the philatelists of the future may obtain. The stamps of the twenty-first, twenty-second and twenty-third, etc., centuries will have for the first figure of their indices, the numerals "3," "4," "5," etc.

The two numerals following the first figure of the index designate the issue; thus the stamps of the 47th year of the 18th century, (the issue, that is, of 1847) are designated by the three numerals "147," those of 1851 by "151," those of 1912 by "212": It is apparent that the first three figures of the index can thus show the year of issue and the century in which this year belongs.

Following the first three numerals indicating the century and year, there comes one or more letters designating the denomination of the stamp. The decimal point, which must invariably appear in case further description is made of the stamp other than the year of issue and denomination, is set immediately to the right of the letter or letters, denoting the denomination.

The series of letters used to denote the denomination include the first ten letters of the alphabet exclusive of the letter "I" together with the letter "X," which is used to represent "nought." The letter "I" was omitted because of the likelihood of confusing it with the figure 1. The equivalents are as follows:

A	B	C	D	E	F	G	H	J	X
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	0

The letter "A" means a stamp of the denomination of 1 cent, the letter "B" of 2 cents, the letters "AX" means a stamp of the denomination of 10 cents. The letters "AXX" mean a stamp of the denomination of 100 cents or $1.00.

This system of designating the denomination has been thought preferable to using numerals because it is not likely to be confused with other significant numerals of the index and because it affords a clear cut line between the major varieties and the minor varieties.

In this system the major varieties are those stamps differing in general design from all other stamps. Differences such as secret marks, the August type of 1861, double transfers and the re-engraved issues are not considered to be major varieties. Paper varieties, differences in perforations, watermarks and colors, and various issues of the same stamp produced by different workmen or companies are not considered major varieties.

To the right of the decimal point which follows the letter designating the denomination there appears one or more numerals which indicate secondary varieties. As far as possible these numerals have been standardized, thus the numeral "2" has been generally used for the purpose of indicating double paper, "3" to indicate ribbed paper, "4" to indicate stitch watermark, "5" to indicate a grill, etc.

The various grills have been classified under the number of points appearing on each of the two horizontal dimensions. The points on the grills were spaced at intervals of 1/32 of an inch and thus it has been possible to classify the known grills by their individual index number and at the same time to provide for any grill liable to be discovered in the future. The three exceptions to the grills which have been found are the double grills, the marginal grill and the grill covering the entire stamp. The review of the treatment of each issue follows:

The Issue of 1847.

This issue includes but two stamps and for that reason, the treatment is obvious. The reprint or Government counterfeit is designated by the numeral "3," following the decimal point.

147AX.1	Double transfer.
147AX.2	Stitch watermark.

The Issue of 1851.

Included in this issue are the imperforate stamps used in 1851, the perforate stamps of the same design used in 1857 and the reprints made one year later. The writer confesses his ignorance of the various super-refinements discovered from time to time by philatelic investigators of questionable ability and a minimum of accurate data and for that reason the types listed by the well known authority, W. L. Stevenson, have been adopted in this index. The imperforate stamps are designated by the numeral "1" immediately following the decimal point. The perforated stamps of 1857 are designated by the figure "2" immediately following the decimal point. The reprints are designated by the numeral "3" following the decimal point. Type varieties, double transfers, and imperforate errors are designated by numerals following the one to the right of the decimal point. It will be noted that practically all known varieties have been included in the index.

The Issue of 1869.

This issue presents no difficulties. The normal stamps can be designated by the numeral "1" to the right of the decimal point although this figure of the index is not essential. The reprints are designated by adding the numeral "5" to the normal index, thus the 1 cent 1869 reprinted is noted as 169A.15.

OUR SUBSCRIPTION CAMPAIGN.

We are delighted with the way our subscribers are responding to our request that a little effort be put forth for the securing of new subscribers. We cannot possibly find the time to note all the responses that have been received. They have come in the form of ten weeks, six months and yearly subscriptions, while some have even sent in two new subscriptions.

R. H. Smith, Wallingford, Conn., writes:—"I have shown the WEEKLY to two of my collecting friends and enclose herewith $1 for a year's subscription for each of them. They will never be sorry."

Lloyd M. Coe of Richmond Hill, N. Y., renewing his own subscription for a year sends in a new subscriber This is a very frequent occurrence and is very gratifying to the editor.

All you need do is to show the WEEKLY to your friend and the paper with our premium offers will do the rest.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Proprietary Medicine Tax—As expected, the Senate tinkered with the House revenue bill but the finance committee of that august body has not inspired by its action the opponents of the bill, as the democratic members of the committee were careful not to impair the effectiveness of the measure as a revenue raiser, by the changes. On the contrary by taxing proprietary medicines, perfumery, chewing gum and sparkling wines, it is apparent that any deficit to be charged against the original revision by the committee will be overcome heartily. In fact, this reversion to proprietary taxes such as were a feature of the Spanish-American war revenue bill will increase the income to the government considerably. The amendment provides for a graduated stamp tax of one-eighth of a cent on articles costing not more than five cents to five-eighths for each twenty-five cents of additional value. The tax proposed for chewing gum is four cents for each box worth one dollar or less and at the same rate for added value; while the tax on sparkling wines not otherwise specified in the bill is one cent for pints and two cents for quarts. It will be observed that these taxes conform closely to those imposed by the revenue bill of 1898.

In Theory—The imposition of a proprietary tax will require the issue of an additional set of revenue stamps, no doubt, for the articles coming under the provisions of the bill, as it is unlikely that the stamps intended for documentary use will be accepted in payment of the medicine tax. It is assumed that the fractional cent values of the proprietary stamps will follow those that were issued sixteen years ago. In view of the comparatively short expectancy of life of the revenue bill, it is supposed that there will be little disposition on the part of manufacturers of proprietary articles to order special stamps for their uses,—but then the House bill did not extend manufacturers permission to employ distinctive stamps as they are there given the privilege to do under the two former revenue bills. While the Senate is in receipt of the customary protests from business men and others against this or that provision of the bill, it is premature to say just now what effect they will have. However, by the time these words are in print, the form of the revenue bill should be definitely decided upon.

Press News—The newspapers have been telling us of the special German postage stamps for Belgium under German occupation; and likewise have they been circulating the news that the order for the "Peace" or Treaty of Ghent issue by the United States has been countermanded. Indeed, we have read that the "Peace" stamps in question are to be destroyed, the assumption being that already they are prepared! We gave official information on this score on page 351, "Peace Stamps in Abeyance," issue of October 3rd. One of the newspaper explanations of the relinquishing of the plan for "peace" stamps was that an action such as the issue of "partnership stamps" of the kind would be construed as a violation of the spirit of neutrality by the nations opposed to Great Britain.

Obey—We have noticed that under date of October 7th, the first assistant postmaster general has issued the warning to postmasters under the words: "Postmarks Must Be Legible. The Department continues to receive complaints and evidence of carelessness in postmarking, one firm alone having recently submitted over one hundred envelopes bearing illegible postmarks. The attention of all postmasters is again called to the necessity for care in postmarking." It is not necessary to emphasize the importance generally of postmarks that may be readily deciphered.

Foreign Mails—Readers who have inquired about the movement of the foreign mails from this country will be interested in an explanation by Robert L. Maddox, superintendent of the foreign mails division of the post office department. In special correspondence to the Daily News, Chicago, Mr. Maddox makes it clear that the record of the department is a creditable one as the delays in consequence of the war have not been great. It seems that the postmaster general has acted in a way to meet all emergencies, having had recourse to that power which is arbitrary in its scope that allows him to act on his own judgment in times of sudden stress. Mr. Maddox is quoted as saying: "We are getting our foreign mail off three or four times a week and that is no less frequent than in normal times. The service is slower however, necessarily. Our regular routes for Germany and Austria are by way of England and France. By the fast passenger service formerly obtainable we were able to get this mail to English or French points in about six days, after which only about thirty hours were required to reach the ultimate destination. Now we must send this mail by way of Italy or Holland or Scandinavia. It requires from nine to twelve days to get it to Holland or Italy and from twelve to fourteen to Norway or Sweden. Without being able to speak officially about it, I should say that the greatest delay would obtain in those countries where troops are constantly mobilizing. Every thing gives way there to the military. Mail might well be delayed and of course there would be the same difficulty in getting swift ships after the mail had reached a seaport." The answer to complaints about censored mail addressed to this country but originating in the countries at war is that the responsibility of this country for mail is "limited specifically to the time during which the mail actually is in the custody of the United States."

* * *

What Week in August—We understand that already the members of the American Philatelic Society in San Francisco and vicinity are planning for the next convention of the American Philatelic Society; and they are desirous that the date of the event be definitely selected thus early in the fiscal year for the guidance of the Fair authorities in making up their calendars and in securing accommodations for the convention—not to mention other formalities. The members who are vitally interested in the San Francisco convention are those who expect to attend it; and we think that their convenience should be consulted if the date of the convention is to be fixed so far ahead. The convention will be held in August according to the established custom but let those who think of attending the next annual meeting say what week in August suits them best in a letter or card to President Coolidge. We are sure that an expression of opinion on the subject from members would be welcomed by the president and we are sure that he would give due consideration to the wishes of the majority. It does seem a bit early to decide upon attending the San Francisco convention just now, but our familiar friends, the months, have a way of slipping by so fast that they confound any but the fore-handed.

FIRST POSTAL ISSUED 45 YEARS AGO.

Forty-five years ago (Oct. 1), the world's first postal card was issued by the Austrian postoffice officials at Vienna. The first in the United States appeared four years later, after public demand forced this government concession. The principal official argument against the postal card was that such open communication offered an excellent opportunity for the writer of libel to exercise his nefarious work. Official opposition met with popular clamor in other countries, and various were the methods to force governments to follow Austria's lead. An English army officer in India, where he missed the postal card he had become accustomed to in England, forced the Indian government to capitulate. The government had claimed there was no popular demand for postal cards. The officer set out to demonstrate that there was. He had postal cards bearing his own name and rank printed, and used them entirely for his own correspondence, of course, obeying the postal regulations by affixing stamps equal to letter rate postage. He induced his friends to follow his example. The resulting flood of postal cards aroused the government. The army officer was ordered to discontinue his cards. He replied that if he chose to write messages on a piece of cardboard instead of on sheets of paper, the postoffice authorities could not compel him to inclose the card in an envelope. The legal advisers of the government sustained his claim, and India was forced to adopt the postal card.

Today the postal card is universal. In the United States nearly 1,000,000,000 government postal cards, enough to supply every man, woman and child in the country with ten apiece, are issued annually. Expressed in another way, it means that the American people are spending yearly about $10,000,000 to carry on their correspondence by means of postal cards. In the 40 years that postal cards have circulated throughout the United States their number has increased nearly 30 times—the record for the first year of their introduction in the United States, in 1873, being about 31,000,000. Each year witnessed a gradual increase in their popularity until the demand grew too great for the private print shops that formerly printed the cards under contract, and the public printing office at Washington took over the task. Today two great rotary presses each capable of printing, cutting, and distributing the postal cards into packages of 25, each package bound with a paper band, are turning them out at the maximum rate of 4,000,000 every working day of eight hours. It is claimed that the picture post card was born of the Franco-German war, the first card making its appearance in 1870 in the town of Magdeburg, in Germany. In the last decade the souvenir card has become a world-wide institution. An accurate estimate of their number has not yet been made, although Germany recently reported that in that country alone more than 1,300,000,000 were published during one year.—Washington Post.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Will Geo. H. Phillips, who desires a Poole book, please send his address to this office?

—B. Elmer has been ill for some two weeks and unable to attend to correspondence. He craves the pardon of any who may have written him, as correspondence has necessarily been delayed.

—Wm. Lloyd calls our attention to the fact that his street number was given in error in our issue of October 3. As per his advertisement in the trade column of this week, it should be 606 Royal St., New Orleans, La.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. M. Breder, N. Doyle, Benj. Weisner.

—At the last Nassau Sale a copy of the 30c 1869, inverted flags, sold for $1,750. This is said to be a record price for this stamp. A 30c 1851 brought $627.00.

—Paul W. Riedell would like to know the whereabouts of Robt. J. MacNeal who applied for approvals from Noank, Conn., and cannot now be located.

—A. C. Roessler advises us that a second type of red cross stamp has been issued by France. The new design shows the 5+10c incorporated in the design of the stamp. Further particulars doubtless in the chronicle.

—On October 16 the Milwaukee Philatelic Society celebrated the 15th anniversary of the society, which occurs November 1. A banquet was in order at the Blatz Hotel with Alfred Fisher as toastmaster and Dr. F. A. Kraft and Prof. L. D. Peasley as speakers.

—The September number of the Insurance Journal published at Hartford, Conn., gives the leading place to an article descriptive of the insurance agency of Silas Chapman, Jr., Hartford's oldest insurance agent. The frontispiece is a fine halftone of Mr. Chapman and three large illustrations, with exterior and interior views of the office are also shown. The descriptive matter contains reference to Mr. Chapman's interest in philately, paying a strong tribute to his collection.

SOLDIER LETTERS.

We are indebted to W. L. McAtee for a lengthy clipping from the Washington Star giving the story in connection with the official post cards now in use for field service with British soldiers at the front. The card in question bears upon the reverse side the following matter:—

NOTHING is to be written on this except date and signature of the sender. Sentences not required may be erased. If anything else is added the post card will be destroyed.

Advertising Chat—No. 8.

What did you think of the advertising in last week's paper? It showed conclusively that there is no dullness in the office of the WEEKLY.

Hardly a week passes but some advertiser takes advantage of our quarter page proposition. Last week B. L. Drew & Co. and M. D. Olmstead were with us. 144 lines for $15 is the cheapest stamp advertising on the face of the globe.

The Western Stamp Co., conducting a general stamp business at 1632 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill., and catering to the collector of medium priced stamps, will hereafter be found regularly on page 5. Mr. Severn gives this firm a good recommendation.

The old and reliable firm of Perrin & Co. sends us a series of advertisements and hopes to use a quarter page "if the European war does not knock the spots out of the stamp business." Does the WEEKLY look as if this were possible?

The Williams' Book Store of Boston wants a regular place and will be found on page 2. This firm is in the market to buy. Albert Rassman, administrator of the philatelic possessions of Ignaz Stauffer, will offer some stamp bargains from week to week during the coming months.

All in all, we are very well pleased with October business, both from subscription and advertising standpoints. Don't forget that our next special comes October 31 and advertising copy should be received by October 23-24.

Those 60% approvals are the very best possible. And an additional 10% if you pay in ten days. If 60 and 10% is not low enough considering the condition and cost, I will reduce the list price, so you are sure to get your money's worth. It will only cost you a stamp and a reference to obtain a selection, and then there is a nice little unused United States premium for you. I would like to have you for one of my regular customers. B. B. B.--Never Stung Anyone Yet!

THE MELVILLE JOURNALS GO ON.

Most of Fred. J. Melville's many activities in the philatelic literary line will go on as usual, and are not being seriously interfered with by the European crisis. All business is going on in London much as usual, though in some directions it is necessarily slack through timidity of buyers. Although the Daily Telegraph has suspended the weekly articles on stamps, on account of the pressure upon its news columns, Mr. Melville's weekly journal, the Postage Stamp, goes on as usual, and with its fifteenth volume starts in as a splendid illustrated philatelic record of the great war. As a special inducement to United States friends to support this endeavour, annual subscriptions from philatelists in the United States will be accepted for one dollar.

U. S. friends may send greenbacks, which can be used all right in London. Subscriptions may be sent to Mr. Fred. J. Melville, 14 Sudbourne Rd., Brixton, London, S. W. The Stamp Lover, the monthly organ of the Junior Philatelic Society, as well as all the other activities of the Society, will be maintained in full swing.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—William F. Works shows us a specimen of the current 2c envelope which has the inner colorless line much thickened at the top, with several of the letters in "United States" little more than mere colorless blotches. These are not varieties for the catalogue, and only of interest as illustrating the botch work made possible under the present system of printing envelopes.

AUSTRALIA.—The Australian Philatelist reports an interesting block of 18 1d Kangaroo stamps, most peculiarly watermarked. The stamps are the three bottom rows of the left-hand pane. The vertical row of three stamps on the right, that is to say, the central portion of the whole sheet, is without watermark. The next vertical row shows the lower stamp without watermark also, and the other two bear part of the word "Commonwealth," which is found on the margin of a sheet. The remaining rows have the normal watermark, which is also shown in the margin on the left-hand side. A feasible explanation is that the sheet was half a pane out when being watermarked, but do not think that the selvage is so great as to permit of the other half pane being printed on it. The query: How was the right-hand pane watermarked? suggests itself.

BADEN.—The London Philatelist reports the following interesting discovery:—

"It is in the second issue of Baden—that of March, 1853—in which only the colours of the first issue were changed as regards the 1, 3 and 6 kreuzers, that the discovery has been made, viz., the 1 kreuzer, black on white, printed tête bêche. The specimen in question was described and illustrated in Herr H. Kohler's auction sale, held at Berlin, on June 17-19, it being stated to be unique and to have come from the collection of the late Ludwig Schwarz, of Vienna. The 'piece' in question consists of three specimens of the 1kr, black on white, on a piece of the original paper, postmarked '155,' with concentric circles. Two of these stamps are a normal horizontal pair, and a single specimen to right, separated by a blank space of about 11½ mm., the latter being inverted in relation to the former, and clearly denoting a second impression or pane on the same original sheet."

BELGIUM.—The Postage Stamp states that Belgium had been preparing for an entirely new issue of stamps to be printed by the Dujardin Dry Recess process. This is a French invention, but the machine is being built by Messrs. Hoe, in London.

The London Evening News states that special German postage stamps have been issued at Brussels, for the occupied part of the country.

CANAL ZONE.—Gerald D. Bliss informs us that the new Panama Commemorative issue may be expected Nov. 1, with the 1c, 2c, 5c and 10c values, overprinted for use in the Canal Zone.

CHILI.—The Postage Stamp says that Chili is preparing to adopt the Dujardin Dry Recess process in its new factory, which will be established shortly in the vicinity of Santiago.

FRANCE.—The permanent issue Red Cross has been issued by France to take the place of the provisional chronicled in No. 1237. W. T. Wilson has shown us the new stamp. The main features of the current issue are retained. The value "10c" is placed in the upper left just under "Republique." "Postes" has been pushed up to the upper right just under the "Francaise," "Croix-Rouge" taking the lower right reading up. In the lower left is a large colorless tablet with a red cross in the upper part and "5c" below.

Adhesive.

10c and 5c red.

GILBERT AND ELLICE ISLANDS.—The Postage Stamp states that there are enough of the 2d and 2½d Pandanus Pine stamps to last to the end of the year, and that there is no intention of issuing King George stamps of those denominations until the Pandanus stamps have been sold out.

INDIA.—Gwalior.—W. T. Wilson sends us specimens of the rupee values of India overprinted for use in this state, with the usual two lines in black.

Adhesives.

1r green and red brown.
2r brown and carmine rose.
5r violet and ultramarine.

PENRHYN ISLANDS.—According to an article in the Australian Philatelist, on the current ½d stamps are several minor varieties of missing stops after the word "Island," and from the regularity of their appearance on the sheet, it is apparent that the setting has been made up for 60 stamps and repeated four times. There are eight stamps without stop after "Island," viz.:—The 4th and 10th, 16th and 22d in the top row, and the same in the 6th row. In addition to this, there is one stamp on the sheet without stop after "Peni," and another stamp, which no doubt will also be without stop after a few printings, as traces only can be seen at present.

PERSIA.—Le Collectionneur de Timbres Poste states that on the occasion of the recent coronation of the Sultan Shah Kadjar, a special issue of stamps was placed in circulation for a few days only. Apparently the issue was let out as a concession to a speculator, an ex-deputy of parliament, for a sum of 10,000 tomans, who had the exclusive right of disposing of the remainders.

SWITZERLAND (773 D 783).—Stamp Collecting states that following the experiment made last year the Swiss Government will issue in December next two Christmas stamps of the denominations 5 and 10 centimes, the designs by Guillaume Balmer, of Berne, representing respectively a youth and girl in native costume. They are to form the first of a series of designs forming a gallery of national costumes. Five centimes over and above the face value of each stamp will be charged and devoted to charity

CURRENT CHATTER.

By ANGUS McTAVISH.

From the Philadelphia Stamp News:—

"Astounding increases in our subscription lists have taken place since our editor departed for his European trip."

When he returns, the office boy, who penned the above, will probably get a rise.

The same paper contains an article dealing with the Emperor Menelik II., of Abyssinia; naturally, being in a stamp paper there are no references to stamps. The following extracts, however, may appeal to some of my readers who are paddling and shrimping at Cologne or Boulogne.

"It is possible for the traveler to find a father with a family of reddish, olive-yellow, brown, and black skinned children, some with straight, others with curly or woolly hair."

After this I am not surprised to read that:—

"Their religion since the year 330 has been Christian."

Menelik appears on the scene, as follows:—

"Menelik, then twelve years of age, was one of his prisoners. Theodorus rightly judging the qualities of his young prisoner, treated him kindly and later had his daughter married to him. In spite of this kindness young Menelik escaped within a year."

Ungrateful young beggar.

After all, natural history extracts from the stamp papers are more amusing than stamp extracts from the Zoologist.

Stamp Collecting and H. M. King George:—

"The King was looking at a young man's album the other day, and asked him point blank, 'Were all of these collected, or only bought from the trade?'"

"When the reply was given, 'They were all collected, sir, and not one of them bought,' the King said heartily, 'That's right—that is real collecting'."

What price that Post office Mauritius, and others, your Majesty?

From Ghent, I have received a circular letter, enclosing two sample packets of stamps. These packets are for sale to English speaking people, as evinced by their printed guarantee. No. 1 packet, containing 24 frightfully common stamps, to be retailed at 6d, reads:—

"THE SELECT PACKETS ARE THE BEST AT ALL POINTS ! ! !
All stamps are picked copies and like the 500 commonst stamps are not used in this selections, they may be purchased by anyone in full quietness!
Your satisfaction will be assured."

I prefer, in philately, peace at any price.

Packet No. 2, containing 100 "fair different postage stamps of all countries all over the world," is to be retailed at the give away price of 1sh, while we are told that these packets "for high quality and price they do not fear competition."

For high price they stand unrivalled.

In the July number of the L. P. appears a capable article dealing with the Edwardian 6d stamp. The July P. R. contains one describing the 7d value. It is now up against the M. J. to publish a treatise dealing with the Edwardian eight-penny.

War news from The Times:—

"German wines have fallen on evil days. If light white wines are wanted, attention is directed to the Sauternes and Graves of our friendly French neighbours, or to the Capri and Falerno of neutral Italy. Even the Australian and Californian wines are now preferred to the products of our enemies."

Patriotic Australians will probably send an ultimatum to the writer of the above.

More war news from the Times of the World:—

"A Norwegian barque lay off New Brighton, and a warning shot was fired from one of the batteries. For some reason the foreigner continued to go ahead whereupon other shots were fired. The last shot holed the Allan liner Mongolian through the bows. It is believed that the liner was proceeding up river, and was in the vicinity of the barque at the time."

Bully for one marksmen, but I hope the Mongolian wasn't more than five miles away.

One of the smaller American papers says:—

"Did it ever come to your notice the interesting feature of the 1c and 2c 1893 Columbian Issue? The 1c stamp depicting Columbus in sight of land, shows him clean shaven; on the next morning when he landed, according to the 2c stamp, he had grown a full beard."

Poor old Columbus, not satisfied with his telescope on the St. Kitts-Nevis stamps, his detractors are now casting doubts on his patent brand of hair restorer.

Albanian stamps are not quite so important as they were a couple of months ago. Which nation, by the bye, now owns Albania?

The report that some hundreds of German P. J. G. B. subscribers tried to stop the war is probably true. Poor devils, they knew they wouldn't get their Current Chatter.

Georgian white backs will get a bit of a set back, as philatelists of tomorrow will only have time and leisure for war provisionals.

Stamp Collecting says:—

"It is hard to think or write of anything but the Great War into which the Powers have been precipitated since the appearance of our last issue, and its consequences."

Cheer up, Stamp Collecting, your last issue wasn't altogether to blame for the Armageddon. Well-beloved mad-dog William is the principal offender.—Phil. Jour. of Gt. Britain.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

WHAT THE SPECIALIST COLLECTS.

In previous articles, I took up the subject of "General Collecting vs. Specialism" and also gave some suggestions concerning special lines to collect. We will now consider that the collector has chosen his countries or group to specialize.

Just what the collector will put into his album and what he will reject as unimportant will depend largely on how deep he wishes to specialize. If he is a mild specialist, he will probably content himself with a used and unused single stamp, the more important minor varieties of color, perforation, watermark, paper, etc., a few covers, and possibly some blocks or strips. As it is impossible to take up each country in this article, we will assume that the collector is giving his entire attention to one country, containing all classes of stamps.

CANCELLED AND UNCANCELLED.

Practically every specialist will agree with me when I say that a truly specialized collection should contain an unused and a used specimen of every stamp. There are many stamps that are quite rare one way or the other, and much pleasure will be found in the hunt to complete the stamps in these two conditions. For instance, the writer finds that while the unused stamps of twentieth century Jamaica are hard enough to secure in some cases, the cancelled copies are many times rarer. The same applies to almost any of the smaller countries. The advantages of collecting both used and unused are many; the unused are usually in better condition than the used, and often make a prettier showing. Many unused stamps are purchased for speculative purposes, and some never see the post office or even the country, while the postally cancelled stamp bears on its face the evidence of being absolutely authentic. In connection with the unused stamps, the more serious specialist can often find several varieties of gum, and so has a few varieties not offered by the cancelled copies.

CANCELLATIONS.

By studying large quantities of stamps, the specialist will often be led to collect the different types or colors of cancellations. These are usually obtainable for merely the time of searching for them, for as a rule they do not command a premium, and of course, do not realize any more when sold, unless some other specialist can be induced to pay a premium for them. Cancellations are interesting, and in many cases are very important, as they aid in placing the issue by dates; often distinguish originals from counterfeits; distinguish postage stamps from telegraphs or revenues; and give miscellaneous information concerning the use of the stamps in various localities. For instance, the cancellation is the only way of distinguishing the Jamaican stamps used in the Cayman Islands prior to the Cayman stamps, or the various English stamps used abroad, or later still, the United States stamps used in Vera Cruz. Certain cancellations as the green cancellations on the early United States stamps are rare and are much in demand. The early United States issues offer many curious and attractive cancellations, as nearly every postmaster made his own cancelling stamp, and as a result some strange designs were used, as the kicking mule, spade, diamond, heart, club, maltese cross, etc. Cancellations are well worth the attention of the specialist.

COVERS.

Many stamps are quite common off the envelope, but are almost unknown on the original cover. A beautiful cover, even though the stamps be the most common, will usually bring more than the usual value of the stamps themselves. Like cancellations, covers tell many curious tales and aid in working out the history of the postal issues. One very important advantage of collecting covers is that it is far harder to counterfeit a cover than it is a cancellation on a stamp off the cover. Every collection should embrace a few of the original envelopes showing the various notations and cancellations gathered by the covers on their journey through the post office.

BLOCKS, PAIRS AND STRIPS.

Many stamps while common in single copies, are almost unheard of in pairs, strips, or blocks. Blocks and strips are very beautiful, as a rule, though beyond this additional rarity, there is really no reason why they should be collected. Of course, in the case of imperforates, a block, strip or pair is really necessary to absolutely prove that the stamp has not been trimmed. Also perforation varieties are often more easy to distinguish in pairs or blocks. A few of these will add materially to the beauty of a collection, and from my remarks above, do not consider that I condemn them.

COMBINATIONS ON COVERS.

As any specialist who cares anything at all about the postal history of his country will endeavor to learn the different rates required, no doubt it will be possible for the collector to gather a nice assortment of covers showing odd combinations of values used to make up the amounts required by the different rates.

SHADES.

Shades are usually caused by the different printings of the stamps. Many shades, particularly of first or last impressions, command quite high prices. These are collectible by the specialist, and often several shades can be gathered. This branch can be carried to extremes, and care should be used to gather the more distinct shades. As an example of the variety of shades, the collector will find that it is almost impossible to buy at the Post Office two stamps of the same denomination at different times without finding a slight shade difference. The authorities on stamp printing claim that it is practically impossible to mix two lots of ink exactly the same, and since impression has much to do with shade as well as the ink, it can readily be seen how difficult it would be to have all stamps of the same shade.

PAPER VARIETIES.

These are usually standard varieties and of course all specialized collections should include them. In many instances, the thick or thin paper classifies the different printings. In a few countries there are many kinds of paper used closely allied with each other, and it is sometimes advisable to cut out a few of these differences. This is up to the collector to do as he sees fit.

PERFORATION VARIETIES.

These are less important than some of the other varieties, though the different perforations often serve to aid in classifying the different issues and printings. Most specialized collections include these varieties.

VARIETIES OF DESIGN; PLATE AND DIE DIFFERENCES.

Most differences of design are highly distinctive and important. Some of course, are trivial, but a specialized collection should include them. Plate and die differences are as a rule of less importance, and many times are almost impossible to distinguish. The collector should suit himself about these. It is possible to find a vast number of hairline varieties, dots on Washington's nose, broken types, and the like. Some collectors get a deal of pleasure from research work of this kind, but in the writer's opinion it is "zero in sports" and certainly accomplishes little, for the collector or for the philatelic world in general. The collector can readily decide for himself, with the aid of the various catalogues, just what is worthy of a place in his album, and what is not.

WATERMARKS.

These are usually classed as standard varieties, and as such should be collected.

SIDE-LINES.

The individual collector must decide whether he shall collect officials, dues, seals, post-cards, envelopes, revenues, etc. These lines certainly add to the interest and knowledge of the specialism game, and are worthy of a certain amount of attention.

POSTAL AND PHILATELIC LITERATURE.

While this is hardly a matter to be taken up in connection with the collection itself, it is one of paramount importance. The success of a specialized collection will hinge on the amount of study given it by the collector. In order to learn every detail about the postal organization and the stamps of a country, it is necessary to know something of the country itself, and especially necessary to know about the postal needs and regulations of the country. Much important and valuable data can be gleaned from the hand-books and texts on the various countries, most of which contain copies of the necessary documents and rulings of interest to the collector. Of prime importance, of course, is the catalogue. The serious collector will not content himself with one catalogue, but will use two or more. In selecting catalogues, it is best to use: first, Scott, since that is the list adopted by American collectors as a rule, and quite dependable as a basis of values; second, Stanley Gibbons, for varieties unlisted by Scott (and Scott vice versa) for more general information and statistics, for a basis of values in the English market, and also as a check on values listed in Scott; third, Senf or Yvert & Tellier, for possible varieties not listed elsewhere, for information not contained elsewhere, and for a guide to values in the German or French market as a check to American values; (as these latter are printed in German or French, it is quite essential that a slight knowledge of those languages be had, though much can be gained with the aid of a dictionary); lastly, a catalogue issued in the country, if possible, to give more complete information and local market values. This last is quite difficult to obtain, as very few catalogues are issued aside from those issued in United States and Europe. With the aid of the above, hand-books, and price lists from dealers, the collector should be in position to pursue his work. The most important rule is that of success in anything: Work hard; Stick to it; Don't give up; Use your head and eyes.

WHEAT AND CHAFF.

Lot No. 220 in a Western auction catalogue is described as being "½c black, imperf. superb copy with newspaper cancellation on small size lady's entire." Can't see how the size of the lady should affect the entire. Possibly, since this has a newspaper cancellation, it is meant to be a "small size lady's wrapper."

Also, the same catalogue lists some lots as coming from "Straights Settlements." The writer must have been thinking of the collection work after the sale. Or possibly, that little game last night.

Another firm describes a lot as having "a small hole 2 mm. in center and slightly thin on the back, otherwise perfection." Nothing wrong there.

27th AUCTION SALE, OCTOBER 19th and 20th, 1914

NASSAU STAMP CO.
118 Nassau Street, NEW YORK, N. Y.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

A STANDARD DECIMAL CLASSIFICATION FOR UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS.

By H. L. WILEY.

The Issue of 1870.

Included in this issue are the stamps of the National, Continental and American Bank Note Company issued between 1870 and 1890 except the 1 cent blue of 1887, the 2 cent brown and the 2 cent green of the same denomination, the 4 cent green and the 4 cent carmine, the 5 cent brown and the 5 cent blue of 1888. The issues during this period present considerable difficulties in the way of logical arrangement combined with simplicity, but the writer believes that a fair working basis has been evolved.

The stamps of the National Bank Note Company are designated by the numeral "2" to the right of the decimal point. The grilled stamps manufactured by the same company are made a secondary variety. The stamps of the Continental Bank Note Company are designated by the numeral "3" set to the right of the decimal point. The stamps of the American Bank Note Company are designated by the numeral "4" set to the right of the decimal point and the re-engraved stamps by this same company become secondary varieties. The 30 cent stamp and the 90 cent stamp issued with colors changed are made secondary varieties of the American Bank Note Company issues.

A Specialized Collection of Mexico

The First Four Issues Only

We offer a highly specialized collection of the first issues, 1856, 1861, Eagle and Maximillian types, in very choice to perfection copies, in unused and used condition.

The collection is mounted in four handsome loose leaf binders and the stamps are arranged according to values, date of issue, names of districts, and sub-district numbers wherein they were used. A good many of the finest shades, postmarks, various stages of the plate, etc., are well represented. The collection has pairs, strips and blocks in abundance, including some very choice specimens on the original cover. This specialized collection is the result of the research of several years, gathered from the stocks of the dealers of the world. The owner was particularly careful in choosing copies of the very finest color and condition.

We will submit this collection to responsible serious buyers on request.

SELLING STAMPS BY THE POUND.

We have received from several subscribers strong words of commendation as regards our attitude concerning selling stamps by the pound. We have been compelled to take this step because of the fact that considerable dissatisfaction with purchases was expressed. We have placed the ban upon United States as well as foreign mixtures and dealers will take notice of the new rule.

A NEW SONORA.

The present revolution has brought a new Sonora design. Issued about Oct. 1st. 1c has blue background with a red seal; 5c has orange background with green seal. Frame and wording in black on both. Lithographed 40 stamps to sheet.

EDITORIAL.

War Zone Letters—We have seen a "prisoners of war" letter from "Prisoners of War Camp, Dorchester, England." The letter which was sent to a Milwaukee address was unsealed and bore the three markings as follows, in postmark form: First—Post Free, Prisoners of War. Second—P. C., (Passed Censor) and third, London, E. C., Postage Paid; and initials and number of inspector and date. Another cover that attracts the philatelic eye is one, registered, that originated in Austria that bears labels inscribed: Officially Sealed in Returned Letter Section, London Postal Service; and the printed slip, Opened by Censor. Further, the wax seal impressed Returned Letter Branch, London G. P. O., secures the flap.

Special Service—An envelope from Germany is shown us bearing the 20pf blue of Germany with the cancellation and postmark of Washington, D. C., October 13, 1914. The printed inscription in the upper left hand corner of the envelope tells that the letter came from Berlin. On the face of the envelope is the explanation stamped in two lines: Received through Department of State in Diplomatic Pouch. From this it might be inferred that the letter was intended for Washington but on the contrary it was sent to a Chicago firm in the ordinary course of business. It is evident that under these circumstances the mail comes uncensored but it is supposed that the inclusion of letters in the "diplomatic pouch" is a guaranty of propriety of contents of the letters, although we cannot say what requirements must be met to attain the distinction of entry into the "diplomatic pouch."

A Familiar Face—The death of Charles the first of Roumania will cause collectors to ponder over the thought that the old order changeth. Through their familiarity with the portrait of the king on the stamps for so many years, philatelists feel that they have a more intimate knowledge of the personage than the outsider who does not visualize the king. As prince and king, Charles I enjoyed one of the longest periods of stamp portraiture that has fallen to the lot of any sovereign. The stamp productions of Roumania have been fast and furious in recent years and their profusion has not stimulated the best interest in Roumania's later issues. In a philatelic sense there is no keen interest in the effect of King Charles' death. The successor is Crown Prince Ferdinand who was proclaimed heir-presumptive in 1889. Roumania's history is very readable and it were well if the short biographical details given in the newspapers in the death notice of the king would lead collectors to learn of Roumania's rise.

The Revenue Bill—The senate of the United States is reported as having removed the tentative tax on proprietary medicines but as having retained that on perfumery, cosmetics and chewing gum. We spoke of the probability that medicines would be taxed following the customs of the past but it seems that the senate was very solicitous about the welfare of the "common peepul" as it is represented that it did not wish to tax the "poor man's medicine." Evidently, the senators are only theoretical patrons of the medicaments in question, else they would know that patent medicines remain the same in price when they are taxed. The manufacturers and not the people pay the tax on the "poor man's medicine." Why external decoration is penalized and internal irrigation encouraged is a puzzle to us even though it may not be to the oracles at Washington.

Responsive Chord—Here is a clipping to which philatelists' attention is being called by loving friends; it seems to strike the non-philatelic public as the epitome of all that is roguish at the expense of philately and the writer of it may know that he has made a palpable hit: "A New York man has just paid $1,100 for a 30-cent postage stamp because the flags on it were printed upside down. Couldn't Congress manage to put the war tax on transactions like that?"—St. Louis Republic. The paragrapher's question is a very human one these days and we do not find it hard to understand the state of mind that gave rise to the inquiry but even so, there is an underlying significance to the words that shows that philately's prospects are rosy even in these drab days.

Mexico's Mixture—The new Sonora stamps represent a return to the primitive and they will not be cited as examples of the advanced art of stamp production. Really, Sonora has been treated very well and it should not impose upon the good nature of philatelists by outré issues. Description of these emissions falls to the lot of our new issue man. However, the latest from Mexico are the 5, 15 and 20c, of the current federal issue, with the surcharge printed in black in two vertical lines separated by a small ornament suggesting a dollar mark with a single line through the S placed on its side: "Gobierno-Constitucionalista." In all probability, other denominations of the set have also been surcharged.

German Stamps in Belgium—In the latter part of September an English newspaper announced that "special German stamps have been issued at Brussels, for the occupied part of the country." Similar information was given soon after by newspapers in this country. We have seen these German war stamps for Belgium, the 3, 5, 10 and 20pf of the current set of Germany surcharged: "Belgien", 3, 5, 10 and 25 cts. (centimes) respectively. The stamps which are held at a good price but no doubt a justifiable one bring the fact of war strikingly to the eye of the collector. Through Ewen's Weekly Stamp News, just at hand, we glean some interesting particulars regarding this issue by the military authorities under German occupation. Through an emissary, the publishers of our contemporary succeeded in securing a number of the stamps which were served sparingly, four to an applicant with letters, because of the restricted number of the issue available. A German official is reported as having said that the surcharged stamps were only for temporary use pending the preparation of "an issue in special design intended to be in pfennig values," the inference being that the occupation of Belgium by the Germans was to be permanent. It may be added that the postmarks on the German stamps on letters from Belgian towns in which German "feld post" offices have been established are in demand from their historical associations and we can believe the statement that they are scarce and much sought after.

Heavy Toll—We have been informed of the death of a number of philatelists in the ranks of the different nations at war and we need say that we bitterly regret the unhappy circumstances that made these sacrifices necessary. It is sad indeed to contemplate the passing away on the battle-field of members of our fraternity to whom we are drawn in sentiment whatever may be their nationality.

FRENCH RED CROSS STAMP.

The new design was issued about Sept. 20th. It replaces the temporary issue which was surcharged "+5c" in red on the 10c. Like the first stamp, the new issue is a charity-postal, 5c being applied to the Red Cross fund.

WAR! WAR! WAR! Unused Civil War Pictorial Envelopes

We have just purchased an exceptionally fine collection of over 500 unused Civil War Pictorial Envelopes.

During the war and for some time after it was the fashion to use envelopes having Union or Secession sentiments printed thereon. Some of the designs were ornate and of a general character and others were of a decided personal flavor and caricaturized quite severely the leading men and principles of the North and South. This collection contains the largest assortment of these envelopes we have ever seen and to a specialist in this line an opportunity is offered which probably will never again be had.

We offer this collection complete, every envelope unused and clean, no stamps nor postmarks at

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—"I notice the stand you take in your last issue about pound stamps,—bully for you! I for one am glad that one paper has back bone enough to turn them down."—N. R. HOUDLETTE.

—Knowing that ordinary postage stamps must accumulate in the office of the WEEKLY, our oldtime friend and patron, C. F. Richards, writes us that he will take a goodly quantity of what is gathered. We shall be very pleased to get a similar word from any of our friends who have a use for 1c and 2c stamps.

—The P. O. Dept. of New York City held up the auction catalogs of the Ohlman October 29 sale, on account of cut of a foreign stamp on envelope in which catalogs were mailed. The only way the envelopes were passed was by covering the cut. Mr. Ohlman has taken the matter up with the P. O. Dept. at Washington.

—Following his usual custom, H. Wesley Legg has removed from Pepperell, Mass., to the city for the winter, and will hereafter be addressed as follows:—H. Wesley Legg, Madison Square Branch, N. Y. City. His business will be conducted by mail but Mr. Legg will always be pleased to meet friends and clients by appointment. Attention is called to his advertisement elsewhere in the WEEKLY.

—We are indebted to W. J. Stanton for particulars in connection with the Mexican provisional issues which have already been published in our columns.

—R. H. Cooley, Phila., Pa., sends us a specimen of an advertising cancellation that is worthy of note. The postmark reads "Philadelphia, Pa. Aug. 26, 3.30 P. M. 1899". Within the bars cancelling the stamp in an oblong oval are the words "Natl. Export Exposition, Sept. 14, 1899-Nov. 30." Mr. Cooley considers this an "early date" and we are obliged for the information conveyed.

—A number of S. P. A. members in Perry, Ohio, have organized locally and asked for a branch charter from the S. P. A. It will prove a lively branch. In this connection may we call attention to Mr. Webb's continued advertising in our trade column proclaiming the merits of the Southern Philatelic Association.

—According to Whitfield King's list the stamps of the following offices ceased to exist October 1:—Austrian, British, French, German, Italian and Russian Levant. From the same source we learn that Gold Coast stamps without surcharge are being used in Togoland, recently taken from the Germans.

—Through an editorial lapse, the Annual Year-Book of the Dakota Philatelic Association, 1914, which was received over two months ago was not referred to in our columns. Even at this late day, we make amends for the oversight and say that this annual compiled by John J. Warns, Chairman, Wentworth, S. D., and W. W. Hansen, year-book committee, under the auspices of the Dakota Philatelic Association, is a creditable production of twenty pages and is evidence of the activity and enterprise of the progressive state organization in question. While not a few pages are devoted to society statistics and reports, there are a number of readable articles in the book to commend it otherwise.

—The entire sheet of 150, as issued to postmasters, of the three-cent blue 1869, U. S., in mint and centered condition with marginal inscriptions complete, which was in Edward Michael's recent auction sale brought $225. A "western collector" is said to have secured this unique piece.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from E. M. White, W. T. Lathrop and Herman W. Boers (8).

—Benn Weisner would like the address of the party using bill head of the Canton Flue Blower Co., Canton, O., in sending order for stamps advertised in the WEEKLY. No name was signed to the order.

—The Coöperative Exchange announces in connection with their next auction sale that they will give 1% of the entire amount realized to the American Red Cross Society to aid the destitute in Europe and the wounded soldiers on the battle fields. This coöperation upon the part of the company is very commendable, especially when it is known that there is a large amount of expense in the present-day conducting of auction sales.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Scott's Standard Catalog, 1915.—Scott Stamp & Coin Co., publishers. Price cloth, $1.00; paper, 85c.

Already the larger part of our subscribers have purchased the 1915 edition of the Scott Catalog. It is a substantial book and invaluable to any collector. With any inconsistencies that it may possess, we have always championed this book as well worthy of the name "standard" and the publishers are to be congratulated upon the compact, cleanly printed volume that lies before us. The cuts are uniformly clear and all in all the work is a very creditable one. Its disposition of major and minor types will appeal strongly to both general collector and specialist. So far as prices are concerned, the editor is disposed to leave that matter to the dealer and collector.

Advertising Chat—No. 9.

Hooray for the Braves! And that reminds us that the WEEKLY has a fielding average of 1000 and is batting far over the 300 mark. Bro. Eaton is very quiet these days but probably because it costs to talk. H. A. Fenster renewing his subscription advised us, "Put your money on the Braves—they are sure winners," but the advice came too late—the third game had been won.

Excuse us for getting sidetracked—it's advertising we offer you—the best medium in the world and the proof of this assertion will be found in our columns of attractive offers. If you are a live, up-to-date dealer you can't afford to remain out of the WEEKLY.

This week A. E. Tuttle joins the WEEKLY family. Also G. W. Matthews, Madison, Ind., L. Townsend Reckard of Chicago will be with us every week and his free offer of Columbian exposition tickets will start something. L. W. Charlat, an old time patron, takes one of our famous quarter pages and W. S. Aldrich keeps him company. These quarter pages give you access to 7800 paid subscribers and only $15.00 outlay or 10c per line.

Believe us there will be something doing next week! If paper is late, be as patient as possible, for at least 12 pps. will be served you. The time is not far distant when the WEEKLY will be issued in 12 pp. form during the busy season.

We shall come again!

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

P. S. Bro. Eaton is heard from as we go to press. He writes: "I enclose check for $6.60 in payment for advg. but presume you will not even look at it as your head will be so high in the air after the great victory won by the Braves."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—George P. Smith writes as follows: "In the October 10th issue of MEKEEL'S. I notice that you draw attention to the Officially Sealed stamps on watermarked paper. In the latter part of your paragraph your statement makes it appear that the printing is so arranged that this watermark appears in the center of the sheet of twenty stamps; four stamps at each end being unwatermarked. This is not correct. This watermark may appear in any position on the sheet, in fact I examined some sheets on which parts of the watermark appear at each end. Stamp Journals have from time to time called attention to various perforations of these stamps but the ground has not entirely been covered. The Officially Sealed stamps come perforated both horizontally and vertically; also rouletted horizontally and vertically; rouletted vertically and perforated horizontally; also rouletted horizontally and perforated vertically. I also have seen a sheet rouletted on three sides and perforated on the fourth and a sheet perforated vertically. I might add that every one of these are genuine as I have seen them in books at post offices, so that in no way could they be considered printers' waste. The Government not only issue these in sheets four by five but they also distribute these in books two by five. These books are the larger books cut in half."

FRANCE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the permanent Red Cross stamp as noted last week.

INDIA.—Chamba.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 4a King George stamp, overprinted "Chamba—State" at the top and "Service" at the bottom for use in this state.

GERMANY.—Offices in Belgium.—Frank M. Mason sends us the first of Germany's contribution to the philatelic history of the war. This consists of the three lower values of the current watermarked stamps of Germany, surcharged "Belgien" and new values in centimes. The printing is done in the same type and style as the lower values of German Morocco, the lines being close together and covering the bust of Germania. All surcharges are in black and carefully printed in brilliant ink. Mr. Mason writes "that my correspondent has the only lot available, and that they were obtained by a Belgian gentleman at the risk of his life." The first part of this statement seems to put the matter squarely up to the other American dealers.

Adhesives.

5c on 5pf green.

MEXICO.—Sonora.—Recent numbers of MEKEEL'S have contained news items regarding the various reissues of the Sonora provisionals. Now comes the C. E. Hussman Stamp Co. with an entirely new issue. The shape is an upright oblong 21x25 mm.; type set and printed in three colors. First, there is a tint block just fitting within the plain rule border of each stamp. This background is in blue on the 1c and orange on the 5c. Over this is a round seal, showing a diligence. This seal was printed on the 1c and green on the 5c. Over all is the stamp proper printed in black, the border being also in black. The inscriptions read "Correos—1—Centavo—Sonora—Mexico."

WANT LISTS SOLICITED

I have over 20,000 varieties of 19th Century stamps the majority of which I will sell at a discount of 66⅔% from 1915 catalogue. Send me your list of wants and I will send the stamps on approval if reference is furnished.

Mr. Matlock sent me a list of 15 Argentine stamps and I sent him 11 of them. Mr. Quesnel sent a list of 251 wants of which I sent him 163, all at 66⅔% discount. Others did likewise. Try me and see if I can't do as well for you. Local and visiting collectors are invited to come in and "browse around" (apologies to Mr. Drew). You will be welcome whether you desire to purchase or not and you'll find as many bargains in "Philadelphia's browsery" as you will elsewhere. I have a large, well lighted office.

NICARAGUA.—H. Chitraro has shown us the current 1c stamp, Scott's No. 330I in blue instead of green. Whether it is a changeling or an error in printing is not known, though the color is bright and clear.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.—The current 3c stamp has been issued perforated 10 and from the sample submitted with straight edge it would seem to come from a booklet. We are indebted to Theodore Siddall for specimen copy.

LYON ON HIGH COST OF LIVING.

There's no such thing right now as the high cost of living!

W. Parker Lyon, former mayor of Fresno, says so. And he is smiling himself.

Just to prove his assertion, ex-Mayor Lyon shows a $4000 note. The note was issued in 1864. The person who gave it had paid $8657 in interest in six years, and——

Still owed a total of $8265.52!

Nowadays, Mr. Lyon asserts, one can borrow money at 6 per cent. interest each year. The interest charged in 1864—when you could buy eggs at 15 cents a dozen or less—was 6 per cent. a month, compound interest.

Until he found this note, discovered in a collection owned by a woman in Virginia City, Nevada, ex-Mayor Lyon credited himself only with having been mayor, a furniture dealer and a successful real estate man. Now he claims to be a discoverer. Here's how:

Mr. Lyon says he wanted to drop out of politics when he left the mayor's chair in 1909, so he took up stamp collecting. He won a wager of $10,000 during 1910 for collecting 30,000 stamps. It was in this collection that he located the $4000 note and discovered that the "twentieth century person" does not appreciate good times when he has them.

The note, which Lyon contends explodes the high cost of living theory is signed by J. H. Mallett, president, and Monroe Thomson, secretary, of the Milton G. and S. M. company. It was endorsed by several millionaires of Nevada and payments were made at the rate of $240 per month, until Aug. 2, 1870.

"High cost of living?" queried Mr. Lyon today. "There's no such thing."

"If we all went back to the much-heralded ways of 1864 we might have a real kick coming."—Los Angeles Express.

TWIN CITY SOCIETY MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Twin City Philatelic Society was held in Minneapolis, October 10, with an attendance of 22 members, and 6 visitors. Plans were made for a sales department in addition to conducting auction sales as heretofore.

Two names were proposed for membership, making the present membership 58. The society meets alternately in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and includes all the leading, as well as many of the younger, collectors of both cities.

There is a strong interest in the organization, and it is expected that the membership will be largely increased during this season.

A GERMAN WAR STAMP.

By Rev. Louis Voss.

According to the Berlin Echo a German society has prepared a war stamp which will be sold in millions of copies throughout the Empire. The price is 5 pfennig. The proceeds of the sale will be devoted to aid the families of German soldiers killed in the war. Though it is of an artistic design, the stamp will be of little interest to philatelists, because it does not come within the realm of postally issued stamps, but is a mere charity label issued by private individuals for humanitarian purposes.

COMMUNICATION.

(We do not hold ourselves responsible for the views expressed by our readers. Our columns are always open for communications of general interest.—Ed.)

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 15.

Gentlemen:

May 19, 1914, I sent Jacques Wortman, Paris, France, by registered mail U. S., Canadian and Nicaraguan stamps to the value of $33.40 for exchange. These stamps he received May 31, 1914, as shown by the register receipt. June 16th, 1914, I called his attention to the fact that the stamps I was to have received in exchange had not come to hand. July 15th, 1914, I advised the gentleman, by registered mail, that unless my stamps or the ones I should receive in exchange came to hand by return mail, I would report his action to the Stamp Societies and also the M. W. S. N. All of my letters have been ignored.

He may have had a valid excuse for not sending the stamps but he can hardly have a reason for not according me the courtesy of replying to my letter. You may publish the article over my name, if you desire.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

STILL ON GENERAL COLLECTING VS. SPECIALISM.

My first article of this series, in which I advised collectors to collect everything, and not to specialize, has drawn so much comment from various sources that I believe it advisable to say more on this subject. I received several letters from "specialists" commending my article, and stating that they regretted having disposed of their large collections to devote their attentions to specialism. On the other hand, some few collectors differed with me, and told how specializing was the only way. I have done both, so feel pretty confident to judge.

While I do not say that specialism should be avoided by all collectors, I do advise the beginner to let it alone until he has gained more experience in the game of philately. In the first place, for a limited amount of money (and most beginners limit their stamp money), very little can be done in the way of specialism when compared with the vast amount of material that can be secured for general collecting. The specialist who only gets an occasional stamp may not keep up his interest in the hobby, while the collector who gathers everything will always have plenty of material to work on. "Variety is the spice of life," applies to philately as to everything else. If you can't collect everything, collect a group, as twentieth century, or nineteenth century, or the Eastern or Western Hemisphere. Don't limit your field to one country.

Another important fact to consider is that in order to specialize correctly and to secure the desired results, the collector must have considerable knowledge of stamps. This knowledge can only be obtained by experience, and the more general the experience, the more thorough the subject is learned.

An Ohio dealer, in his letter to me, blames specialism by beginners as the cause of the loss of interest in the hobby by many of the younger collectors, and I cannot help but feel that he is correct. Certainly the collector cannot have as much fun working on one five dollar stamp as he can on two hundred and fifty two-cent varieties. The result is that when the collector begins to pay fancy prices for single stamps, without having the large collection to necessitate them, he begins to wonder if the game is worth the candle.

I frequently purchase large lots of stamps on covers from mail order houses, and I defy any specialist to duplicate the fun I have in going through these mixed assortments, noticing the odd designs and strange post-marks. While the specialist is going over ten thousand copies of the 2c stamp of 1890 looking for a broken "O" or a right cap, I can, with the aid of my stamps, see the strange sights of Delphi, Hankow, Suva, the Amazon, and some thousand of other places.

Also, after I have collected some four or five thousand varieties of stamps, I have a collection of interest to anyone, collector or non-collector. My collection meets with praise from everyone who sees it, as it is interesting. Were I to limit my collection to one certain issue, as many collectors do, and to fill my album full of the same stamps but showing a dot after Washington's nose, a broken line in the left corner, paper graduated to ten-thousandths of an inch, and the other trifles the specialist bothers about, my collection would not only fail to interest the majority of people, but my friends would begin to question my sanity.

In looking over a large assortment of different varieties, I am impressed with the beauties of the printer's art, and I am benefitted by my study of the stamps as issued by the different peoples of the world. Were I to spend my time looking for the minor varieties of surcharge or otherwise, I would only be impressed with the stupidity of the printer who worked on the stamps, and who made the error.

In this series of articles, I have argued pro and con the question of specialism, and it is my sincere hope that every collector will consider the matter carefully before he makes a decision.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M. K.—I cannot explain the change in color of your revenue stamp, but believe you will find that it is oxidized. This condition can occur by exposure to the air, or by time, which while acting on the properties of the ink, would not affect the paper. At an early date I shall go into the subject of oxidization and chemical changes more in detail. I do not believe that this stamp was issued by the government in this condition, chiefly because too close a watch is kept on the manufacture of stamps to allow errors in color to slip through, and secondly, if such an error did exist, it would have been discovered and listed before this.

G. K.—Revenue stamps may be more interesting on "cover" than off, but are hardly worth any more. Of course, a collector might be found who would pay a premium for them in this condition.

Scott's prices are merely the prices at which they aim to sell their stock, and are not designed for the purpose of making it possible for dealers to discount them. If the dealer can do it at a profit, that is his business. The Special Delivery stamps you mention, and nearly every stamp with face value, cannot be sold at 50% discount without loss, and collectors must expect to pay more for them.

Whether the stamps you mention are left on cover or not will make very little difference. Suit yourself. In the course of the heavy mail in the large cities, some stamps are bound to escape the cancelling stamp.

A. T.—Your description is too inadequate to tell exactly from what countries the stamps in question come. I should say that they were locals of some sort, presumably German.

(3) British Colonials are the stamps issued by the British possessions.

(4) I do not know of any foreign catalogues illustrating United States stamps. I believe there is a law forbidding the importation of such a catalogue; at least I know that several collectors have had trouble in bringing catalogues and albums of this nature into the country.

S. H.—Postmasters are forbidden by postal ruling from selling due stamps or postal savings official stamps to any person.

Postal Savings Official stamps are intended for use of the correspondence of this department of the Government. They are not the same as the stamp sold to the public to be attached to the savings cards, and are not good for this purpose. Inasmuch as having these stamps unused in one's possession is considered evidence of a felony by the Government, it is doubtful if you could secure unused copies.

L. B.—The New Zealand envelope with the inscription, "Postage Paid 1d", in square frame is either a meter impression or a permit. The postage stamp meter has been written up several times in this paper, and I must refer you to back numbers.

B. J.—Latest reports indicate that the proposed Peace commemoratives of United Statese will not be issued, presumably for diplomatic reasons in connection with the European war. If they are issued, you can probably secure them at your local post office.

Stamp Dealers Go Out of Business.

No, your name does not appear in this list because as soon as the war started you immediately saw the splendid opportunity afforded to develop trade among interested and enthusiastic youngsters. You foresaw that many people would buy albums for Christmas presents instead of expensive imported toys. You also anticipated the feverish interest the youngsters would take in getting a complete foreign collection before the map of Europe changed. So you looked carefully around, selected the magazine with the 41-year reputation, and the stamp department that had done so much to encourage stamp collecting; the publication that went to people who could afford 25 cents for a young folks' magazine, where you could be sure of dealing with carefully brought up folks. And you started your campaign in St. Nicholas and built up such a splendid business, that you not only got safely over dull times in the professional world, but built up a business which promises to be as great a success for you, as other well-known stamp houses have found it to be. If you want this to really be your experience, now is the time to start, and St. Nicholas is the starter. Let us help you. We are now working on our great Christmas issue.

WHEAT AND CHAFF.

A local collector states that he has been able to remove stamps that have been stuck together by humidity or otherwise, by placing them in a refrigerator over night. He claims that this method will save the gum.

Next to the "L" in "Salmon" and the "S" in "Island," the most useless thing is the effort made by some American dealers to sell stamps to South American collectors who can understand no English.

RUSSIA'S WARLIKE STAMPS.

Sold for Red Cross Fund, But Show Allies' Flags.

An American who arrived Oct. 3 from Petrograd displayed copies of the stamps that are being sold everywhere in Russia in aid of a fund for the benefit of the wounded and the widows and orphans of the war. They are of the denominations of 1, 5, and 10 kopecks, and there is nothing about their design to suggest the Red Cross.

These stamps are about twice as long as the ordinary postage stamp, and a trifle wider. All bear the date of 1914, with Russian inscriptions. The one-kopeck stamp, against a brilliant red background, shows the Russian coat of arms and the imperial crown, against crossed draped standards. The five-kopeck stamp shows the flags of Russia, Great Britain, and France flying above the smaller flags of Belgium, Servia, and Montenegro, the whole against a background of a rising sun.

The ten-kopeck stamp is very martial in appearance, containing a warship in action with a couple of aeroplanes flying overhead, while below are an aeroplane pictured in detail, a piece of field artillery, with shells, a rifle and equipment.

"These stamps are offered for sale everywhere," said the traveler yesterday. "Even the street car conductors do a big business in them."—N. Y. Times.

P. O. WON'T SUPPLY ADDRESSES.

Postal cards sent through the mails with no house number or street addesses on them will no longer be sent to the directory service of the P. O. Dept. for the filling in of the complete address, but will be deposited for general delivery. The above order was received in Philadelphia recently by P. M. Thorntonecte has been noted by the postoffices through the country that large corporations are in the habit of sending a great many post cards with incomplete street addresses.—Camera News.

IN WHICH WE GREET OUR FRIENDS.

A Word in Acknowledgment of the Superb Support Accorded Our Service.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE, Managing Editor.

The WEEKLY has every reason to be proud of its friends and we do well to pause occasionally and pay a tribute to the loyalty of those, who, during the years, have contributed of their zeal and their energy to its great success. We may well be proud of our subscription list which has been our mainstay and without which no advertising patronage would be possible.

OUR SUBSCRIPTION LIST.

We now have 7800 paid subscribers on our mailing list and our books are open for inspection. We know of no other stamp publication in this country, or elsewhere in the world, that prints a sworn statement as to circulation. We shall go well over the 8000 mark this winter and our subscription campaign will be followed with interest. We could easily pad our subscription list, but there is no real advantage in doing this. We are allowed by the Post Office department a year to discontinue subscriptions, but four months is the limit we avail ourselves of and this during the summer months.

We ask our subscribers to continue their co-operation in getting new subscriptions and a list of premiums elsewhere in this issue is offered for perusal. No premiums are given unless the new name has never before been on our list.

THE PRESENT NUMBER.

We greet you this week with a sixteen page paper. It is presented as the natural outgrowth of a business activity that demands an opportunity to express itself. The stamp business, if we may judge our columns, is on an energetic campaign for new avenues of opportunity and the outlook is promising. Our advertising rates are so low that no dealer can afford to remain out of our columns—unless there be no need of going after business.

THE MATTER OF ADVERTISING.

Our advertising rates are very low considering our circulation and our offer of quarter pages at $15.00 each gives a measure of publicity that no other stamp publication can offer. It would cost $125 to circularize 7800 people and this is a conservative estimate. The WEEKLY offers 144 lines of advertising space for $15.00, reaching 7800 live stamp collectors. If you want some reprints our printer will give you a low figure.

OUR BOOK BUSINESS.

Our book publishing business has been favorably received and our latest venture, Barrett's and Bartels' work on U. S. envelopes, has certainly touched a responsive chord. Our sales the past week have been as follows: Oct. 19, 14 copies; Oct. 20, 18; Oct. 21, 14; Oct. 22, 11; Oct. 23, 35; Oct. 24, 24. We feel that envelope collecting will get a decided boost through this book. Our Wiley book on "Parcel Post, Stamp Booklets and Postal Savings Stamps," is issued this week. The Goodwin book on "United States," Poole's "Beginner's Guide," and our "How to Deal in Stamps," are all in constant demand. We shall soon publish Dalwigk's "Gambia" and Poole's part one on "Stamps of the German Empire."

A SPECIAL FEATURE.

This particular issue of the WEEKLY speaks for itself. We commence an article on the 3c green U. S. that for research will show what can be done with an exceedingly common stamp. The article is copyrighted by Mr. Wiley. Our various departments are well sustained and we thank our subscribers and advertisers for making this issue possible without any fuss or feathers on our part.

The stamp season is on! We greet our patrons with this sixteen paged paper and its numerous interesting features.

DATA SHEET U. S. 1870-1887, 3c GREEN.

THE U. S. 3c GREEN, 1870-1887.

By H. L. WILEY.

(Copyrighted, 1914. All rights reserved.)

Continued study of these common stamps is attended with increasing interest. Numerous varieties of more or less importance to the student are found in the various printings.

When I turned my attention to these stamps I found the available data widely scattered throughout the pages of various publications and my first work was to concentrate these widely distributed notes. With the work already accomplished by other writers, my own notes are herewith combined, and I hope that this "summary" may contain something of interest for those collectors who enjoy the twists and turns of the complicated issues of a "common" stamp.

The common groups into which these stamps are divided are marked by the three companies which printed them. The design of the stamps was changed during the contract of the third company, thus creating a fourth variety which constitutes an additional main division. These principal divisions are as follows: printings by

1. National Bank Note Company.
2. Continental Bank Note Company.
3. American Bank Note Company.
4. Re-engraved Issues by the American Bank Note Company.

These various printings are commonly termed:

1. "National."
2. "Continental."
3. "American."
4. "Re-engraved."

The duration of the several printing periods was as follows:

Printing.	Inclusive Dates.	Elasped Time.
National	Mar., 1870 to Apr., 1873	36 Mos.
Continental	Apr., 1873 to Feb., 1879	70 "
American	Feb., 1879 to Apr., 1881	24 "
Re-engraved	Apr., 1881 to Sept., 1887	77 "

My personal estimate of the total number of stamps of each printing is as follows. It is believed to be within 3% of the correct figure.

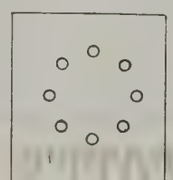
Printing.	Total.
National	1,200,000,000
Continental	2,720,000,000
American	1,240,000,000
Re-engraved	1,478,000,000
(Vermilion '87-'90)	16,500,000

In 1883 the 2c rate for letter postage became effective and the issues of the then current 3c green fell to a comparatively insignificant figure. The color of the 3c stamp was changed to vermilion in 1887. During the life of the vermilion stamp, about 30 months, approximately 16,500,000 were printed and issued.

An "unpicked" mixed lot of 10,000 of the National and Continental issues only contained the following percentages of the various minor varieties.

Variety.	% of Total.	No. Found
Pen cancellations	2%	200
Blue "	8%	800
Red "	1/12 of 1%	8
Purple "	5/12 of 1%	42
Pairs and strips (stamps)	7%	700
Blocks "	1/4 of 1%	25
Grilled	1%	100
Stitch Watermark	1/12 of 1%	8
Ribbed paper, Vert. Ribs	1/30 of 1%	3
" " Hor. "	2%	200

The stamps on vertically ribbed paper are evidently much scarcer than those on the horizontally ribbed paper. They are usually more easily distinguished than the horizontally ribbed variety and that may account for their relative scarcity in some instances where collectors have examined certain lots upon which other opinions are subsequently based.



The Papers Used.

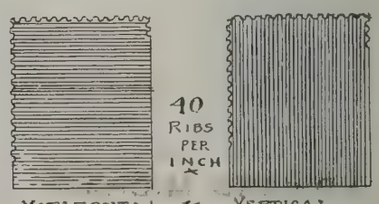
The general characteristics of the papers used in the various printings are substantially as follows:

Issue	Texture.	Av. Thickness.	Color
National	Hard	.0027"	White
Continental	Hard	.0027"	White
American	Soft	.0030"	Cream
Re-engraved	Soft	.0030"	Cream

A few of the later stamps printed by the Continental Bank Note Company were on the soft "American" papers. Probably 50,000,000 of these soft paper stamps were the Continental printings. The plates used by the Continental Company for printing the soft paper stamps include Nos. 265 and 290. The known shades of these printings are gray-green and deep green.

The National Issues include double paper varieties which are rare. The double papers are fairly common in the Continental issues. The Re-engraved stamps are found on the "Douglas" patent paper in which the thinner of two layers is perforated with 8 small holes, arranged in a circle and so spaced that one complete design falls upon each stamp in the sheet.

"DOUGLAS" PATENT ON 3¢ RE-ENGRAVED. DOUBLE PAPER & 8 HOLES.



The Continental series include a few experimental specimens printed on a thin paper in the fibers of which a heavy starch filling had been incorporated under the terms of one of the numerous patents of the Charles F. Steel series. This patent was dated March 15, 1875. It is reported that 10,000 of these stamps were printed and sold.

Another Continental paper experiment includes a double paper in which the surface paper had been weakened by a number of short horizontal cuts.

All of the Government attempts at protection from the activities of the "stamp cleaner," involved additional printing costs and considerable expenditure for patent rights and royalties so it is reasonbale to assume that the Post Office Department has suffered less from the stamp cleaners than it would have from the inventors.

The greatest production of these altruistic gentlemen was the grill or embossing which was used from 1867 to 1870. The grilling process broke the fibers of the paper so that the grilled stamps, in the blush of their perfection, absorbed almost one-fiftieth as much of the cancelling ink as the ordinary soft paper issues of the American series. The ribbed paper varieties of the Continental series form an interesting variety and are treated here at some length.

Ribbed Paper.

The ribbed paper stamps comprise about 2% of those printed by the Continental Bank Note Company,—about 55,000,000 having been on the ribbed paper. The ribs are either vertical or horizontal and are spaced 40 to the inch. They show on both sides of the paper, but are generally more distinct upon one side than the other. They are more plainly visible by reflected light than by transmitted light, that is they are more distinct when the surface of the stamp is viewed directly than when the stamp is held "to the light."

The horizontal ribs are more frequently found in mixed lots, the ratio being about 20 horizontally ribbed specimens to 1 showing the vertical ribs. The stamps with the ribs showing only on the face or inked side are five or six times as scarce as those with ribs showing on the reverse and are somewhat more difficult to find because of the inked surface having been affected and flattened by contact with the plate.

The ribbed effect varies from faint but unmistakable traces over parts of the stamp to clear ribbing over the entire surface. The common shade in which 95% of these stamps is found is a rich olive green, tinged with a golden yellow, but lighter shades of a character entirely different are sometimes found. The characteristic dark shade is found in stamps showing no trace of the ribbed effect and this fact adds another complicating feature to these stamps. Two or more inks were used while the ribbed paper was in service, and two or more papers were used while the characteristic shade of ink was being applied. It is not possible for me to state which was used first or which lasted the longest and the problem calls for dated copies, the only feasible means by which this point can be determined.

Assuming that approximately 55,000,000 ribbed paper stamps were printed and that the average weekly output was 9,000,000 stamps it will be seen that these stamps were printed within a period of about six weeks. The average deliveries to postmasters during the time the Continental Company was at work, was 115,000,000 stamps per quarter. The average during 1873, 1874 and 1875 was slightly lower than this but was in excess of 110,000,000 stamps per quarter. To assume that 35,000,000 was the monthly output of 3c stamps for this period is probably within 5% of the correct figure. This assumption indicates that 55,000,000 ribbed paper stamps were printed in six weeks provided that these ribbed paper specimens formed the entire output of the presses working on 3c stamps.

That they did is supported by the fact that very few ribbed paper stamps exist except in the characteristic shade and it is highly improbable that the characteristic ink would have been confined to only a part of the presses engaged in printing the stamps. The Continental Company used nineteen hand presses and two steam presses but the ribbed papers were not the product of the steam presses because the work done on these presses was confined to five values, the 1c, 2c and 3c of the general issue and the 2c and 3c of the Post Office Department and the ribbed papers are found on many other values of general and departmental issues.

Another fact that tends to support the "quick work" theory is that the characteristic ink is practically confined to the 3c ribbed paper stamps whereas if the ribbed paper had been used through an extended period the stamps printed thereon would be found in as great a number of shades as the ordinary varieties.

We must conclude therefore, that Crawford Capen was in error when he stated that "The first use of paper of this kind was made in 1873, the largest use in 1874 and the final use late in 1875 or possibly early in 1876." My opinion is that this paper was used for a period of approximately six weeks. I have no dated copies but as Capen refers to the use of the paper as early as 1873 and as the general appearance of the stamps indicates a decided effort toward perfection which might naturally characterize the early efforts of the new contractors, I am inclined to believe that the stamps were printed sometime between June and December, 1873. Dated copies can fix the date at which the stamps appeared and the foregoing analysis seems to limit the period during which the paper was being used.

The plate numbers of two other denominations of the ribbed paper stamps are known; they are No. 22 for the 7c stamp and No. 31 for the 15c stamp. These low numbers would tend to fix the period during which the ribbed paper was used but this evidence is not worth much because but one Continental plate was made for each of the values noted. The last recorded delivery for the 7c was for the quarter ending June 30, 1875, so we may at least say that the paper was used before that date.

Contact with a worn blanket on the press roll or with the sheets of mill boards between which bunches of sheets are flattened after being printed might have produced the ribbed paper but both of these theories must be discarded in this instance because these ribbed papers are almost invariably found in the one shade of ink. We cannot believe that this one peculiar shade of ink was successfully obtained month after month or that the shade was perfectly matched by subsequent batches of ink. The ink was used for a limited time, probably less than two months, because practically no stamps are found in this shade except those on ribbed paper.

The thickness of the ribbed paper is as follows:

RIBBED PAPER—THICKNESS TABLE.

Thickness, Inches.	No. on Hor. Ribs.	No. on Vert. Ribs
.0023	1	—
.0024	5	—
.0025	8	8
.0026	24	2
.0027	26	—
.0028	20	3
.0029	3	—
.0030	4	1
.0031	1	—
.0032	1	—
.0033	1	—
.0034	1	—
Total	95	14

The average thickness is .00265", the minimum is .00230", and the maximum .00340". It will be noted that fully 80% of the ribbed paper specimens range in thickness between .0025" and .0028", a characteristic peculiar to these stamps.

Probably the most interesting detail in connection with the ribbed paper is that the dimensions of the stamps printed thereon are different from those of all other stamps. This proves conclusively that the paper is a distinct and individual product of the paper mills, a distinct variety, and entitled to recognition as such.

The dimensions of the ribbed paper stamps which I have examined are as follows:

Note. The dimensions of the design are expressed in thousandths of an inch, the thickness of the paper in ten-thousandths of an inch.

20TH CENT. S. & C. A.

I have just re-made all my books of these popular countries, and am now able to send out on approval a line even nicer than before. All books are arranged chronologically by countries catalog number and price marked, and priced net, generally 50% to 75% off catalog quotations.

These books are intended especially for the general collector having 5,000 varieties, or less. The specialist will find little of interest, but the average general collector will find many "hard to get" stamps.

Carrying a stock of these issues only, I am able to stock a much better line than the average approval dealer who carries everything. Selling on a strict cost plus a reasonable profit plan, the buyer is assured of the lowest possible retail prices.

As I am at present giving my entire time to the stamp business you are assured of prompt, efficient, personal service—much superior to that of the "spare-time" dealer.

If you buy by the approval method, I will be glad to add your name to my constantly growing list of satisfied customers. I am sure I can please you. A good commercial or society reference, is of course, necessary.

3c Continental—Summary of Dimensions of Design of Ribbed Paper Stamps.

NOTE.—Number measured; Vert. Ribs, 17: Hor. Ribs, 96. "V" indicates column for Vertically ribbed stamps, etc.

	WIDTH OF DESIGN
Length	.760″		.765″		.770″		.775″		.780″		.785″		.790″
	V.	H.	V.	H.	V.	H.	V.	H.	V.	H.	V.	H.	V.	H.

.990					35				1		16
.995	6				11		24		12		1
1.000									12

The above summary indicates that all vertically ribbed stamps are .990″ or more in length and .780″ or less in width and that all horizontally ribbed stamps are .990″ or less in length and .780″ or more in width. That is, the vertically ribbed stamps are almost invariably longer than any normal stamp not on ribbed paper and that over 80% of the horizontally ribbed stamps are wider than normal specimens not on ribbed paper.

I believe that the foregoing record of paper thicknesses will serve to reduce the amount of guess work which has characterized paper descriptions. I found that some of the "thin" paper, submitted by several of our well known "experts," measured over .0030″ and that some of the "thick" papers of which they were equally positive in their descriptive terms, measured less than .0026″, merely proving that they guessed incorrectly. I have learned that the texture of the paper controls the opinions generally rendered as to its thickness. Some day I believe that the use of an accurate micrometer will supersede the pinching and flipping and smelling and snapping by means of which our authorities form their valued opinions relative to the thickness of paper.

Double Paper.

The National printings include several values on double paper, made under the specifications of the Steel patent which was issued February 16, 1869. It is probable that the three cent stamp exists on this paper although all that are reported by Luff are two values, the six cent and the twenty-four cent. All of the lower values of the Continental printings have been found on double paper. The shades of the 3c stamp on this paper are "Green, Dark Green, Pale Blue-Green," according to Luff.

The paper consists of a comparatively thick base which is approximately .0025″ thick and a thinner sheet which measures about .0012″, making the total average thickness of the double paper stamps .0037″ although copies are found varying in thickness from .0035″ to .0041″. Contrary to the general belief I have found that continued boiling in violently agitated water will not separate the two sheets composing a double paper stamp and I doubt if any have been separated by soaking in cold water. In looking for these things I measure the thickness of the stamps and any that are found to exceed .0034″ are laid aside as "suspects" and later, boiled for five minutes. After this the stamp is laid upon a glass surface and an instrument with a razor edge about 0.10″ in length (made from a strip of the blade of a safety razor) is used in starting the break between the two sheets forming the stamp. Any stamp on reasonably thick paper can be split for a short distance by this process and the entire batch of "suspects" are thus treated and laid aside for about twenty minutes. The corners of the stamp, thus separated, afford holds for two pairs of straight edged tweezers. After the moisture has practically all evaporated, but while the glue or size in the paper is still "plastic" an attempt is made to lengthen the separation between the two corners which have been "scraped" apart. If the stamp separates cleanly and easily, and does not tear through either sheet it is assuredly a double paper specimen, but if the tendency is for one of the corners to tear loose from the stamp it may be regarded as a "thick paper" variety. In the average batch of ten Continental stamps suspected to be on double paper, the harvest usually consists of about eight specimens. The value of the micrometer is therefore readily apparent. The instrument which I use for these measurements was specially constructed for this work and the ordinary micrometer calipers are practically useless in this connection.

Practically all of the American printings can be separated into two sheets of paper because the ink and the varnish and drier contained therein form a semi-waterproof, compact surface fabric from which the back of the stamp may be detached. These are not "double paper" stamps and are not often offered as such.

THE STAMPS OF WURTEMBERG.

By B. W. H. POOLE.

The kingdom of Wurtemberg lies between Baden and Bavaria and touches Switzerland (Lake of Constance) on the south. It entirely surrounds Hohenzollern, in which state, as well as in Baden, it owns several enclaves. Its total area is 7529 square miles and it has a population of about three millions. It is drained for the most part by the Neckar and its tributaries, while the Danube crosses the country towards the south. The most striking geographical feature is the Swabian Alb, the most characteristic portion of the South German Jura. The Black Forest borders the kingdom on the west. On the whole the surface lies high (3000 to 1500 feet), the greater part belonging to one or other of the German plateau systems; but there are many valleys, all of great fertility. Agriculture is the principal industry; wine and fruit are produced in large quantity; and market gardening is actively pursued at Stuttgart, Ulm, Heilbronn and elsewhere. Iron and salt are mined and there are numerous mineral springs scattered over the whole kingdom. There is a good deal of manufacturing industry of a varied character, the more important branches producing iron, gold, and silver goods, cutlery, fire-arms, machinery, scientific and musical instruments, chemicals, prints and books, confectionery and beer. The capitol of the kingdom is Stuttgart.

The bulk of the people (69 per cent.) are Protestants; the Roman Catholics, who have a bishop at Rottenburg, amount to 30 per cent., and there are about 12,000 Jews. The state university is at Tübingen, and there is a polytechnical high school at Stuttgart. Education stands at an exceptionally high general level, even for Germany; there is not a single individual in the kingdom over ten years of age who is unable to read and write. Wurtemberg has four votes in the Federal Council, and returns seventeen deputies to the Imperial Diet. The Wurtemberg troops constitute the 13th Army Corps of the German Army, having a total strength of about 24,000. The king is a hereditary constitutional sovereign and he is assisted by two houses of parliament. The national receipts and expenditures balance at about $17,500,000 per annum, while the national debt, nearly all incurred for railways, stands at about $110,000,000.

The territory now called Wurtemberg, then occupied by the Suevi, was conquered by the Romans in the first century, A. D. In the third century it was settled by the Germanic Alemanni and they, in turn were subdued by the Franks. In the 9th century it was incorporated in the duchy of Swabia, Ulrich (1241-65) being the first count. In 1495 the reigning count was made a duke of the empire. Duke Frederick II, (1797-1816) on going over to the French was rewarded with 850 square miles of new territory and an addition of 125,000 subjects, as well as the dignity of Elector (1802). In Napoleon's war against Austria (1805) he sided with the French, and his troops fought with them down to 1813; in return for which he acquired the kingly title and an increase of territory which more than doubled the number of his subjects. Throwing in her lot with Austria in 1866, Wurtemberg was beaten at Könniggrätz and Tauberbischofsheim, and her king (Charles, 1864-91) was compelled to purchase peace from Prussia at the cost of an indemnity of $4,000,000.

ITS POSTAL HISTORY.

From an early period the postal service of Wurtemberg was, with some interruptions, in the hands of the princely House of Thurn and Taxis, but by an agreement dated March 22nd, 1851, the Government of Wurtemberg liberated itself by purchasing the postal privileges from July 1st of that year for the sum of 1,300,000 florins (about $525,000). It then proceeded to form its own administration and to join the German-Austrian Postal Union, established by the convention of April 6th, 1850. As one of the provisions of this convention required the adoption of postage stamps, preparations were immediately made for providing them, and by a notice of October 7th, 1851, the public were informed that stamps of 1, 3, 6 and 9 kreuzer would be on sale at the various post offices on the 12th of that month, and that their use would commence from the 15th of the same month. In design these stamps are very similar to those of Baden, issued a few months earlier. All values were printed in black on colored papers, the design, common to all, mainly featuring large numerals to denote the respective denominations. In December, 1856, the numeral design was suppressed in favor of a new one showing the Arms of the kingdom. The values were the same as before with an 18kr stamp in addition, and all were printed in color on white paper, the paper containing orange colored silk threads like the "Dickenson" paper employed in Great Britain. In June, 1858, the stamps began to appear on plain white wove paper, without silk threads, while about November, 1859, perforation was introduced. The next change, occurring in February, 1861, was a somewhat minor one affecting the paper which was much thinner than before. In 1862, the 1, 3, 6 and 9 kreuzer were issued with a perforation gauging 10 instead of 13½ as before, while in 1863-64 all denominations appeared in new colors conforming to the color scheme adopted by the German-Austrian Postal Union. In 1865 the 1, 3 and 6kr were issued with roulette instead of perforation, the 9kr followed in 1867 and the 18kr in 1868 and in the latter year a new value, 7kr, also rouletted, was added to the series. In 1868 the Government decided to abandon the typographic embossing process as it was found too expensive, especially in the case of the lower denominations. Ordinary typographic printing was adopted and with the new process a new design was introduced. In this the main theme was a large numeral in the center, to denote the value, surrounded by suitable inscriptions and ornamentation. A post office notice, dated November 27th, 1868, stated that from January 1st,

"Stamps of Cook Islands" PRICE 25c

BY B. W H. POOLE

A comprehensive handbook, well written finely illustrated and typographically a handsome production.

Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News, Boston, Mass.

1869, the new 1, 3 and 7kr stamps would be issued according as the stocks of the former issues were exhausted. On May 3rd, 1869, another value of 14kr was added to the series; on December 1st, 1872, a 2kr stamp was issued; and on January 15th, 1873, another stamp of the value of 9 kreuzer appeared. About the same time a 70 kreuzer stamp of the type of 1856 was issued, the object of which was to prepay heavy letters. Towards the end of 1874 the system of rouletting the stamps ceased, a new perforating machine, with a gauge of 11 by 11½, having been purchased. The only stamps of the 1869-73 series perforated by this machine were those of the 1 kreuzer, which was issued in November, 1874, as before it was necessary to print any of the other denominations the design was altered.

In 1874 it was decided to change the currency, which up to then was that of the florin of 60 kreuzer, to the Imperial currency of marks and pfennige, and January 1st, 1875, was decided on as the date upon which the change should take effect. A Post-office Notice dated December 23rd, 1874, announced that a stamp of 20 pfennige of a new design would be issued on the following January 1st to take the place of the 7 kreuzer, as soon as the stock of that value in the various post offices was exhausted. Prominent numerals are again the chief feature of the design but in place of "WURTTEMBERG," the inscription is "K.WURTT.POST". On May 28th, 1875, a further notice from the post office announced the discontinuance of the kreuzer series from the 1st of July following and the issue of a new series with values in pfennige. The new stamps were 3, 5, 10, 25 and 50 pfennige and 2 marks, the latter taking the place of the 70kr stamp. The 50pf as originally issued was printed in grey but by virtue of an agreement made with the Imperial Post Office at Berlin, its color was changed to grey-green in February, 1878. In November, 1881, a 5 mark stamp was added to the series, this being similar in design to the rest of the set except that the central portion was uncolored and the numeral of value was printed in this space in black by a second operation. On January 1st, 1883, a similar change in the color of the numeral was extended to the 2 mark stamp. Early in 1890 the colors of the 3, 5, 25 and 50pf stamps were changed and in 1893 a further addition was made to the series by the issue of a 2 pfennige stamp. In 1900 two new values—30 and 40 pfennige respectively—were issued, these being like the mark denominations with the numerals in black on a plain ground. On April 1st, 1902, the kingdom of Wurtemberg ceased the issue of its own separate stamps, those for the German Empire superseding them.

In addition to its stamps for ordinary use, Wurtemberg has issued Municipal Service and Official stamps, both these special series still continuing in use. The Municipal Service stamps were first issued in July, 1875, there being two denominations, 5 and 10 pfennige. The first of these was for use on the official correspondence of municipalities, irrespective of weight, and the 10pf was for use on money orders and parcels. In 1880 the color of the 5pf was changed from mauve to green. In 1897 a change in the postal rates led to the issue of a 3pf stamp and in 1900 other regulations led to the issue of 2 and 25 pfennige values. In 1906 all five values were overprinted with the dates "1806-1906," surmounted by a crown in commemoration of the centenary of Wurtemberg's being raised to a Kingdom. In 1906-7 all five values were printed on paper watermarked with a design of crosses and circles and at the same time 20 and 50 pfennige values were added to the set.

Until April 1st, 1881, the correspondence of the ministerial offices was conveyed free of charge, but on the suppression of this privilege a series of stamps of special design was issued for use on official correspondence. The values at first issued were 3, 5, 10, 20, 25 and 50 pfennige, but in 1882 a 1 mark stamp was added. In 1890 the colors of the 3, 5 and 25pf and 1 mark were changed to conform with those of the regular series. The color of the 50pf was also changed shortly afterwards and in 1900 a 2pf stamp was added to the set. In 1903, 30 and 40 pfennige stamps were issued in colors corresponding to those of the ordinary stamps of 1900, while in 1906 all denominations were overprinted in a similar manner to the Municipal Service stamps. During 1906-7 all denominations appeared on the new paper watermarked with circles and crosses.

THE FIRST ISSUE.

The Government of Wurtemberg obtained control of its own postal service in 1851 when, as I have already shown in my preceding notes, it was purchased from the Prince of Thurn and Taxis. The first series of stamps consisting of 1, 3, 6 and 9 kreuzer values were placed on sale to the public on the 12th October, 1851, though their use for postal purposes did not commence until three days later. In April, 1852, a new denomination—18 kreuzer—was added to the set and as the design is similar to that of the lower values, all can best be treated as one set. To quote the late Mr. W. A. S. Westoby: "The resemblance between the stamps of the first series of Wurtemberg and those of the first series of Baden is so remarkable as to leave no doubt that the Government of Wurtemberg availed itself of the results of the investigations made by that of Baden previously to the issue of the first series for this latter State, on May 1st, 1851. The dies were similarly constructed, the inscriptions were similar, mutatis mutandis, and the stamps were printed on colored paper. The matrix die was composite, the numeral of value in the center being within a frame, almost square, of 9½ mm. placed angle upwards within a frame measuring externally 22½ by 22 mm. and internally 15½ by 15 mm. and carrying the following inscriptions on tablets: In the upper one, running the whole width, was 'Wurttemberg,' and on a similar tablet at the foot was 'Freimarke,' with an ornament at each end resembling a vine branch with the two bunches of grapes, the lower one of which was incomplete. On the tablet on the left side was 'Deutsch-Oestr. Postverein,' and on another on the right side 'Vertrag v. 6 April 1850.' These were set up in movable type; the upper and lower ones in ordinary German lower case characters with capital initials, and those on the sides in diamond type, as in those of Baden. The spaces between the rectangle carrying the numeral of value and the inner line of the frame were filled in with arabesque ornaments."

The design is similar for all values with the exception of the central portion carrying the numerals. In the case of the 1 and 6 kreuzer the background is composed of lines running parallel to the sides of the rectangle making a design of small squares; in the 3 kreuzer, the ground consists of small ovals; in the 9 kreuzer the ground is composed of small circles resembling lace work; while on the 18 kreuzer the background is formed of horizontal lines.

The dies were engraved at the Mint in Stuttgart, where the electrotypes composing the printing plates were also made. The printing was done under the direction of the post office, in typographic presses, the sheets consisting of sixty stamps arranged in ten rows of six. All denominations were printed in black on colored papers. The paper was obtained locally and while it is always wove, it varies considerably in thickness and most values provide numerous shades. The stamps were all issued imperforate.

Mr. Westoby tells us that, "It may be noted that occasionally one or both of the full stops are wanting after the 'v' or the '6' in the inscription in the right tablet of the 3 kreuzer, and there is a difference in the position of the stop after the word 'Postverein' in the left tablet. The first of these is probably due to imperfections in the moulds from which the electrotypes were made, while the second points to the making of new plates."

Mr. Robert Ehrenbach, writing in the London Philatelist for August, 1893, points out that differences in the position of the period after "Postverein" may be found in all values except the 18kr. There are three types in all. In Type I the period is between the second and third points of the zigzag lines of the border; in type II it is exactly over the second point; and in type III it is exactly above the third point. All three types are found on the 3 kreuzer, types I and II are found in the 1, 6 and 9 kreuzer, while the 18kr is known only with the first type. Whether the varieties are found side by side on the same sheet or are the distinguishing points of separate plates we are not told.

A RACE FOR BELGIUM STAMPS.

After experiences which befall few collectors in the pursuit of Belgium Occupation Provisional War stamps, Mr. A. van Hooreke arrived safely in Gand, on Friday, 2nd inst., thence crossing to London. This Belgian gentleman, together with a friend, on special duties, conceived the idea of trying to get possession of a supply of the provisional stamps made by the Military Authorities under German occupation. Deciding separate search would more likely meet with success, each took different directions arranging a destination. The advantage bristled with risks at every point, and it was only by the greatest good fortune Mr. van Hooreke, after anxiously awaiting his friend who was four days overdue at their appointed rendezvous, managed to win through safe and sound, being one of the last to pass in and through the fighting line just before all passage was entirely cut off. Of his friend there is unfortunately no news, and fears are entertained of his safety.

The limited space of our paper does not admit of our giving details of the exploits of Mr. van Hooreke and we must confine our news more particularly on the stamps. Finding no more than four stamps were served in the ordinary course to applicants with letters, he had to resort to the influence of cigars and wine, etc., by gift to procure a number in mint condition. Gaining the amiable side of an official, he was told that they looked upon Belgium as a German province, and was informed this first issue surcharged in centime values was restricted owing to the supply being so small whilst awaiting an issue in special design intended to be in the pfennig values. Mr. van Hooreke has placed his entire holding in our possession, and at the moment of writing, October 7th, we are not aware of more of these stamps being in evidence.

All communication between Antwerp and the interior is now entirely cut off. What may happen in a few days no one can foretell. Possibly the retreat of the German hosts with impedimenta driven forever back to their own land by the Allied Forces, would mean the abolition of their few Belgium Post Offices. Since the first few days of occupation postal communications even in Brussels came to a deadlock. The population quickly realising the invaders violated the privacy of every letter, and the threatening manner in which their enquiries were treated, gave up corresponding altogether, The Brussels postmen finding they were carrying letters between Germans only, struck work, and were replaced by Teutons who of course found no customers other than themselves. It is known the Belgian Stamp-factory in Malines was destroyed by gun fire about three weeks since, and no doubt the next Imperial Belgian stamps will be expressly manufactured in England, as is now the case with their Bank Notes, etc.—Ewen's Weekly.

EDITORIAL.

Be a Big Brother—Why not take advantage of an opportune time to encourage stamp collecting among the boys? The swimming and base-ball seasons have closed and with foot-ball and other out-door sports nearing their finale, the boy instinctively turns to something dissociated from his studies with which to pass away the long winter evenings. If the medium of his relaxation can be made instructive as well as entertaining, so much the better; and stamp collecting offers that ideal combination. The nights of autumn when it is so comfortable in-doors are witching to the boy and are made radiant by the glow of the evening lamp. Now when the boy is filled with delightful anticipation, "for winter has its merry season, too," bring forth stamp collecting to his notice,—stamp collecting which offers a depth of interest and a strength of fascination that are not easy to understand and which correlates in a natural way, history and geography, to speak of no further "advantages." Every boy needs a hobby, a fact that is recognized in one of the largest boys' high schools in the United States, the Lane Technical of Chicago, where an effort is made on the part of the instructors to form clubs for the advancement of any hobby that the boys may have; and Lane has had its club of stamp collectors. Start with your own boys if you have any and the neighbors' boys; and be a boy yourself if necessary to get the club started.

Hand in Hand—If you take a real interest in boys you will find that the idea of a "club" is an appealing one to them and "stamps" in connection with a club adds to pleasure. You must give stamps to the boys and what perhaps is more important, from your point of view, time and attention. Start them off right and tell them that what is started as a hobby, simply to amuse, may develop into a serious life work. See if you can interest them with the story of the chemical instructor in a small college who became interested in the products of a large corporation and made valuable experiments with them that attracted attention. When the corporation had grown so large that a chief chemist was needed for laboratory work, he was selected at a salary that he had never dreamed of commanding. While stamp collecting does not seem to offer such inducements, it serves a purpose and is not without its opportunities. Organize a boys' club in your neighborhood or community and you at least will have the satisfaction of knowing that you had a part in starting some boy in an interesting and educational pastime.

Across the Sea—An interesting cancellation is that of the United States armored cruiser "Tennessee" which carried funds to the Americans stranded in Europe as a consequence of the war. A letter before us bears the cancellation, Yarmouth, England, on the two-cent U. S. and the usual battleship postmark: "U. S. S.—Sept. 24—P. M.— 1914—Tennessee."

In Memory—We have to chronicle the death of Arthur Weld who died suddenly recently while engaged as manager for James K. Hackett. Mr. Weld enjoyed his greatest celebrity as an orchestra leader and gained much notice as musical director of "Florodora" when the piece first appeared. Mr. Weld was accustomed to call on a few stamp folks in several cities while on tour and his philatelic enthusiasm was unbounded. We remember in particular in a conversation with Mr. Weld, that he said that he was greatly attached to the "perce en arc" first and second types of Brunswick, of which he had accumulated a large number. Mr. Weld was a man of no mean ability in his profession; and his marked individuality made him a distinctive figure.

Optically—"Heavy cancellation" is a term somewhat elusive in its suggestions and after all, it is a description that is only relatively exact. We make the observation that in order to place the degree of heaviness in relation to portrait stamps, as in the case of United States issues, properly in the mind of the collector, mention be made whether the cancellation covers the eyes of the person pictured. It is somewhat singular that a heavy cancellation that does not obscure the eyes on the stamp is not so objectionable as a lighter cancellation that blots out the eyes. A collector is sometimes heard to say that he does not mind the heavy cancellation if the eyes are not inked over—all of which is evidence that there is soul even in the eyes on stamps.

Latest Hand-Book—Our hand-book, Number 5, "The United States Stamped Envelopes," written by Louis G. Barrett and J. Murray Bartels is a twenty-page work, with cover, that so entertainingly and instructively treats of its subject that added favor will be bestowed upon the envelopes of our country by readers. Practically everything about our envelopes, with the exception of descriptions of die differences, is to be found in this treatise. The watermarks are illustrated from first to last and Mr. Bartels' article, "The Early United States Envelopes," is included appropriately in the little book. The price is a "mere pittance"—ten cents.

Wiley's Work—Our contributor, Mr. H. L. Wiley, Portland, Oregon, whose studies on stamps of the United States have brought him favorable attention, was a recent visitor to our Chicago office. Mr. Wiley's work on what may be called the branch lines of the United States issues in our columns has attracted so much interest that we are publishing the articles in question in handsome pamphlet form and we are confident that readers and others will be pleased to have the work in separate and convenient shape. It is expected that the book will be ready for distribution by the time this notice is in print; and a price of twenty-five cents a copy has been placed on this monograph of the parcel post and postal savings issues.

The War Tax—The revenue bill, which in its preliminary form was the subject of extended notice in our columns, has now become law and its provisions are being copied quite generally for the guidance of the public. It is announced that the taxes to be paid by stamps will become operative on December 1st, 1914.

Putting It Right—It is not a matter of momentous interest, perhaps, but that dollar sign on the new "Gobierno Constitucionalista" surcharges, federal issue of Mexico, has two strokes as a well-appointed dollar mark should have, instead of one as we remarked last week.

THE LAST OF THE POSTAL SAVINGS.

By Wm. E. Beam.

We have seen the last of the Postal Savings stamps, for an Act of Congress, which has just been approved by the President, repeals the clause in the Postal Savings Act of June 25th, 1910, which provides for the use of specially prepared stamps in lieu of penalty envelopes in the transmittal of free mail resulting from the administration of the Postal Savings System.

Under date of October 5th, the department issued to all postmasters in charge of Postal Savings Banks, orders to immediately discontinue the use of all official postage stamps and stamped envelopes of the Postal Savings System and transmit the stock on hand to the Third Assistant Postmaster General, who is in charge of the System. Under no conditions or circumstances are any of the unused stamps or stamped envelopes to be sold or given to the public for any purpose whatever. It is the intention of the department to furnish a special penalty envelope to be used in transacting the business of Postal Savings System.

By H. L. WILEY.

The Issue of 1894.

This issue is made to include the stamps on the watermarked paper and those printed in colors differing from the ones used in the original issue. The unwatermarked stamps are designated by the numeral "1" where necessary, to the right of the decimal point. The watermarked stamps are designated by the numeral "2" set to the right of the decimal point. The three general varieties of the issue in which the colors in some of the stamps is designated by the numeral "3" set to the right of the decimal point. In this issue there is encountered for the first time, the booklet issues. The stamp books were fortunately all from stamps having the third type of triangle and all were on watermarked paper. In this issue, space is also provided for the first of the precanceled varieties.

The Issue of 1902.

The lower denominations of this issue include as secondary varieties, imperforate stamps, stamps issued in coils, booklet leaves, machine perforations, and precancels. Reference to the index will disclose the manner in which the writer has attempted to provide for minor varieties. In the instance of the 2 cent stamp the early stamp known as the flag type is designated by the numeral "1" set immediately to the right of the decimal point while the shield type has for its principal index the numeral "2." This is one instance in which a difference of design has not been made a different issue and it may be considered advisable for the majority of critics to revise that index at that point giving one of the stamps a place by itself where it can enjoy the solitary grandeur deserved and welcomed by troublesome outlaws of its kind.

Advertising Chat—No. 10.

This issue speaks for itself. We present you with a special number of sixteen pages, gotten together with but very little extra effort upon our part, and a splendid exponent of the condition of the stamp trade here in America. We may well feel proud of this achievement.

Quarter pages are scattered through this issue and demonstrate that our liberal publicity offer is being appreciated. Many advertisers are taking advantage of our offer of reprints supplied by the Jewett Printing Co. at reasonable figures, and which furnishes a maximum of service at a minimum of cost.

This week W. W. Walsh of Halifax, N. S., an oldtime advertiser in the WEEKLY, returns to our columns. We take pleasure in introducing him to our readers. Charles S. Osgood will certainly sell some Seychelles from his big advertisement in this number. He will now be with us regularly during the winter months. We do not make a practice of mentioning new trade column advertisers, but this week the Belmont Stamp Co. of Philadelphia begins the use of fifty lines. Back of the company is a name quite well known in stamp circles.

If you have stamps to sell, MEKEEL'S WEEKLY can certainly sell them, and our little booklet "How to Deal in Stamps," price 10c, will give you a mine of information.

We shall come again.

PUT ON YOUR GLASSES AND EXAMINE THIS

Those 60% approvals are the very best possible. And an additional 10% if you pay in ten days. If 60 and 10% is not low enough considering the condition and cost, I will reduce the list price, so you are sure to get your money's worth. It will only cost you a stamp and a reference to obtain a selection, and then there is a nice little unused United States premium for you. I would like to have you for one of my regular customers. Come on while the season is young. You will save money. [42&44

Specialized Collection of Early Holland

1852 and 1864 Issues Only

We offer one of the very finest specialized collections of these two issues ever offered by anybody in the United States. This collection contains about 1600 stamps of the very finest and highest grade copies ever found. It contains pairs and strips in abundance. Varieties of shades, retouches of the plate, town cancellations and many of the most difficult varieties to locate are well represented.

We cannot describe this collection in words, as its beauty can only be appreciated by a specialist who knows these fine old engravings and how hard it is to get them together and classified.

These stamps can be plated from all appearances and no other collection is better fitted for the occasion. These stamps are neatly mounted in three half-morocco loose leaf albums and are arranged according to shades and plate varieties.

We will be pleased to submit this collection for inspection to responsible parties.

NEW PERF. ON U. S. STAMPS.

We are indebted to Wm. T. Kimball, Lawrence, Mass., for the information that the 2c, 3c and 4c stamps of the current set have been issued in sheets with perforation 10. The 1c and 2c values in coils and books were issued some months ago, but only recently has the new perforation appeared on sheets. It is probable that it will be adopted for all denominations.

LESS THAN SINGLE COLUMN FORM.

Advertisers will please note that we are compelled to charge extra for advertisements set in less than single column form, single column measure. The F. M. Mason advertisement elsewhere in this issue will illustrate our idea. Ordinarily a quarter page will cost $15.00, but in the form shown, the price will be $17.00. The difference in price goes to the printer for extra composition. Advertisers will kindly remember this.

SEEN AT THE CONVENTION OF THE S. P. A.

Again we are indebted to the New England Philatelist for line cut dealing with incidents and persons centering in the S. P. A. convention at Indianapolis. We are very positive that our subscribers will be pleased with the opportunity of gazing upon the features of those who in the past they have been privileged to know only by name.

MUSKOGEE ADVERTISING CANCELLATIONS.

We wish to call to the attention of postmark collectors and others who are interested in advertising cancellations, the fact that four separate and distinct postmarking dies have thus far been used to advertise the Sixth Annual Convention of the Southern Commercial Congress, at Muskogee, Oklahoma. They are:

Die I—56 mm. x 18 mm.; wording SIXTH ANNUAL CONVENTION: SOUTHERN COMMERCIAL CONGRESS: MUSKOGEE, OKLAHOMA: NOVEMBER 11-13, 1914, in short, squatty letters, occupying entire design.

Die Ia—Same, except date reads NOVEMBER 10-14, 1914.

Die II—60 mm. x 18 mm.; wording same as in Die Ia, but in tall, thin letters, occupying left two-thirds of design, other third of which is composed of the characteristic waved lines.

Die IIa—Same, except date reads APRIL 26-30, 1915, in letters somewhat larger than remainder of letters.

The concern which manufactured the dies made an error in the date of the first die, necessitating the manufacture of a new one. The first die (I) was in operation at the Muskogee Post Office from June 18 to July 9, 1914, when the corrected die (Ia) was received. This die was used until August 10, when Die II was put into operation. Die II was used continuously until about September 15, when the ordinary office machine cancellation was resumed. Die IIa was put into use about October 15 and will probably be continued until the new date set for the convention, which was postponed to next year because the unsettled conditions in Europe affected the South so seriously. Die I is by far the rarest of the lot; Die II is the most plentiful thus far, but Die IIa will probably exceed it in numbers within a month or so.

GEORGE A. CHANDLER.

ONLY BY CENSORED MAIL.

London, England—A royal proclamation just issued forbids the transit, except by post, which is subject to the censors' scrutiny, of any letter or written message to any persons of any nationality carrying on business in the enemy's country. It is also ruled that any person landing or embarking in the United Kingdom must declare whether or not he is carrying any letter or message. Officers are empowered to search the luggage of a suspect and seize any letter, if they are doubtful as to its character, and submit it to the military censor.—Associated Press.

IN AFRICA.

African possessions and protectorates of the European powers now at war are more than three times as large as continental United States. They are more than three times as large as all of Europe now plunged in war, and are eleven times larger than England, France Germany and Belgium, which control them. The largest individual holder of African territory is France, with 3,812,000 square miles, more than a million and a half of which is the Sahara desert.—Newspaper.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Frank E. Stackpole, Bangor, Me., would like to know the present whereabouts of W.. J. Ringer, formerly of Paola, Kansas. Mr. Stackpole is interested in a certain approval selection in Ringer's possession.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Clinton L. Chalfant, Wm. T. Kimball, Ferdinand Gottlieb and H. C. Barr.

—We are indebted to J. M. Bartels and W. T. Kimball, for circulars in relation to the discontinuance of the postal savings stamps.

—Philatelists generally will rejoice with us in the return of Stamp Collecting to activity. The advertisement elsewhere in this issue will be read with interest and we trust a goodly number of our subscribers will lend the publication the support desired.

—The town of Ellis, Mass., is on the philatelic map and the readers of the WEEKLY who have never heard of the place before will rejoice in the organization of the Ellis Philatelic Club. We shall expect large things from this latest addition to our philatelic organizations.

—Our friend Theodore Siddall has removed from Manila to 93 Rue Montaubon, Shanghai, China. He expects to be there for quite a while. From his letter just at hand we quote as follows:—"There are several post offices here—I don't know just how many, but there are three on the street I live on—French, just opposite my house, German and Chinese. There are also American, British and Japanese, and I suspect also Russian, but I have not seen that one. If I had so much trouble keeping up with new issues in Manila, with only one bum little post office, how can I keep tabs on six or seven?"

—We have just received a card announcing the marriage of Miss Hedwig Julia Wicht of Cleveland, to Mr. Eben Squire Martin of Covington, Ohio, on October 23rd, 1914. Mr. and Mrs. Martin will be at home in Covington, Ohio, after November 1st, 1914. Mr. Martin is general manager of the International Stamp Company of Covington, Ohio.

—A set of the King George issue of India, 3p to 1 rupee inclusive, surcharged I. E. F., (Indian Expeditionary Force), has been shown us by a reader. These surcharges are for the use of the Indian troops fighting under the British flag on the continent of Europe and have a historical significance that many collectors will be quick to grasp.

—A correspondent writes from Philadelphia: "I was unfortunate enough to lose a manilla envelope, Oct. 25, containing some valuable stamps on original covers, amongst others an original cover having nine 1d Nove Scotia and one 3d, very lightly cancelled, also an original letter (no envelope) having a one shilling mauve N. S. and one 3 penny on the back of the letter. Also two strips of one penny, three in each, and some envelopes with 3d stamps on them. I thought possibly you might put in a note in regard to them. I would give $50.00 for their return."

POLAND A KINGDOM AGAIN?

Should the result of the present war in Europe make possible the fulfillment of the czar's promise to restore to Poland territorial integrity and complete self-government, it will bring a day for which Poles all over the world have long waited.

Fifty years ago, Poland (or Polska, "the land of plains") lost her independence. With it disappeared as a definite nation a race of people whose past was one of imperishable memory. In days when civilization and Christianity were struggling to overcome barbarism and paganism, Poland was the strong bulwark which withstood the raids of the Asiatic hordes, which championed the cause of humanity and enlightenment. Her history possesses a wealth of incidents unsurpassed for their picturesqueness, and the story of her fall from an honored place in the councils of Europe to her present position of dependence is one of inexpressable sadness.

The victim of the ambitions of her powerful neighbors, Poland, weakened by internal discord, was stripped of lands by partitions of 1772, 1793 and 1795. The kingdom was finally divided by the congress of Vienna in 1815 in such a way that the shares of Prussia and Austria were reduced and the grand duchy of Warsaw united to the Russian Empire as the kingdom of Poland. In 1831, however, the Poles rebelled and were crushed, with the result that they were deprived of their constitution, their army was merged in the Russian and the Russian language was made compulsory. —Newspaper.

THEO. W. BARRY, Pres.; LOUIS G. BARRETT, Vice-Pres.; C. A. HOWES, Sec., 55 Kilby St., Boston; CHAS. S. HILL, Foreign Sec., 67 Milk St., Boston; G. CARLTON RUSSELL, Treas., 38 Wellesley Park, Dorchester, Mass.; J. H. LYONS, Supt. Auctions; HENRY A. KIDDER, Supt. Sales; A. W. DUNNING, Supt. Bourse.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Oct. 20, 1914.

The 322nd (regular) meeting, was held at the Club Room this evening. President Barry occupied the chair and 25 members and friends were present.

Mr. A. P. Brown reported on the Society Collection which has had a very good start in albums and material from quite a number of the members. He announced that stamps given to auction for the benefit of the collection would be sold at the November meeting of the Society.

The name of Mr. Freeman Putney, Jr., was proposed for membership.

The following new members were admitted: No. 596, Dr. Henry J. Perry; No. 597, Robert W. Carpenter.

An informal auction was announced to take place at the November meeting, and members having anything they desire to dispose of in this way are requested to contribute.

It was suggested that those remaining in town on meeting nights meet together for supper as was formerly done. It was decided to announce in the next notice that those who desire meet in the lobby of the Quincy House at 6 o'clock.

It was suggested that the meeting be hereafter called at 8 o'clock instead of 7.30 and that if there is an informal auction it be held previous to this time.

Mr. Oscar Hill was introduced and gave us some interesting reminiscences of his collecting experiences. Mr. A. W. Batchelder spoke on the effect that the European war would have in giving and also increasing interest in philately. Mr. F. W. Stiles spoke of efforts to interest and increase the collecting spirit among the children. Mr. W. C. Polk spoke on the probable duration of the European war. The Secretary read extracts from a letter from our Honorary member, Mr. Fred J. Melville, President of the Junior Philatelic Society of London.

It was voted to send a message of sincere friendship and good will to Mr. Melville.

The meeting formally adjourned at 9.07 P. M.

C. A. HOWES, Sec.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

At the next meeting, November 17th, there will be held an informal auction. Members wishing to put anything in the sale are requested to have it in the hands of the auctioneer, Mr. J. H. Lyons,, 387 Washington St., Boston, by Monday, November 16th.

There will also be a special sale of lots, given to be sold for the benefit of the Society Collection. Any further contributions of lots or for the collection may be sent to Mr. A. P. Brown, 17 Alpha Road, Dorchester Center, Mass.

THE STAMP OF APPROVAL.

The following is taken from the Kansas City Star:—"When Gen. Von Kluck is finally enveloped—if he ever is—the Allies will put the stamp of approval on it." Ferdinand Gottlieb, in sending us this clipping, adds:—"It will be unsolicited when they do."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—The new 2c stamps printed from a continuous roll were issued Oct. 5. according to the Philadelphia Stamp News, and may be had in coils wound horizontally and perforated 10 vertically. These stamps are cylindrical recess-plate printed on a continuous roll of dry paper, gummed, perforated (accurately) 10, divided into strips and coiled on the same machine. The general appearance of the stamps is much finer than any hitherto produced; they have a smooth waxlike surface, and every line of the engraving is clear and distinct. The design is slightly wider (horizontally) than the flat plate printed stamps of the same general design: the old measures 18¾x22; the new measures 19½x22 mm. The paper (or is it the gum) is whiter, and the application of the gum has produced streaks like laid lines, horizontally. The watermark is sideways, a single letter of the single line "U S P S," or a portion of one or two letters, showing on each stamp.

The premier experiments were made with a cylindrical plate containing identical subjects which printed 300 stamps, with head vertically lengthwise with the paper, in 30 rows of 10, at each revolution of the plate. The stamps just issued wound horizontally in coils were printed with the head in a horizontal position on the plate, and if the plate from which they were printed is the same size as the experimental one, the individual designs must be laid out in 33 rows of 9 and thus print 297 stamps in that position at each revolution of the cylinder.

The watermark of single line letters "U S P S" is arranged about the same as in the paper in use for flat press work and it is horizontal across the width of the roll paper, therefore stamps printed upright for vertical coils have the letters of the watermark upright while those printed sideways for horizontal coils have the watermark sideways on the finished stamp.

AUSTRALIA.—The Frank P. Brown Co. have shown us the new 6d Kookaburra or "Laughing Jackass" stamp. The color is a peculiar red violet, with "Australia" in large letters across the top, with the bird facing to the right, perched on a branch and occupying most of the stamp. The value in words appears in the upper left and in figures in the lower right. "Postage" is printed in a curved line just above the figures of value. The stamps are printed on white wove paper and perforated 11¼, the design being 20x24 mm.

Adhesive.

6d red violet.

AUSTRIA.—Whitfield King & Co. write: "A correspondent in Switzerland has sent us a copy of a Vienna newspaper, in which it is stated that an Imperial Decree was issued September 24 authorizing the issue of new postage stamps of the denominations 5 and 10 heller, which are to be sold at 2 heller each above the postal value, the price being therefore 7 and 12 heller each respectively. The extra 2 heller is given to the fund in aid of the widows and orphans of Austrian soldiers killed in the war. The stamps will be eight millimetres longer than the ordinary 5 and 10 heller stamps, they bear the same portrait as the ordinary stamps and in addition, between the portrait of the Emperor and the figures of value, the date "1914" appears in white figures on a coloured ground with an ornamentation of leaves. The new stamps were to be issued October 4, and will be available for postal use until further notice within the Austro-Hungarian Empire, Bosnia, Herzegovina and Germany."

We are also indebted to H. C. Barr and A. C. Roessler for information regarding this new charity issue.

BELGIUM.—Ewen's Weekly has the following:

This unfortunate war adds another set of stamps to the albums of Collectors. Belgium has always in past times believed in Charity stamps for good causes. Collectors may remember that at the last exhibition they issued a set of Charity stamps which were sold at double face, and now this Country so badly pressed by the consequences of the war has issued some Red Cross stamps which have been in use since Oct. the 3rd by this unhappy but heroic Nation, and we wish them with all our heart a speedy sale as we are certain help is urgently needed.

Two sets have been issued. The first set comprises the 5, 10, and 20c values, they are of large oblong shape. In the top corners are the figures of value, whereas the bottom corners bear a Red Cross on a white shield. The name Belgium is printed on the stamp in French and Flemish language. The design of the stamps is of a Belgian Monument commemorating the War of Independence of 1830. It represents a soldier, holding in his left hand a flag and supporting with his right a wounded soldier, apparently already supported by another kneeling soldier. The perforation is 14x14½.

20c deep violet.

The second set consists of the 10 and 20c values and shows a portrait of King Albert, a Red Cross figure in the lower left corner, and in the right the denomination is given. Perforated 14. Both sets are of rather crude execution and since the Belgian stamp manufactory at Malines has been burnt down, these stamps have probably been printed in England or France.

10c brick red.
20c bright violet.

GERMANY.—The Belgians are compelled to use German stamps overprinted "Belgien" and new values in centimes. We illustrate the design herewith.

MEXICO.—W. J. Stanton writes as follows, with reference to the surcharge on the 5c Federal issue, mentioned by Mr. Focke in No. 1241. This surcharge reads:

Gobierno
Constitucionalista

"I have copies postmarked Mexico City, Monterey and Guadalajara, and believe that they are being sent out by the Central Government at Mexico City. The '$' sign in the surcharge is reversed as given in the diagram above. I have also seen a 5c Federal stamp surcharged in typewriting "E. C.—Gobierno" in two lines. The surcharge was on a letter from a business house in Mazatlan to a firm in Coronado, Calif.

Illustration herewith shows how the government at Mexico City has overprinted the so-called Federal issue (1910):

"I notice that Mr. Poole, Mr. Linn, and others, speak of the re-issue of the green seal stamps as a new printing. A correspondent in Hermosillo writes me that this is not a new printing, but the stock that remained when the 'Ejercito' (war) issue came out. Everything seems favorable to this view. The paper is precisely the same, and the lower values show but slight changes, such as a worn letter being replaced. The block '5' and black roulette are accounted for as in the subsequent printings of the 10c the black form was used. As for the block '5,' a few of these were in circulation when the issue first came out a year ago. This original issue was followed by three distinct issues and some provisionals, and it is extremely doubtful if the printer would keep the form standing on the stone for a year, as any possible use for a Sonora issue would seem very remote. A fact that I have not seen mentioned is that a few with thin '5' appeared in this re-issue."

J. P. Crawford shows a cover franked with 2c and 3c Denver issue, on a Federal 5c envelope. The latter has "Gobierno—Constitucionalista" arranged in a circle with stars between the words, printed in purple, and intended to appear in the ground around the head. Mr. Crawford's correspondents inform him that all the stock in Mexico has been surcharged with the "$" surcharge, and stamps are to be found with surcharge inverted, missing letters, and printed in all kinds of ways. Dues, as well as regular postage stamps, have received this surcharge. Mr. Crawford has seen the "E. C. M." overprint in violet as well as in red. The Denver revenues are used in Leon for postage, without the talon. The 3c of the current issue appears to be rare. Mr. Crawford sends for inspection three revenues overprinted "Puebla" for use in that state. Two are of the Denver set, while the other is from the Federal Printing Office and dated "1914—1915," with "Gobierno Constitucionalista" added.

The California Stamp Co. sends us the new 1c and 5c Sonora stamps as noted last week. We note that they are without gum. They come in sheets of 40 stamps, in four rows of 10 stamps. The plate was prepared for two rows of 10 stamps, which were printed, and then the paper turned and run through the press again. Mr. Brown says there are no errors, but the green seal was engraved 10 times, so that there are 10 varieties of the seal in each horizontal row of stamps. These stamps have superseded the second issue—or re-issue of Sonora stamps.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the King George 3d on yellow paper, colored throughout.

Adhesive.

3d violet on yellow.

SAMOA.—The German Samoa stamps have been surcharged "G. R. I" and new value in English money, according to A. C. Roessler, though particulars are wanting as to what denominations have been thus treated.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME HINTS FOR THE AMATEUR DEALER.

In taking up this subject, we will assume that the reader has had no actual experience as a stamp dealer, but that he has some knowledge of stamps as a collector, and that he has a large quantity of ambition and determination. Without these assets, he cannot hope to succeed. As practically all dealers started out as collectors, it is safe to make the first assumption. At any rate, no one can hope to build up a successful business in a line he does not understand.

The ambition and determination are equally important factors. The stamp business is vastly different in many respects from any other line of business. At first thought, the collector is apt to be impressed with the "easy money" in the stamp business. Dealers with experience will confirm me when I say that there is no more "easy money" in the stamp business than in any other line. The money is there, but it requires labor and head-work to get it. However, I believe that the same money, say $5,000 or so, invested in the stamp business that is invested in some other small business, will bring considerably larger returns. Of course, I do not mean to imply that such an outlay of capital is necessary. In fact, it would be sheer folly to consider such an expenditure until experience was gained.

If it is the intention of the reader to start a stamp business, and to push it to the heights of success, let him keep those heights in view and plug for them. When discouragement enters the game, the only way to overcome it is to take it outside and gently but firmly exterminate it. Otherwise, it will exterminate even the best of ambitions. When you make a 'bad deal' remember that you were not the only one to make such a mistake. Bear in mind that every dealer has had the same troubles. Keep your eye on that high place, and devote your energies to building up the business that will reach to that height. Make YOUR business better. Don't be satisfied with a few sales to a few collectors. Go after big sales from every collector. Aim to give satisfaction to every one you do business with, except yourself. Aim to make your methods the best. When you accomplish something you have worked hard for, do not be satisfied that you have succeeded in that, but aim a little higher, and accomplish something bigger. If you start out to put out the best line of approvals in the business, do it. When you have accomplished it, start out to make them better.

In the stamp business, like every other business, there are many obstacles to be overcome. The rule of life is the survival of the fittest. The stamp business is no exception. Remember that these obstacles are put there to prove whether you are fit to be a success, and to share in the spoils of success. At heart, you believe you are capable of doing anything you set out to do. If you did not believe this, you would not set out to do it. When you meet a loss, even though it wipes you out, get busy and make it up. The picking will be slow and hard, but the longer you stick to it, the easier it will become.

The same basic rules apply in the stamp business as apply in any line of business. Honesty MUST be the very foundation. Of course, in these days of keen competition, every one will realize that the mere honesty is not enough. Don't only be honest. Give absolute satisfaction and stand back of every deal, with a money-back guarantee. Business Integrity is equally important. Use the same strict business methods in this busines that you would in any other, and demand them from those with whom you deal. Keep your eye on your "credit department" and keep your credit with the wholesaler. When you agree to pay in thirty days, live up to your agreement. Credit plays an important part in business, and must be respected in order to be retained. Keep your finger on the costs and sales end of your business, the same as you would in a hardware store, a clothing business, or any other line. Watch every expenditure, and cut out the unnecesary ones. Don't buy stock unless you can see a quick profit. Use modern methods in carrying on your stamp business. (Detailed information on the subject of systems will appear at an early date.) Use your head when you prepare an advertisement or publicity campaign. Any old thing will not bring the best results. Anything short of the best results means a waste of your money.

One great reason why the stamp business does not command more respect from the world is that the average dealer does not use progressive methods, the same as the clothier, grocer, merchant, or manufacturer. Taken as a whole, the stamp dealers are behind the times. There are quite a number of enterprising dealers who are making good, however, and more are joining this number. They are getting the business, and this is only fair. If the dealer wants to sleep, no one should disturb him! More than one home-loving spider has picked out the doorway of a stamp shop to build his roost, and if the stamp dealer does not object, certainly no one else should. Remember, Rip Van Winkle was the only man who ever gained fame for sleeping.

If the average stamp dealer were asked his profit on a certain stamp, or even collection, the chances are that he could not give it accurately. Ask a merchant what he paid for any line, even a spool of thread, and he can tell you. Why not in the stamp business? It can be done.

Statistics show that there are many thousands of collectors. These include men in all walks of life, rich and poor. The stamp business is a clean, interesting field of work. It is little known to the general public, and does not command a great deal of respect for this reason, but the money is there, just the same. If a man is known to be honest in his dealings, and is engaged in an honorable industry, he will gain the respect of his fellow man, whether he be a cobbler or a captain of industry. More than one great man in this country is fond of collecting, and the business of supplying stamps to collectors should no more be despised than the business of supplying jewels or paintings. In fact, these three are, in my mind, closely allied. In cold reality, none of them are of use to the world. A man may collect stamps, jewels or paintings, but he has the same object in view,—to secure something handsome to look upon. Diamonds are beautiful, but they are no more useful than a cancelled stamp. They will neither clothe nor nourish the body. They are merely ornaments. Why then should a stamp dealer not command the same respect as a jeweler? Don't be ashamed of your business. If you are, you have a barrier to overcome that will prevent you from reaching success. If you seek success, make yourself known. If you are ashamed to be known as a stamp dealer, quit the game, and let someone else take your place. We'll never miss you.

Perhaps it would be well to caution the new dealer against over-buying, since I have preached ambition and determination. Don't let these two virtues overcome you. Too much is as bad as too little. If you rush off and buy everything you see in order to have a big stock, you will find yourself a dumping ground for trash, and will be short of money when "that bargain" comes along. Take it easy, and only buy such items as you can see a use for, and buy them in small quantities. Be conservative, even though you are ambitious.

Unfortunately, there are many dealers in the stamp business who are not as reliable as they should be. There are quite a number who are absolutely unworthy of trust or patronage, and if the new dealer happens to fall into the clutches of any of these "crooks" he will soon find that he has been separated from his bank-roll and given a lot of trash in exchange. Be careful that such a misfortune does not come your way. It is quite safe to trade with any dealer advertising in this paper, as the publishers try, in the interest of the readers, to keep out undesirables, and they succeed pretty well.

Specialism for dealers is worthy of consideration. In order to be a successful dealer, it is quite important that a large stock of stamps be carried. There is some dissention as to whether specialism or general dealing is the most advisable, and both sides seem to be strong. However, if the dealer has only limited capital (as most of us have at the start) I believe it is best to carry a general line, but specialize in some one country, or group. In this way, the small dealer can probably carry enough varieties in stock to satisfy the demands of the average collector, and still begin to make a name for himself as a specialist in his big line. General dealing calls for a big outlay of money. On the other hand, the general dealer has the entire field of collectors to deal with, while the specialist can only supply those few interested in his country. If possible, carry a general line. If not, pick out a group of countries, and get the best stock of these you can. The specialist is up against some additional difficulties in buying stock, however. To get certain items he must have, he is obliged to pay more than the usual rate. He can usually charge more, however, to make up for this. Also, in buying large lots, he will accumulate many stamps not in his line, which he must take or leave in order to get the stock he needs. This "dead stock" must be turned at a loss or at cost. In short, I do not recommend specialism for the dealer, though I believe it a good plan to pick out a group of countries and specialize them in addition to general stock.

Having now taken up the question of the stamp business from various points of view, and having given most of the fundamentals of the business, we will consider that the new dealer has "found" himself in the game, and that we are ready to take up some of the details of the business.

In further articles, the subject of buying, advertising, keeping stock, making approvals, credit, systems, auctions and the other features of the business will be taken up. It is not the intent of the writer to give a lengthy treatise on the stamp business, but merely to offer a few suggestions to those collectors who think they would like to enter the business. The writer has never been a "professional" in any sense of the word, and probably never will be. He has carried on an amateur business for a number of years, and has learned by hard experience many of the tricks of the trade. If these articles will save any other dealer trouble, he will feel that they have served their purpose.

CHEAPER POSTAGE TO SO. AMERICA.

Congress is reported to be on the point of taking steps toward a two-cent postage rate between the United States and such South American countries as may be willing to join. The present rate is five cents to all South American places, while a two-cent rate prevails between this country and Great Britain and Ireland, Germany (by the direct and slower route), Canada, Mexico, Cuba and Panama.

Business scouts from the United States are now at work in various parts of Latin America trying to improve American trade so that the gaps caused by the war may be filled. These scouts cannot go everywhere, however, and can only cover the vast territory below the isthmus in a general way.

A business letter in Spanish or Portuguese, as the case may require, will make a pretty good scout in itself. Millions of these can be sent to South American merchants and manufacturers, making them acquainted with what we have to sell and buy. A mail campaign on a huge scale would be more readily undertaken by American business men if the postage rate was cut down to 40 per cent. of the present scale.

If Congress should decide by joint resolution to favor a reduction then it will be up to the South American countries to join with us by means of postal treaties. And if South America's need for us is as great as we believe, and as great as South Americans tell us it is, the cheapening of the letter rate at both ends will be accomplished quickly and will promote Pan-American good feeling.

A WAR PROVISIONAL.

We are indebted to W. T. Wilson for the first glimpse of a very interesting set of war provisionals. It consists of the entire set of India stamps from 3 pies to 1 rupee, surcharged in large capital letters "I. E. F.," for India Expeditionary Force.

The set is issued for the use of the Indian troops now engaged in the war on the continent of Europe. In connection with this set, Mr. Wilson writes:—

"Enclosed I send you for chronicle a set which I think you will find of exceptional interest. It consists of some special stamps which have been issued for use of the Indian Expeditionary Force (I. E. F.) now on the Continent of Europe. 1 rupee is the highest value. Apart from Gibraltar and British Post Offices in Turkey, the only other occasion when stamps of the British Empire have been used on the mainland of Europe was in the Crimean War."

SOME SAMOA WAR PROVISIONALS.

F. W. Reid advises us that German Samoa stamps have been overprinted "G. R. I.," with value in English money. Mr. Reid has seen the ½d on 3pf, ½d on 5pf, 1d on 10pf and 2½d on 20pf. Stamp collectors will certainly be interested in this bit of war news.

Mr. Reid also submits specimens of the new 6d kookaburra stamp and intimates that business in Australia is holding up wonderfully well.

STAMP BUSINESS FOR SALE

A PERFECTED ORGANIZATION

is the means of giving GOOD SERVICE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS, and an opportunity to buy a SUCCESSFUL GOING BUSINESS is now open, and best of all

THE PRICE IS REASONABLE

THE RIGHT PARTY with necessary CAPITAL has a chance to buy one of the best equipped and best organized STAMP BUSINESS in the UNITED STATES.

For obvious reasons the name and location are not given; enquire of our publishers

INCORPORATED NAME.

The above perfectly ordered business is incorporated with a good name, that can be readily transferred to the purchaser, and a going concern that comprises the following important departments:

AUCTION SALES.

The auction department of this concern which has held two hundred successful sales, is the most perfect in America—a fine constituency of liberal buyers and a sound concern that has always been prepared to advance liberally in cash up to any amount for stamps pending sale. A lucrative and well-organized auction business with such a record behind it, is a valuable asset in itself.

STOCK OF STAMPS.

A magnificent and well-rounded stock of stamps with the United States as a leader, but with every country from a to z liberally represented so that orders and want lists from the standard catalog can readily be filled. The stock will catalog over $200,000.

ALBUMS AND SUPPLIES.

A perfect line of stamp collectors' supplies, including all the best printed albums, philatelic literature, and absolutely the finest movable page albums in the country.

CATALOG AND PRICE LIST.

A hundred-page catalog and price list now ready for the season of 1914—a complete guide to stamp collecting, full valuable information, listing the company's specialties as well as packets and sets forming the most valuable adjunct to a going business. This catalog contains a complete list of the U. S. Postage Department, Revenue, Postage Due, and Newspaper stamps, with all minor varieties described, illustrated and priced.

HOUSE ORGAN.

A well-established monthly journal which is admittedly the leading individual house organ in America, with a substantial subscription list of 50c per year, is also a valuable auxiliary to this business.

The owners of the above business proposition, wish to sell it because of other larger and more important connections which have developed, as to make it desirable to give the other affairs their undivided attention.

As this is a going concern, doing a cash business of about $50,000.00 a year, they make this announcement through the publishers, in order not to interrupt the ordinary course of their affairs, which will be continued without interruption until the proper purchaser is found.

It is probable that well-informed stamp men will instantly recognize the busness proposition which is here offered for sale, and it is to be hoped that the attention of the right buyer will be attracted by this advertisement.

For those who do not feel sure enough to apply direct, the publishers offer their services and will supply the necessary information.

They take pleasure in testifying to the high personal character of the parties owning the business which is for sale and shall be glad to act as intermediary.

THE NEW INTERNAL REVENUE STAMPS.

By HOWARD C. BECK.

For five hundred and sixty-seven long weary days, the "bunch" on the "Hill" at the national capitol have kept up a continuous performance, not daring to get off the stage so long as the big chief at the other end of the avenue had any new parts to drill them in. But Saturday afternoon, October 24, the curtain was rung down, not even the redoubtable Mr. Henry of Texas with his cotton schemes, having the nerve to raise the point of no quorum which would have "busted" the agreement to adjourn. So impatient were the members to get back to their own bailliwicks that they even pushed the hands of the clock over the Speaker's and the Vice President's chairs ahead thirty-eight minutes to speed up the time; then the Speaker said, "God bless us every one," banged his gavel and the agony was over.

Almost the last act of what will probably long be known as "Wilson's Congress" was the passage of what is officially known as (Public—No. 217—63rd Congress, H. R. 18891) "An Act To Increase the Internal Revenue," and for other purposes, but what every one else calls "The War Tax Bill."

This is the fifth time since the beginning of the government that Congress has passed a law levying a stamp tax on documents. Away back in the early days of the republic when the government was struggling to maintain itself and care for its obligations abroad, to wit, on the 6th day of July, 1797, President Washington approved "An Act laying duties on Stamped Vellum, Parchment and Paper." This law, the operations of which, until lately have been so little known to philatelists, remained in effect only until May 1st, 1801.

The war of 1812 brought on heavy expenditures and Congress was forced to replenish the revenue through the medium of a stamp tax levied under an act approved August 2nd, 1813. The last section of this act provided that it should continue in effect for "one year after the termination of the war and no longer," but Congress evidently found it necessary to extend the time (as it may have to do in the present case) for the act remained in effect several years after the close of the war.

It was a long interval to 1862 when a terrific internal strife forced Congress to resort to every means within its power to provide revenue to carry on the contest with the South. For ten years nearly every commercial transaction and for twenty years every box of pills and matches contributed its mite and it was not until 1883 that the last of these taxes were repealed.

The Spanish War tax of 1898 is still fresh in the memories of nearly all of us with its odd values and numerous varieties of (or lack of) perforation. This tax lasted only three years, being repealed in the spring of 1901.

Now comes another war, not our own, but far across the sea. A hundred years ago we should have been little if any effected by such a struggle, but so complex and so world wide has become our commerce in this twentieth century, that even a rain storm in Argentina or sunshine in Russia sends prices up and down the ladder. With such a cataclysm as has struck Europe and six million able bodied men striving to their utmost to send their adversaries into eternity, their export commerce becomes almost a nullity. From August 1st to October 22nd, 1913, our receipts from customs duties were $80,598,363.26; for the same period this year they were $48,458,845.77, a drop of over 40%. No wonder the chaps who hold Uncle Sam's purse strings got scared. They had carried out the Baltimore platform and revised the tariff downward, and made up the revenue deficiency, they thought, by soaking the big fellows with an income tax. But Gabriel Prinzip's bullet knocked their revenue estimates into a cocked hat, so now we have, after much talk and much vituperation and fear and trembling as to what the "folks back home" will say, a war tax.

Through the courtesy of Director Ralph, I have seen the proofs of the new stamps, for the Bureau saw what was coming and got busy before the law passed, so as not to be caught napping as they were in 1898, when they were forced to surcharge 125 million postage stamps for temporary use as revenue stamps.

to our collections, evenly divided between documentary and proprietary and it is almost certain that there will be added to these eight or ten more varieties for bottled wines and champagnes. At present it is contemplated using the proprietary stamps for the wine tax, but section 2 (the wine section) of the act calls for "special stamps denoting the tax herein imposed" and already the treasury officials are thinking that a special wine set will be necessary to comply with the law.

There are some novel features about the new stamps. The proprietaries are all of the same color, black, while the cents values of the documentaries are all red. The dollar values of the documentaries below $100 are of the same colors as the corresponding cents values in the postage stamps, viz., $1 is in green, $2 is in red, $3 is in purple, etc. Similarly the $100 is green, the $500 blue and the $1000 orange.

The designs of the proprietaries and cents values of the documentaries are severely plain and in effect something like the postage dues. They are the same size as the postage stamps, except that the proprietaries are oblong rectangular in shape. Large colorless numerals of value occupy the centre of a banded circle; in the band are the words "United States Internal Revenue" and in the proprietaries the additional words "Series of 1914." The latter also have the word "Proprietary" at the top and "Cent" (or cents) at the bottom. Fine parallel lines form the ground work of the inside of the circle, the remainder of the design being filled with geometric lathe work. The cents values of the documentaries have the word "Documentary" in a curved line immediately over the top of the circle and in a tablet at the bottom are the words "Series of 1914" and the value in words.

The $1 to $50 documentary, which are also of uniform design are splendid specimens of the engraver's art. The design consists of a framed liberty head facing to the right; at the top are the words "Documentary" and "United States Internal Revenue" and at the bottom the denomination, as "50 Dollars," the numerals being in the centre and above the word dollars. The size of this series is 75/100 by 1 10/100 inches.

The three high values, $100, $500 and $1000, are very like the same denominations of the 1898 series, except that they are only printed in one color and the heads are altered. The heads are as follows:—$100 Washington, (Stuart portrait), $500 Hamilton, profile to right and $1,000 Madison three-quarters to the left. The size of these stamps is 1⅛ by 1⅝ inches.

The denominations and colors of the complete series are as follows:—

Proprietaries: ⅛, ¼, ⅜, ½, ⅝, 1c, 1¼, 1½, 1⅞, 2, 2½, 3, 3⅛, 3¾, 4, 4⅜, 5, 6, 8, 10 and 20c. Color, black; design approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue October 10th.

Documentary: ½, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 10, 25, 40, 50 and 80c. Color, red; design approved October 22nd. $1 green, $2 red, $3 purple, $5 blue, $10 orange and $30 vermilion. Design approved October 10th. $50 lavender, design approved October 14th. $100 green, $500 blue, $1,000 orange, design approved October 24th.

The cents values of both series will be printed in sheets of 400, the $1 in sheets of 300, the $2 to $50 in sheets of 200 and the three high values in sheets of 16. I understand that all will be perforated the same as are the postage stamps.

I should advise collectors to supply themselves with specimens of the proprietary set as soon as they are available. It is likely that the values available for the wine tax will be on sale in a few days, as some of them are already printed and this tax went into effect the day after the bill was signed, October 22nd. I have pointed out the likelihood of a special wine set, and if such is prepared, there will be no call for several of the proprietary values. I do not believe we need concern ourselves much about getting the $1,000 documentary and I think there is considerable doubt whether many of them will be used. About the only thing it could be used on would be a promissory note for five million dollars, or on a deed where the value of the interest conveyed, exclusive of any mortgage or other encumbrance, was $1,000,000, and I fancy there won't be many transactions like that. In the Spanish War, most of the high values went on big railroad or other mortgages, but these are all exempt from the new tax and if a person gives a deed in which the consideration is given as $10,000 and takes back a mortgage for $4,000, $6,000 is all that would be subject to the tax.

Congress has fixed the date for the tax to be discontinued as January 1st, 1916. Perhaps it will be. It all depends on the war and partly on how much of a holler the people put up who have to buy the stamps (outside of philatelists). Meanwhile the Republicans are whooping her up for all they are worth as to how unnecessary the tax is and that if the people will only put them back on the job they will do business. It looks as though Uncle Joe and Nick Longworth and some of the other good old stalwarts will get back on the pay roll, but the chances are pretty certain that the distinguished Princetonian will still have a working majority. Anyhow, let us hope that the "purely psychological" period through which we have been passing is about over.

LESS THAN SINGLE COLUMN FORM.

Advertisers will please note that we are compelled to charge extra for advertisements set in less than single column form, single column measure. The F. M. Mason advertisement in last week's issue illustrates our idea. Ordinarily a quarter page will cost $15.00, but in the form shown, the price will be $17.00. The difference in price goes to the printer for extra composition. Advertisers will kindly remember this.

Chemical Papers.

Various experiments with papers in which some sensitive chemical had been incorporated, were made during the period in which the Continental stamps were being printed and some of these stamps have been found on the "safety" papers. They are known on yellow-brown and violet colored papers although these colors may be the result of chemical action. The stamps on the violet colored paper are nothing more than experimental essays and those on the brown papers deserve about the same status. The violet papers are either laid or wove. Paper men are familiar with a flood of patents of this kind, issued from 1865 to 1885. Some of these papers were so sensitive that the action of "impure" air, containing low percentages of harmless gases would completely alter their color and thus destroy their usefulness. One "historian" mentions a consignment of this paper which changed color while it was being used in the press room of a well known printing company.

Fletcher or "Cogwheel" Punch.

FLETCHER PATENT
"COGWHEEL PUNCH"
No. 91,108 - JUNE 8, 1869.

The one cent and three cent stamps of the Continental series received extensive treatment at the hands of another inventor of the period. The patent dated June 8, 1869, issued to C. A. Fletcher, procures for that gentleman the proceeds resulting from the use of a circular series of eight "U" shaped punches as a means of preventing the second use of the postage stamps to which his patent had been applied. The one cent stamp and the three cent stamp issued by the Continental Bank Note Co., were used as a basis of experiment. Ten thousand of these stamps were made and sold at the Washington post office in 1877. The invention had practically no merit and it met a deserved fate after having afforded some of the stamp dealers of that period another opportunity for a corner in "rarities."

The Grills.

Some of the stamps printed by the National Bank Note Co. were grilled in 1870 and 1871. That company printed about 1,200,000,000 3c stamps and of these about 2% or 2,500,000 were grilled. The work on the grills on these stamps is in the nature of reluctant and perfunctory compliance with the stipulated terms of a contract rather than a workmanlike attempt at obtaining the effect indicated by the terms of the specifications.

The grill was tentatively supposed to break the paper fibres over an area of about one-fourth of the stamp, instead of which the characteristic grill often consists of a few irregular indentations of practically no value for the purpose intended, showing, quite often, but ten or fifteen raised points out of a total which should have consisted of from 120 to 208.

In some specimens the only evidence of a grill is a few minute raised points. The ordinary specimen usually shows comparatively faint traces of the grilling over about one fourth of the intended area. The points are generally less distinct in the outer rows than in the "interior" of the grill. In one grilled block of four in my collection the left edges of the grills are well defined, the remaining sections fading into invisibility at the right. In another large block, in mint condition, the only evidence of the grill is a faintly impressed, solid line about .25" long in relatively the same position on each of twelve stamps. Some of the remaining stamps in the same block show no trace of the grill while on four more copies in the same block the grill stands out like those on some of the clear issues of 1867. Pairs exist in which one stamp shows the grill and the other does not.

The grill with 11x13 rows of points is the one most often seen although this size may easily be mistaken for the ones with 10x14 or 11x14 points. The following sizes are recorded by Luff. (Size in points):

10 x 13
11 x 11
11 x 13
12 x 14
13 x 15
13 x 16

In Goodwin's "Specialized United States" the following grills are listed:

Size in Millimeters.	Size in "Points."
8 x 10	10 x 12
8 x 10½	10 x 13
8½ x 9	11 x 11
8½ x 9½	11 x 12
8½ x 10½	11 x 13
8½ x 11½	11 x 14
8½ x 12½	11 x 16
10 x 12	13 x 15
10 x 12½	13 x 16
11 x 12½	14 x 16

Future observations, made with the assistance of a healthy imagination and inaccurate instruments, will no doubt increase this list to some slight degree but we must admit that the field is somewhat limited.

The points on these grills are spaced 32 per inch so that the above points may be read correctly and interchangeably as "thirty-seconds of an inch."

Stevenson, in the Collectors' Journal, has elaborated upon the subject of grills and has advanced several new ideas, among which he states his belief in the theory that the grill roller was subjected to one or more "trimmings" which produced grills of various character. A review of the possible varieties which might be produced by one unaltered roller under other variable conditions, and a consideration of the spirit in which the National Bank Note Company executed their work leads me to doubt that they indulged in any trimming (except where the Government was concerned) or other superfluous refinements tending to improve the output wherever these refinements involved an expenditure of time or money.

WHY NOT A PHILATELIC LIBRARY?

We are doing our best to encourage the ownership of books devoted to stamps. With this in mind are placing on the market from time to time, helps that are reasonable in price and really necessary to the student of stamps.

A nice little library of stamp books covering the stamps one is interested in will be a splendid asset to collecting interest and enthusiasm.

We have ambitious plans for the future and shall make definite and valuable contributions to philatelic book lore as the occasion offers.

In the meantime, set aside a little corner in the desk or library where you can begin a philatelic library. It will be a source of pleasure and satisfaction.

This week, Mr. Wiley's book.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Closed Issue—We learn that postmasters have been instructed to return to Washington, all the postal savings stamps and envelopes in their offices; and that further, the recall is made anticipating the destruction of the stamps at Washington. In returning the stamps, the postmasters are obliged to file a declaration as to whether or not they have disposed of any of the stamps by sale or gift, we are told.

The Reason—It looks as though the prospective retirement of the official postal savings stamps and envelopes is a direct consequence of the activity of collectors in diverting the stamps into channels running contrary to the ideas of the department. If we read aright, the action has been instigated by flagrant conditions that recently have come to the attention of the authorities. We suspect that some of the unused stamps have come into the possession of collectors and it is understood that postmasters, openly and secretly, have been importuned to pass out the unused stamps, which purely are the property of the government. It is believed that the question of the stamps in used condition has been discussed, and while the department has tolerated the distribution of these specimens, yet it has not been wholly satisfied to find that they are the subject of barter and trade, so to say. We assume that there are further reasons for the act of the department in calling in the stamps and perhaps they will be made public, but it is plain that collectors themselves are to be accounted responsible for the coup.

Not Lithographed—The following correction has been made by Mr. George W. Linn: "On page 371 of the WEEKLY of October 24th, 1914, the statement is made that the new Sonora stamps are lithographed. This information is incorrect as the stamps are typographed and printed from type-set forms as the early issues of Sonora were."

* * *

Old Postal Documents—From Mr. J. B. Childs, Champaign, Illinois, we have received the following letter: "I have the impression that you are interested in the postal history of the United States and the documents relating thereto; and you have mentioned several interesting pamphlets, etc., on the subject in the WEEKLY. The document described might be of some value. 38th Congress, 2nd Session, Ex. Doc., No. 27, House of Representatives, Cancelling and Marking Stamp. (15 pp.) 1865. Mr. Dennison was the postmaster named. In 1863, a patent was granted to M. P. Norton of Troy, N. Y., upon a canceling stamp. As first contemplated, it had sharp projections which would damage the envelope in obliterating the stamp. Cork was substituted in the improved article which was patented, also. This stamp was first tried out in New York City. On page 5, a postal document of 23, July, 1860, prohibiting certain types of cancellations is mentioned. On page 12, Edmund Hoole of Brooklyn, N. Y. deposed that he has been engaged in the making of post office marking and rating stamps for about twenty-five years, which would date back to 1840. He had done this under contract with the department for the past fourteen years (1851). Just at that time, Fairbanks and Company of New York held the contract. If any of the records of these firms exist, they would be worth while going over." Mr. Childs adds that according to the Postal Guide of 1914, cancelling must be done with black ink furnished by the department, but that he has heard recently of colored cancellations. We do not happen to have a colored cancellation in mind just at present, but so long as pen cancellations come so often as they do in this year of grace, it is no tax on credulity to believe that there are many colored cancellations to be found.

Reminiscent—Mr. Child's document is a very interesting one, not alone because of its reference to a patent that does not seem to be included in lists of patents of the kind as we remember them, but also as a reflection of a phase of our postal history that is typical of the old days at Washington. We mentioned once that one of the witnesses called upon to testify at the trial of the Lincoln assassinators was a man who was in Washington because of his interest in a stamp canceling proposition; and at one time, so industrious were inventors in planning devices for stamp protection against re-use, that the national capitol was invaded by a small army of partisans and lobbyists for this or that novelty of the kind. About 1860, a remarkable wave of interest was shown in efforts to foil those who were cheating the government by "washing" and re-using, and many an ingenious mind was bent on defeating the machinations of this gentry and reaping fame and fortune in consequence. Some of the promoters were picturesque characters and loaned color, we doubt not, to the life of Washington fifty or more years ago.

Shut Off—The notice comes that a telegram dated October 26th from the post office department of Mexico was sent to the office of the third assistant postmaster general at Washington, "announcing the temporary suspension of that country of money order business with the United States." Postmasters are notified accordingly and until further notice they are to decline to issue orders on Mexican offices or to pay orders issued in that country after October 26th, 1914. No comment is made by the authorities on this extraordinary measure. A few days before, the following order had been issued: "Heretofore, under agreement with Germany, international money orders for payment in Apia, Samoa, have been issued in the United States as 'German' orders and certified through exchange offices at San Francisco, Honolulu, and Pago Pago, Tutuila (American Samoa). Reliable information having been received recently of the occupation of Apia by British forces, postmasters at international offices are hereby directed to decline to issue orders on Apia until otherwise instructed."

Revenue Legislation—From Mr. W. E. Marsh, we have received the conference report of the House of Representatives on the revenue bill, dated October 21st, as well as a copy of the bill referred to the committee on ways and means in the House with the amendments of the Senate, dated October 19th. As readers of the newspapers know, there have been changes made in the bill as originally reported by the House and notices of the amendments that were made have been given wide publicity. The taxation period is to begin with December first instead of November first.

Foreign Mail—Our readers have been submitting to us censored letters from the countries at war and we return our thanks for the privilege of examining these covers in so great a variety. The letters are very interesting with their different markings and are well worth carefully preserving.

THE STAMPS OF WURTEMBERG.

By B. W. H. POOLE.

THE SECOND ISSUE.

Although it is obvious that the design of Wurtemberg's first stamps was inspired by the numeral series for Baden, it was not long before more original ideas prevailed and an entirely new series of stamps was issued. The new design shows the Arms of the kingdom, with supporters and motto, embossed in colorless relief on a ground work of color covered with white horizontal loops. This is contained within a rectangular frame, measuring 22½ mm. square, which is inscribed "FREIMARKE" at the top and with the value on each of the other three sides. The inscriptions are all in Roman capitals and the design is completed by the addition of small six-rayed stars in each of the angles. An excellent description of the Arms design appeared in Gibbons' Stamp Weekly for September 5th, 1908, which I cannot do better than reproduce:—

In 1817, King William of Wurtemberg simplified the Arms of the kingdom, the proper arms of the royal house having become too complicated through additions at various times. The arms now consist of an oval shield divided into two parts or fields, surrounded by a wreath of oak leaves, in gold, surmounted by a gold helmet bearing a royal crown.

The two fields are:—

On the right, for Wurtemberg, three stag's antlers, in black, placed one upon the other, on a golden field; the upper antlers having each four points, the lower one but three. These are the original arms of the counts of Wurtemberg, and have reference to their office of Hereditary Grand Huntsman.

On the left, for Swabia, three black lions, one above the other, also on a golden field; the lions have their tongues hanging out of their mouths, and their right paws are raised. These are the three lions of Hohenstauffen, and were only added to the arms of Wurtemberg in 1806 by King Frederick, in memory of the famous family of Hohenstauffen, which, in former times occupied the country which now forms Wurtemberg.

The supporters of the shield are, on the right, a black lion bearing a golden crown; and on the left, a golden stag. The proper colors for the ribbon bearing the motto are purple with a black reverse, and the motto itself, in gold letters, reads "Furchtloss und treu," i. e. "Fearless and true."

The design is the same for all denominations, varying only in the designation of value. The dies were engraved and the electrotypes made at the Mint in Stuttgart. The printing form for each value consisted of sixty electrotypes, arranged in ten rows of six, which were separated as a rule by a space of only ¾ mm.

The paper varies considerably in thickness and that at first employed contains orange colored silk threads similar to the "Dickinson" paper, found in connection with some of the early British stamps. These silk threads were so placed that they traversed the stamps in a horizontal direction, one thread being apportioned to each horizontal row of stamps. This paper was apparently obtained from Bavaria.

The values in this new series corresponded exactly to those previously in use, the set being issued on Sept. 22nd, 1857, according to Mr. Westoby, Mr. Ehrenbach, and other writers on the subject. In the Monthly Journal some few years ago a copy of the 9kr was reported with cancellation dated Dec. 30th, 1856, and on the strength of this Gibbons' catalogue assigns the date December, 1856, to the whole series. This seems particularly slender evidence on which to antedate the whole issue by some nine months for the cancellation might easily have been an error for 1857. We should like to hear of other early dated specimens before accepting 1856 as the correct date of issue.

Most of the stamps of this set vary in shade but these variations are not very striking being, as a rule, confined to pale and deep tints.

Reference List.

Sept., 1857 (?). Silk thread paper. Imperf.
6. 1kr brown, Scott's No. 7, 8 or 8a.
7. 3kr yellow, Scott's No. 9 or 9a.
8. 6kr green, Scott's No. 10 or 10a.
9. 9kr rose, Scott's No. 11 or 11a.
10. 18kr blue, Scott's No. 12 or 12a.

THE THIRD ISSUE.

If we accept the date of September, 1857, as correct for the second issue the use of the silk-thread paper lasted but a very short time for in June, 1858, the stamps began to appear on white-wove machine made paper, without threads. This paper is usually fairly thick but, like that of the preceding issue, it varies in texture. The sheets contained sixty stamps as before but the electrotypes were re-arranged so that the spaces between them varied from 1½ mm. to 1¼ mm.

An interesting variety of the 1kr of this issue is described in the Monthly Journal for September, 1904, viz:—"Mr. Giwelb has shown our publishers a copy of the 1 kreuzer with a clear impression on the back reading the right way. Probably a sheet that was defective in some part of the impression was passed through the press again, for the sake of economy, but it is not the silk thread paper. The specimen is postmarked Stuttgart, 1 Jun 1867."

The stamps of this issue are almost exactly like the corresponding stamps on the silk thread paper and variations in shade are of little consequence with the exception of the 1kr. This value exists in two very striking shades of brown one being yellowish and the other almost a black-brown.

Reference List.

1858. Without silk threads. Imperf.
11. 1kr brown, Scott's No. 13 or 14.
12. 3kr yellow, Scott's No. 15 or 15a.
13. 6kr green, Scott's No. 16 or 16a.
14. 9kr rose, Scott's No. 17 or 17a.
15. 18kr blue, Scott's No. 18 or 18a.

Advertising Chat—No. II.

What did you think of it?

We call it one of the best numbers of the WEEKLY we have issued during the year. Of course we refer to the paper issued last Saturday. It was rich in literary merit and in advertising there were bargains galore. All in all it certainly was some paper.

Those half and quarter pages tell a magnificent story as to the merits of our columns from a publicity viewpoint. Of course some dealers don't need to advertise, but our 7800 subscribers are buyers and if you are after business the WEEKLY can furnish it.

Remember, $15 for 144 lines.

THE FOURTH ISSUE.

In describing the stamps of Baden I mentioned that in July, 1859, a perforation machine was ordered from Vienna on the joint account of the postal administrations of Baden and Wurtemberg and this was set up at Carlsruhe. This machine was of the harrow type and was capable of perforating an entire sheet of 100 stamps at one operation, its gauge being 13½. Although the machine was primarily intended for use on sheets of 100 stamps those of Wurtemberg remained the same as before, i. e. sixty impressions in ten rows of six. Some of the perforated values began to be circulated in November, 1859. The paper, color, and arrangement of the clichés remained as before.

Reference List.

1859-60. Thick paper. Perf. 13½.
16. 1kr brown,Scott's No. 19.
17. 3kr yellow, Scott's No. 20 or 20a.
18. 6kr green, Scott's No. 21.
19. 9kr rose, Scott's No. 22.

THE FIFTH ISSUE.

The next change, though it affected all the values, was a somewhat minor one. It was found that the paper was a little too thick for easy working in the perforating machine and, beginning with February, 1861, a much thinner paper was employed. The 1c of this series exists in a number of distinct shades ranging from a palish brown to an almost black-brown. The 3kr and 18kr differ in tint a little, while the 9kr is found in two colors. The original shade was rose, similar to that of the preceding issues, but early in 1862 the color was changed to a dull purple or claret.

Imperforate specimens are known of all values but it is considered doubtful that any were ever issued for use in this condition though postally used specimens are known. Mr. Westoby ascribes the existence of these imperforate varieties to "the difficulty attendant on two administrations using the same perforating machine."

Reference List.

1861. Thin paper. Perf. 13½.
20. 1kr brown, Scott's No. 23 or 24.
21. 3kr yellow, Scott's No. 25 or 25a.
22. 6kr green, Scott's No. 26.
23. 9kr rose, Scott's No. 27.
24. 9kr purple, Scott's No. 28.
25. 18kr blue, Scott's No. 29 or 29a.

THE SIXTH ISSUE.

During the second quarter of 1862 it became necessary to overhaul the perforating machine and it was provided with a new set of punches having a gauge of ten instead of 13½ as before. Stamps with the new perforation began to appear about June, 1862, and all except the 18kr were issued by the end of the year. The 18kr in blue does not exist with the 10 perforation as plenty of the 13½ perforation remained in stock and by the time more were required the color was changed. The 9kr is known in carmine as well as the more usual purple. These were probably due to one or more imperforate sheets of the preceding issue having been found and perforated after the gauge of the machine had been changed.

Reference List.

1862. Type as before but perf. 10.
26. 1kr brown, Scott's No. 30.
27. 3kr yellow, Scott's No. 31 or 31a.
28. 6kr green, Scott's No. 32.
29. 9kr purple, Scott's No. 33.

THE SEVENTH ISSUE.

The German-Austrian Postal Union had adopted a regulation under which all the members of the Union agreed to use the same colors for their 3, 6, and 9 kreuzer stamps. An order of the Minister of Finance of Wurtemberg, dated September 12th, 1862, directed, therefore, that to conform with this regulation the stamps would for the future be printed in green for the 1 kreuzer, in rose for the 3 kreuzer, in blue for the 6 kreuzer, in brown for the 9 kreuzer, and in orange for the 18 kreuzer. The issue in the altered colors was to have taken place on October 1st, 1862, but as there were large stocks of all values in the old colors still on hand it was decided to use these up first. Consequently the new varieties appeared at various times as follows:—the 1 kreuzer in February, 1863; the 3 and 9 kreuzer in June, 1863; and the 6 and 18 kreuzer in June, 1864. The paper and perforation were as before. All values except the 18kr exist in a number of different shades. Mr. Ehrenbach mentions a minor variety of the 3 kreuzer which is probably worth looking for, viz:—has a prominent flaw in the upper right corner—a large red spot on a ground of white instead of the usual white star on a colored ground.

Reference List.

1863-64. New colors. Perf. 10.
30. 1kr green, Scott's No. 34, 34a or 35.
31. 3kr rose, Scott's No. 36 or 36a.
32. 6kr blue, Scott's No. 37 or 37a.
33. 9kr brown, Scott's No. 38, 39 or 39a.
34. 18kr orange, Scott's No. 40.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—L. R. Sours reports having received the current 10c orange stamp perforated 10. This came from a little office in Montana. Furthermore, Frank L. Knowlton shows several of the same denomination and perforation on a package from Washington, D. C. Inquiry in that city developed the fact that dealers there knew nothing of the new perforation. One correspondent volunteered the opinion that the stamps were printed on the new rotary press. It was understood that the stamps printed on the new press had no straight edges, and one of those submitted by Mr. Knowlton has a straight edge on the left. Little question for today: Are all denominations to have the new perforation?

Gustave Larson sends us a changeling, the current 1c green stamp being changed into a perfect blue, an even more pronounced transformation than that often found in the 1900 ½d of Great Britain.

The Economist Stamp Co. reports having received the 2c and 6c perforated 10 all around and the 2c perforated 10, in coil from new process printing, 500 in a strip.

Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg has also shown us the 2c value, perforated 10.

AUSTRALIA.—We are also indebted to H. R. Stiles for information regarding the new 6d stamp, as chronicled last week.

AUSTRIA.—The war necessitated several new issues of postal cards, notably for the Red Cross Society and for the military service. Mr. Schachne has shown us the following varieties.

Post Cards.

5h, light green on dark cream, with reply card, for the Red Cross.
No value, Military card, black on reddish brown.
No value, Military card, black on dark rose.
No value, Military card, for Croatia, black on dark rose.
2f, Red Cross Card, for Croatia, red and dark blue on white.

BRITISH SOLOMON ISLANDS.—The Australian Stamp Journal says that all stamps of the canoe type remaining over have been destroyed.

CAMEROONS.—It may seem like belated news, but Ewen's Weekly notes the issue of the 20pf value on watermarked paper.

CYPRUS.—According to The Colonial Journal, the 9pi, 18pi and 45pi King George design, have now been issued.

FALKLAND ISLANDS.—According to The Colonial Journal, the color of the 5sh stamp has been changed to purple, another change from the Colonial color scheme.

Adhesive.

5sh purple.

FRANCE.—We are also indebted to Frank M. Mason for specimens of both of the Red Cross stamps recently reported.

HUNGARY.—Two new cards have just been issued for this country, according to Mr. Schachne.

Post Cards.

5f, light green on buff, double card, for the Red Cross.
No value, Military Postal Card, black on dark rose.

INDIA.—Offices in Europe.—Ewen's Weekly notes that all denominations of Indian stamps from ¼a to 1r have been overprinted "I. E. F." for use by the Indian Expeditionary Force now on the Continent. In writing to Ewen's Weekly, W. T. Wilson says:

"These are a unique issue as far as the Continent of Europe is concerned. Apart from Gibraltar and British Post Offices in Turkey (now closed) the only other occasion when stamps of the British Empire have been used, on the mainland of Europe, was in the Crimean War (ordinary British stamps which can only be identified by the special cancellations used).

MEXICO.—Apparently, it is a matter of indifference to the postal authorities of the present Mexican Government as to what stamps are used and in what way they are combined. Hermann Focke sends us no less than four different forms of the "Gobierno Constitucionalista" overprint. In combination these have paid postage in connection, not only with the Denver issue, but also with the Federal stamps, without any stamps at all. Evidently, the "$" overprint is gradually superseding the others where the Mexico City interest is strong. Mr. Focke sends us, however, the 1p commemorative stamp with the carefully printed overprint in two lines and in large type, but without the "$" mark. He also sends a new form used in Leon, at least it has not previously been brought to our attention. "Gob. Const." is handstamped in two lines reading downward diagonally. The type is large, and obviously the position on the overprint might be varied at will. From Zacatecas comes a form having "Gobierno Constitucionalista" in a circle, the two words being separated by stars. In the center are two letters, the last being "M" and the other not readable. Mr. Focke says that "the Denver set is not good for postage, but is affixed as a surtax, or rakeoff for the brave conquerors of the country. All letters bearing only Denver stamps are subject to postage here, as is borne out by many covers in my possession." This may be true in New York, but other offices have not been as careful, and covers are found where they have slipped through, thus acquiring a fictitious value.

The California Stamp Co. has shown us another value in the new Sonora set, similar to the 1c and 5c already chronicled. The background is in blue and the seal in brown orange.

Adhesive.

2c black, brown orange and blue.

MONACO.—Ewen's Weekly (619 P 786) reports that the current Monaco 10c value has been overprinted Red Cross and 5c. The surcharge is the same as adopted for the first French Red Cross stamp recently chronicled. The extra 5c will be given to the funds of the Red Cross Society.

Provisional Adhesive.

10c+5c red on red.

NICARAGUA.—Though announced some time since, the new series is appearing slowly. The 4c and 6c values have just been shown us by Hermann Focke, both being in the Cathedral type.

Adhesives.

4c vermilion.
6c black brown.

NYASALAND PROTECTORATE.—J. A. Galbraith has shown us the 3d on all yellow paper, as recently noted.

TOGOLAND.—Ewen's Weekly says that recent letters received in England from Togoland have been franked with Gold Coast stamps.

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—Frank M. Mason sends a copy of the current 1d stamp, evidently taken from a coil. The stamps were rolled vertically, as they are imperforate vertically and perforated at top and bottom.

ZANZIBAR.—The Colonial Journal states the 1, 3 and 6 cents are now printed on paper watremarked Crown CA. Except ing for these three values the call for the higher denominations for postal use is comparatively small, and as supplies for this Protectorate are generally heavy, the stock printed on paper with watermark multiple rosettes is likely to last a considerable period yet.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

In a very modest and becoming dress of gray appears the 1915 Standard Catalog of Postage Stamps from Whitfield King & Co., Ipswich, England. The price is 50c. In their preface to the edition the firm states that the total number of stamps issued to date as listed is 27,445. Of these 7,965 are apportioned to the British Empire, while Europe has issued 5,754, Asia 5,379, Africa 6,688, America 5,694, West Indies 2,097 and Oceania 1,833. A more strict alphabetical order of stamp issuing countries is observed in the new work. "White backs" are not in many instances priced. The book is well printed and well worth the price asked.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR THE AMATEUR BUYER.

BUYING.

This is the hardest feature of the stamp business, in the writer's opinion. In the first place, the small dealer is apt to over-stock or load up with a lot of junk that is practically impossible to dispose of; and much care is needed to prevent this. Secondly, it is far harder to buy desirable stamps than to sell them. Thirdly, buying the material is half the transaction, and costs must be watched very closely to prevent the profit from slipping away. I am firmly convinced that the dealer must use more "head-work" in buying than in selling, because poor stock is hard to turn, and good stock will sell itself in many instances. I believe that poor buying has wrecked more stamp dealers than "hard times." In the first place, stamp dealers rarely feel "hard times." At the present time the country is suffering a depression due to the European situation, yet the stamp dealers report from the various sections that they are finding business good.

As soon as a new dealer enters the market for stock, he is eagerly beset by wholesale houses everywhere, good, bad, and indifferent. Unfortunately for his purse, the new dealer will find that the undesirable dealers make considerably more effort than the better concerns to secure his money. He is offered large stocks of packets, collections (usually the made-to-order kind), and various wholesale items consisting of stamps that are a "drug on the market." Until he gets experience, he is certain to take in a few of these so-called bargain offers, and will find that many of them are with him to stay. If he has bought too many, he is liable to retire from the business about as soon as he entered it, minus his capital, and a "small dealer's stock" will be offered in a coming auction sale to trap some other victim.

In buying stock, the dealer should see his market for every item he buys, and if doubtful, he should consider same carefully before purchasing. "Feeling around" at first will often save severe losses. Of course, I do not mean to imply that the dealer should pass up any genuine bargains, but merely wish to caution him to be sure that they are bargains before buying. Many lots that appear excellent on the face, will turn out badly. There is really no fixed rule for buying stock. Many lots are cheap at half or three-quarters catalogue, and more are expensive at a tenth or a fifth.

We will, for convenience sake, consider that our new dealer has decided to carry a general line, but to specialize in the United States, which is, by the way, probably the most staple "specialty" in America. If he buys at first a large stock collection, as made up by the wholesale houses, he will find that he has practically every speculative stamp to be had, and practically no good United States. These former are to be had in great quantities at a little money, while the later, in most instances, cannot be secured in quantity, even for a great deal of money. As a result of his purchase, he will find that he has to sacrifice many of the stamps in order to dispose of them, and that he has to turn down orders for his United States, by doing which, he loses his customers and his reputation as a United States specialist. Of course, when he decides to specialize, he will try to get in touch with as many customers as possible interested in his line.

Had he purchased instead a good United States collection, made up by a collector, and a smaller foreign collection, also made up by a collector, he would probably have more success in catering to the wants of his clients, as more staple stamps would be included, and fewer of the speculative.

As a collector, and practically every dealer collects before dealing (and we will assume that our "example" has), our dealer learned which stamps were hard to get, and which were common. It is the hard-to-get stamp that is sought after. Therefore, it is that stamp that the dealer should stock. For instance, in stocking twentieth century America, I know that the 12c and 14c Chile, the 4c Peru and Uruguay, and 8c Bolivia, etc., are the scarce values, as also are the high values. Therefore, when any of these are offered me, I consider the cost compared to my selling price, the condition, and if satisfactory, I buy them. I am safe in buying quite a quantity of these values. However, if I lay in a stock of the 10c Chile, 5c Argentine, 5c Bolivia, etc., I will find that I have a supply of stamps that every collector has, and as a result, I am liable to keep them, or be compelled to sacrifice them by making them up into packets. In buying single items, consider well whether the stamp is a scarce value, or not.

A great deal depends on the line the dealer decides to carry. If he intends to supply the boy collector through the medium of cheap approvals, let him seek large, showy stamps, cataloguing from 2c to 10c, seldom higher. In order to handle these at a profit, he should pay about one-fifth of catalogue, never higher, as it is necessary to sell them at 50% discount. If a greater discount is to be allowed, the stock should be purchased at a lower rate. At first sight, to buy a stamp at a fifth of catalogue, and to sell it at a half, appears to leave an enormous rate of profit for the dealer. However, by the time the dealer has considered his labor, advertising, postage, time, and also the ten per cent. he will lose by theft (my experience for two seasons in this line shows a loss of one lot in every ten), there is not a whole lot left for his profit. Therefore, it is necessary that he buy at a fifth or less. Speculative stamps often sell well through this medium, and when purchased at a low rate, cannot cause a very heavy loss. Until the dealer "finds himself" in the business, he should be content with twenty-five or at the most fifty copies of a stamp. Buying in small quantities will insure him a larger variety and less aptitude of loss, should any particular item turn out badly. Most of this sort of stock can be purchased from the large wholesale houses advertising in the WEEKLY. Many of these dealers issue attractive price lists, and some few do an approval business on a wholesale basis. This last is advantageous for the small dealer inasmuch as it allows him the opportunity of viewing his stock before purchasing.

Purchasing through auction sales is a popular means of obtaining stock, but like all other sources, many ways are clear for the amateur to run onto the rocks. The more reliable firms are quite particular as to description, and until the dealer is experienced, he should confine his purchases to them. The question will arise as to how to decide whether or not a firm is reliable, and that is one that cannot be answered through these columns, of course. Under present day competition, the auction houses have been compelled to give the buyer a fair description and to refund the money if unsatisfactory. Formerly, many ways were left clear in the terms of sale whereby the dealer could foist his undesirables on the unsuspecting public and leave no chance for recourse. As the field has enlarged, however, every dealer recognizes competition and knowing that his "business life" would be short and stormy if he did otherwise, he has discarded any little tricks and sells the stamps for what they are. There was more trouble formerly than of late.

In buying at auction, remember that the collector will usually go for the single lots, and accordingly they will bring higher prices than the large assorted lots, containing too many duplicates for the collector. After the dealer has entered his bids on the lots he really wants, it is a good plan to place a few "flyers" on some of the other lots, with the possibility that the others will overlook them. Many desirable purchases are made in this way, as certain lots are always overlooked in a catalogue. The writer recently purchased a beautiful collection of a South American country, including recent issues, at less than face value, and at a large discount from catalogue. This lot was included in the wholesale section, and offered seventy varieties, all unused, and rated as perfection. A "flyer" on this lot resulted in the purchase of the lot at a price which enabled me to double my money easily.

Lots described as perfection, fine, very fine, good, very good, are worthy of more consideration than those listed as fair, very fair, slightly defective, etc. Also, the rule seems to be in auction catalogues that when a stamp or lot is fine, the dealer will mention it. If no description is given, it may or may not be fine, usually not. Such a lot may be considered in good condition, however, as no statement to the effect that it is defective is made. Any lot so listed which proves defective should be returned. Large lots do not permit of as accurate a description as smaller ones, hence a few more or less defective stamps may often be counted on. As the auction firms realize, like everyone else, that their success hinges on the satisfaction of the patron, nearly every firm is willing to make amends for any error in description, and practically all of them will go even more than half way to give satisfaction. Therefore, when you justly are not pleased, do justice to yourself and to the auction house by returning the lot.

A careful watch of the wholesale catalogues both at home and abroad, will often result in the purchase of many desirable items. Certain stamps common abroad are scarce here, and many times the dealer will find that he can import stamps he cannot secure in this country. It pays to keep an eye on the lists and on the philatelic press, to watch for stocks of remainders and stocks otherwise dumped on the market. Such a procedure usually foretells a slump in the price of the stamps in question.

The amateur should be very careful in buying mixtures, until he is sure of himself. Many of these mixtures contain a surplus of certain lines, resulting in over-stocking. Also, many contain a certain percentage of unsalable stamps, often dead waste. I think that the firms of Cormack, Powell, Ohlman, and many others are putting out some very good mixtures and packets. A good assortment, containing not too many of any one kind, offers a fine foundation for a stock.

One of the basic rules of stamp buying should be "quality first." Poor copies are hard to dispose of, as a rule. Good stock is in demand. As in the case of United States early issue, and others of like popularity, there is not enough stock to be had to supply the demand. Don't be afraid to pay for good stamps, if you are sure that they are good. If a collection of early U. S. was offered me at a tenth of catalogue by a professional dealer, I should hesitate before I bought it, to see what was wrong. After you find the wants of your clients, go after the stamps to supply them. The better grade of stock you buy, the easier it will be to sell it, and the more money you will make. Sometimes a stamp bought at a half or a third of catalogue proves a far better investment than a stamp bought at a tenth. Insist on fine condition, and pay for it. When you sell, charge for it, according to your costs.

It is not the intent of this article to take up all the sources of buying. This has been done too many times, and there are other works on the market giving information on this subject. Dealers interested should address the publishers of this paper for their hand-book, "How to Deal in Stamps." The price is one little dime (and I get no commission for selling it). These articles merely include some of my personal views and experiences, and are complete in no sense of the word.

THE STAMPS OF WURTEMBERG.

By B. W. H. POOLE.

THE EIGHTH ISSUE.

With the increasing use of postage stamps the Wurtemberg Government found considerable inconvenience and delay was occasioned by having to send them to Carlsruhe to be perforated and this inconvenience became so great in time that the administration at Stuttgart ordered a machine from Berlin for rouletting the stamps in line, similar to the Prussian stamps of 1861. This machine was set up in August, 1865, and the first stamps rouletted by it were delivered in October following though it was not until June, 1866, that the issue of the 1, 3, and 6 kreuzer was made; and these were followed by the 9 kreuzer in March, 1867; and by the 18 kreuzer in February, 1868. The electrotypes all appear to have been re-set and the distance between the stamps is now 2 mm.

On November 23rd, 1867, an agreement was made with the North German Confederation by which the 2 silbergroschen rate was raised from 6 to 7 kreuzer. The Wurtemberg public were informed of this change by means of a post-office notice dated April 2nd, 1868, and at the same time it was stated that 6, 9, and 18 kreuzer values would cease to be manufactured though they would continue available for postage purposes till the stocks were exhausted. The color chosen for the new value was blue though it was of a darker color than that used for the superseded 6kr denomination.

THE NINTH ISSUE.

The typographic embossing method of production was found to be very expensive, especially in the case of the low denominations, and in 1868 the Government decided to abandon it in favor of ordinary typographic printing. That a considerable saving would be effected by the new method is conclusively shown from the statement that while it cost 1 kreuzer to produce 22 stamps by the embossed process 46 stamps could be produced for the same sum by the plain typographic process. On November 27th, 1868, a Post-office circular was published giving notice that from January 1st, 1869, stamps of a new design of 1, 3, and 7 kreuzer would be issued according as the stocks of the former series were exhausted. The actual date of issue of these values is not known. On May 3rd, 1869, another value of 14 kreuzer was issued in the same design, and on December 2nd, 1872, a 2 kreuzer value was added to the set. Early in 1873 the rate for single letters sent to England, France, or the United States by way of Bremen or Hamburg was fixed at 9 kreuzer and on January 15th a stamp of this value was issued corresponding in design to the other denominations then current.

The design is the same for all six values and shows large uncolored shaded numerals in the centre on a ground of crossed lines, within an upright oval with a band of oak leaves around the edge. Around this is an oval band of horizontal lines inscribed "POST" at the left, "FREI" at the top, and "MARKE" on the right, while there is a small posthorn at the bottom. The various inscriptions are separated by small ornamental scrolls. Surrounding this is another inscribed oval band containing, on an uncolored ground, the name "WURTTEMBERG" at the top and the value in words at the base, the two inscriptions being separated by small crowns. In the spandrels are small shields containing three lions in the upper left and lower right corners and stag's horns on the others.

The die was engraved at Stuttgart, as in the case of the previous issues, the stamps being printed in sheets of sixty, in ten rows of six, on plain white wove paper. The printing was heavy, consequently the design is generally found deeply indented in the paper. The stamps were rouletted with the machine used for the preceding series.

THE TENTH ISSUE.

On January 1st, 1873, a stamp bearing the fiscal value of 70 kreuzer and in the Arms type of 1857 made its appearance. The object of this high denomination, as shown by a post office notice of December 24th, 1872, was to prepay heavy letters. Its use was confined to the three chief post-offices of the kingdom situated at Stuttgart, Ulm, and Heilbron, and the stamp was not permitted to be sold to the public. Any letters requiring these high value stamps could be posted at other offices, when they were forwarded under official cover to one of the three above named offices, and then franked with the 70kr stamps.

The design of this value is exactly similar to that of the series of 1857, except that there is an exterior border formed of small dots. The stamps were printed in sheets of six, two horizontal rows of three, on white wove paper and were not perforated. In the top margin is an inscription in black referring to the price of each stamp and the total value of each sheet, viz:—

6. St. Postfreimarken zu 70kr.=Fl.1.10. =2 Mk.
Zusammen im Werthe von 7 Fl.=4 Thl. =12 Mk.

Two plates were used for printing these stamps differing chiefly in the arrangement of the dotted border. Whether both plates were used concurrently or at separate times does not appear to be known for certain, though probably the former was the case if Mr. Ehrenbach's statement that postmarks of the same dates are found on stamps from both plates. Mr. Ehrenbach gives the best description of the differences between the two plates, viz:—

(1) The dark shade (believed by most people to be the first plate). The dimensions of the little black dotted frame running round the stamps is 79½ mm. horizontally, and 53 vertically. They are only divided from each other by a single line of little black dots. The stamps are 3¼ mm. apart from one another. In the inscription over the top row there is no stop after the word "Mk.", and the two little lines (denoting equal to) between 70kr, 1Fl, 10, etc., are only ¾ mm. wide.

(2) The light shade. The Arms in the stamps are more embossed, the stamps show a somewhat clearer impression. The dimensions of the outer border are 77 mm. by 52 mm. The stamps are likewise printed 3¼ mm. apart, but two dotted lines (¾ to 1 mm. apart) divided the stamps instead of one only. In the black inscription on the top there is a stop after "MK.", and the lines (equal to) are 1½ mm. wide.

Reference List.

1873. Embossed. Imperf.
47. 70kr violet, Scott's No. 53 or 53a.

THE ELEVENTH ISSUE.

Towards the end of 1874 the perforating by rouletting ceased as the Government purchased a new perforating machine having a gauge of 11½ by 11. The only value of the kreuzer series perforated by this machine was the 1kr which was issued in November, 1874. Before it was necessary to print further supplies of any of the other values the design was changed and though specimens are known with this perforation they are fraudulent productions.

Reference List.

1874. Perf. 11½x11.
48. 1kr green, Scott's No. 54.

THE TWELFTH ISSUE.

In 1874 it was decided to change the currency,—which up to that time had consisted of the florin of 60 kreuzer, similar to that of the other States of south Germany,—to the Imperial currency of marks and pfennige, and January 1st, 1875, was fixed as the date for the change. A notice, dated December 23rd, 1874, was issued by the Post-office, stating that a stamp of 20 pfennige of a new design would be issued on that day to take the place of that of the 7 kreuzer, just as soon as the stocks of the latter value held in the various post-offices were exhausted.

The design shows uncolored numerals on a circular ground of lines crossing each other diagonally, above which, on a curved scroll is "K. WURTT. POST", while on a similar scroll below, the value is shown in words. On the left is a shield containing three stag's horns and on the right are three lions in a similar shield. The whole is enclosed by an ornamental rectangular frame measuring 21 by 18½ mm.

The die was engraved and the printing plates were constructed at the Mint in Stuttgart and the printing was done under the direction of the Post-office as in the case of the preceding issues. As the new currency was a decimal one a change in the size of the plates was made and the stamps were printed in sheets of 100 arranged in ten rows of ten. They were perforated by the new machine gauging 11½ by 11.

On May 28th, 1875, the Post-office issued another notice announcing that from July 1st next the former series of stamps in kreuzer would be entirely superseded by a new series with values in pfennige. These, it was stated, would be on sale at the various post offices on June 15th, and that after August 15th the stamps with values in kreuzer would cease to be valid for postal use. The new denominations consisted of 3, 5, 10, 15, 25, and 50 pfennige, all of similar type to the 20pf already described. At the same time the color of this latter value, which had hitherto been printed in blue, was changed to ultramarine.

About the same time a 2 marks stamp of similar type was issued in place of the 70 kreuzer. Its sale was prohibited to the public and its use was at first confined to the offices of Stuttgart, Ulm, and Heilbronn, though later it was extended to almost every post office in the kingdom. Notwithstanding this prohibition the stamp was frequently sold to the public, as appears from a post-office circular of August 18th, 1879, and in November of that year the stamp was printed in vermilion on orange colored paper, and on the back "unverkauflich" (not to be sold) was printed in ultramarine.

The 50pf was at first printed in grey but in February, 1878, consequent on an agreement made with the Imperial Post-office at Berlin, its color was changed to grey-green.

THE THIRTEENTH ISSUE.

On November 1st, 1881, a 5 mark stamp was issued and though this was chiefly intended for telegraphic purposes it was also available for postal use. The design was similar to that of the preceding series except that the central circular portion was uncolored, and the numeral of value was printed on it in black by a second operation. This value was reported with central numeral inverted some years ago and though the error is listed in Scott's catalogue I cannot find that its existence was ever satisfactorily authenticated.

On January 1st, 1883, the 2 mark stamp was also issued with value in black on an uncolored ground. The value is known in two distinct shades and is also known imperforate, a sheet having been accidentally issued in this condition.

THE FOURTEENTH ISSUE.

Early in the year 1890 the colors of the 3, 5, 25, and 50 pfennige values were changed to conform with those of the corresponding denominations of Germany, while in 1893 a new value, 2 pfennige, was issued. The design and perforation remained exactly as before. The 5pf is said to exist imperforate.

64. 25pf orange, Scott's No. 69 or 69a.
65. 50pf red-brown, Scott's No. 70 or 70a.

THE FIFTEENTH ISSUE.

In 1900 the set was enriched by the addition of 30 and 40pf values. The design was exactly like that of the other values of the series, but, like the mark denominations, the numerals of value were printed at a second operation in black on a plain ground. These were the last stamps issued by Wurtemberg for general use for in 1902 its postal system was united with that of the Imperial government. A paragraph in Alfred Smith's Monthly Circular referred to the matter as follows:—

An agreement has been concluded between the Imperial Postal Administration and that of Wurtemberg by which the postal systems are to be united for a definite period of four years from April 1st, 1902, after which it will be subject to a notice of one year on either side. On the date mentioned the separate issues of each country will give place to a unified series inscribed "DEUTSCHES REICH."

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The C. E. Hussman Stamp Co., St. Louis, Mo., advises us that C. H. Mekeel has withdrawn the libel suit for $20,000 against that company, Mr. Mekeel paying all the court costs.

—G. W. H.—We have no binders for the WEEKLY.

—Geo. J. Carter, 265 Halsey St., Brooklyn, N. Y., would like information in regard to L. C. Heatherman, Springfield, Ill. Can anyone assist him?

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from S. M. Sivertsen, G. W. Hallenberg.

—B. L. Voorhees would like to correspond with other dealers who can give him any information in regard to J. L. Hoskinson, Lytton, B. C., Can., and the Mason Stamp & Card Co., Eckert, Texas.

—From the compiler, A. Roterberg, Chicago, we have received a "Tentative Simplified Check List of Sonora Stamps," bearing the date of November 3rd, 1914. The little pamphlet contains twelve pages and is completely illustrated as all the different types of the issues are shown. The booklet will be welcomed as a reference list which is convenient to consult and which is ample in its information.

—Jacques Wortman, replying to a recent complaint published in the WEEKLY, writes as follows: "I have been away from Paris about six weeks and returning today I find your complaint of recent date. This smart man sent me some stamps, half of them damaged, for an exchange. On receipt of the same I asked for return postage stating that the stamps were of no value. I take only good stamps in exchange and no damaged or cut squares. Instead of answering my letter, he wrote you with complaint. As soon as I receive 20c for return postage, the stamps in question will be returned."

—In No. 1243 we stated that the current 3c Philippine stamp had appeared perforated 10. This was a mistake. It should have been the 2c value.

—LeRoy C. Brown of Olean, N. Y., sending in his yearly renewal includes two new subscribers, one in Olean and the other in Friendship. He adds:—"I am sure I will do all I can to help you reach the 8,000 mark and shall get you some more new subscribers in the near future."

—After a business trip to Boston the latter part of October, Geo. J. Carter was compelled to return home, where he underwent an operation, from which he is rapidly recovering.

AN UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIAL.

N. Y. CITY, Nov. 5, 1914.

My dear MR. WYLIE:—

I take pleasure in sending you herewith copy for another adv. and at the same time I want to express my appreciation of the splendid setup given my quarter page adv.

Also the results were such that I have decided to confine my advertising in the future exclusively to your paper.

Yours very truly,

THE ANNEXATION OF CYPRUS.

The annexation by Great Britain of the island of Cyprus is little more than a nominal loss to Turkey, but is a substantial acquisition from the British point of view. Turkey loses territory of which she was legally suzerain, but the administration and control have been out of her hands since 1878.

The value of Cyprus to the British Empire is, however, very real, owing to the situation of the island on the flank of Egypt and the Suez Canal. The island is mountainous and can be well fortified. Its strategic value guarding Egypt and the route to India is considerable.

The later events of the war may be such as to compel England to relinquish the island, but this could be considered probable only in the case of her severe defeat. In any general readjustment among the allies her claims to Cyprus would be superior to any her allies could advance. If Italy and Greece enter the war against Germany their interest in the Mediterranean settlement would be acute, but Cyprus is not within the natural sphere of either. And England holds what she takes. Gibraltar, Malta, Cyprus make convenient stepping stones on the way to the east.—Chicago Tribune.

STUDY YOUR STAMPS.

This is a day of specialism and it is called for in every pursuit or line of work. The stamp collector to get real benefit from his hobby must study and specialize.

There is no better field than the stamps of the United States and every American collector should have sufficient pride in the stamps of his own country to build whatever collection he may have upon a foundation of U. S. issues.

The article by Mr. Wiley on that common stamp, the 3c green of 1870, shows what is possible with a stamp that has been little appreciated but nevertheless offers a wide range of investigation.

It is our plea that collectors generally should have in permanent form literature dealing with our hobby, and we shall make amends in coming months for past remissness by furnishing the stamp collector with a literature that will prove of permanent value.

May we suggest a philatelic library? Let the books advertised in this issue be given a corner in the philatelic possessions, and the collecting of one's stamps will take on added interest in proportion to the studiousness of the collector.

"The Stamps of the German States," a splendid production, will be ready early in December.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Hunger Cry—We noticed recently the following despatch in a Chicago newspaper as a "special Marconigram to the Daily News," from Copenhagen, Denmark: "A Danish woman has received from Belgium a post card, the writer of which, a Belgian, advised her to remove the stamp as it was rare. Under the stamp were found three words, 'Nous avons faim' (We are hungry)." This is a clever but, we believe, not a wholly original way to avoid espionage.

From Finland—Letters originating in Finland and addressed to this country bear a label with the censor's notice in two languages, Finnish and Swedish: "Sotasensurin avaama," Finnish and "Oppnats af krigscensuren," Swedish, as both languages are considered Official in Finland.

Omaha in the Ring—It is learned that Mr. Ora E. Stark, Omaha, Nebraska, will issue the call for the organization meeting of a local philatelic society in his fair city; and we are pleased to notice that Mr. F. S. Parmelee has donated the use of his office, 210 First National Bank Building, for the convocation of the kindred souls. Twelve collectors have signified their intention of supporting the proposed society but the organizer hopes to "start out with a charter membership of at least tweny-five enthusiastic collectors."

Every Little Helps—Our editorial in the issue of October 31st, "Be a Big Brother," has attracted a bit of attention. Mr. Freeman Putney, Jr., writes: "I am very glad to see your editorial regarding being a 'big brother' by giving away stamps. I think that a tremendous lot of good can be accomplished by keeping up preaching of giving of stamps as holiday and birthday gifts. Every collector has a lot of duplicates which would make some youngster happy; and the idea also appeals from a selfish point of view in that it saves the purchase of useless gifts in many cases. We shall keep on pushing the idea in our Monthly." Particularly we were pleased to hear from a lady who is known for her good works who says: "Your suggestion of stamp gifts to boys and the organizing of stamp clubs so as to incorporate the twin spirits of clubdom and stamps that run so high in the boyish breasts just now has solved a problem for me. I am engaged privately in community work among the boys and I shall adopt your suggestion as I find that a constant need for novelty to fix the interest of the boys in whom I am interested. Will you please have sent to me for the amount enclosed stamps that would be suitable for my plan together with any advice that you in the fulness of experience are competent to give."

Wings Clipped—Mr. L. B. Lincoln, Chicago, who on behalf of suffering dealers took energetic steps to bring to a halt the misapplied industry of J. L. A. Couture, Quebec, in soliciting stamps from dealers shows us the following letter from the Post Office Department, Canada, dated at Ottawa, October 31st, 1914: "With further reference to your communication of the 12th ultimo, re J. L. A. Couture, Quebec, I desire to say that a fraud order is being issued against this man and also against the firm name of Couture, Huard & Cie, Quebec, which title Couture assumed for the purpose of defrauding people. I may say that the attention of the Attorney General, Quebec, is being called to the case in order that it may be decided whether prosecution should be undertaken by the Criminal Authorities. I am, Sir, Your obedient servant, (Signed) A. U. Throop, secretary."

It is True Anyway—In days gone by, one of the most ardent collectors of United States private proprietary stamps of the civil war period was Mr. W. H. McDonald of Chicago. His collection of the stamps in question was a famous one and he devoted many a pleasant hour to his specimens. Recently, Mr. McDonald had a business visitor whose face impressed him as being one with which he was familiar, but, bromidically speaking, he could not place. The caller, Mr. Underwood, was certain that he had never met Mr. McDonald before and so told him several times in answer to Mr. McDonald's puzzled inquiries. However, McDonald could not reconcile himself to the thought that he had not come in contact with Mr. Underwood in the past. An inspiration came to Mr. McDonald when the conversation developed a clue and he said: "I remember where I have seen your face,—on the Underwood Match stamp of Chicago." The gentleman was the Mr. Underwood whose portrait appears on the stamp in question; he was the Alex. Underwood of Alex. Underwood and Company, the match manufacturers of Chicago.

And So—To pursue the subject: In explaining how his portrait came to appear on the stamp, Mr. Underwood says that he had arranged to have the engraving of a locomotive as the central design and he had the drawing ready to send to Washington where the die was to be made at an expense of three hundred and fifty dollars. Unknown to Mr. Underwood his son substituted his father's picture for that of the "steam-engine"; and Mr. Underwood was surprised beyond measure to discover his portrait on the stamps and as a modest man, we take it that he was somewhat chagrined at the revelation. Mr. Underwood says that his company sold out to the Parck City Match Company of Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Up and Doing—Representations are made in the newspapers that the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is working under pressure to produce the revenue stamps required under the bill to schedule taxes from December 1st, 1914. We can understand that the Bureau's resources are being taxed to the utmost to produce the stamps on time. In this connection we repeat the following excerpt from a section of the law, under the heading, "Adhesive Stamps"; "The Commissioner of Internal Revenue, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, is authorized to procure any of the stamps provided for in this Act by contract whenever such stamps cannot be speedily prepared by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing; but this authority shall expire on the first day of November, nineteen hundred and fifteen, except as to imprinted stamps furnished under contract, authorized by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. As for foreign commodities that come under the provisions of the new law, it is ordered, "That internal revenue stamps required by existing law on imported merchandise shall be affixed thereto and canceled at the expense of the owner or importer before the withdrawal of such merchandise for consumption, and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the affixing and canceling of such stamps, not inconsistent herewith." It is decreed that "on the day after the thirty-first of December, nineteen hundred and fifteen, the taxes levied under this Act shall no longer be levied and collected, but all taxes arising before said date shall continue to be collectible under the terms of this Act."

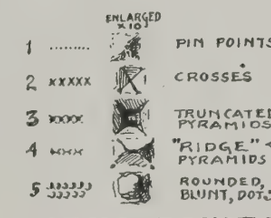
Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE U. S. 3c GREEN, 1870-1887.



By H. L. WILEY.

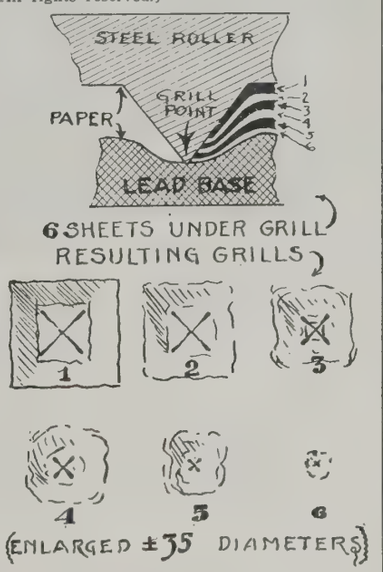
(Copyrighted, 1914. All rights reserved.)

The last grills noted in the issue of 1867 consisted of 11x16, 11x17, 12x15, or 12x16 points and it is probable that the same roller used on these stamps, after having laid idle for four years during the intervening issue of 1869 on which the grills were much smaller, was again brought into service for the stamps of the 1870 issue.

It is my belief that this roller may have been trimmed up and used for these later stamps, or that a new roller was made and used but I do not believe that more than one roller was used nor that the one which was used was ever retouched after having been put in service.

There are several types of impressions in the 1870 grilled stamps:

GRILL POINTS



1. Pin-point punctures, made by the tips or points of the grills.
2. Pointed pyramids, which produced crosses in the flattened paper.
3. Truncated pyramids, producing "squares" in the paper, inclosed in other "squares."
4. Ridge pyramids, caused by inaccurate machine work in making the roller.
5. Blunt, rounded dots.

I believe that all of these were produced by the same roller and were not the result of alterations in the roller nor the use of different rollers.

Assuming that the points on the roller were reasonably sharp and that several sheets of stamps were fed through the machine at the same time, the result would be as many different types of grills as there were sheets of stamps.

It is impossible to believe that the sheets of stamps were fed through the machine singly. The height of the grill points was equal to the thickness of from six to ten gummed sheets, under pressure, and the operator would have quickly determined the maximum permissible number of sheets upon which the impressions would show. It may have been that extra intervening tissue sheets were used between the printed sheets for the purpose of preventing any possible adhesion between the gum and the ink, but as this would have meant considerable extra expense for labor and material it may well be discarded. Eliminating the "intervening sheet" idea it is probable that about five sheets of stamps were fed under the grill roller at each operation. The resulting grills are herewith illustrated.

One or two sheets nearest the backing material would show pin points; the sheets near the middle of the pile would show blunt, rounded impressions and the two sheets nearest the grill roller would show fairly perfect pyramids, the character of which would be modified in the subsequent operation of flattening out the grills. I have no belief in the theory that any special "flattening" process was made to form part of the routine through which these stamps were manufactured. The lower sheets of a pile of paper more than six inches high are usually pretty flat after a few hours of "weighting."

The edges of the pyramids forming the grills could not have been sharp and clean angles at any time, for such a condition would produce cuts as clean as those made by a razor. None of these grills are found in which the paper has been cut cleanly. The paper invariably shows signs of having been subjected to tension and not shear, and the fibers have been pulled apart and not cut as would have been the case had the corners of the pyramids been reasonably sharp. Sharp edged pyramids, pressed into lead, do not strain and roughen the fibers of an intervening sheet of paper,—the action is that similar to that of pressing the sharp edge of a knife blade into a sheet of paper, and the results are the same. We must believe therefore that a roller with dulled pyramids was used and that several sheets of paper were fed through at each operation.

The substance against which the grill roller worked was probably a lead plate during the early days of the patent, but by 1870 I believe that the operators would have discovered several preferable substances. Luff refers to cardboard in this connection where he writes relative to the grills believed to have been formed by truncated pyramids on the roller. In this instance the stamp referred to is an early type of the 3c 1867. Cardboard would not have been satisfactory because it was undoubtedly too hard and because it would have furred up and lost its identity after a few passes of the grill roller, thus necessitating frequent renewals of a comparatively expensive substance.

Sheet lead would flow under a roller similar to the grill roller. It would, at the same time become correspondingly thinner. If the roller were maintained at a fixed distance from the base supporting the lead plate it is evident that the impressions would quickly lose their early form.

It is possible that an alloy of lead, somewhat harder than that metal, was used, and that a few preliminary passes of the roller, under pressure, created a series of depressions in the metal bed which were accurately meshed in subsequent passes of the roller. The continuous bands of embossing around the

Advertising Chat—No. 12.

The Millard Co. of Detroit, Mich., formerly users of trade space, is now using our displayed columns and will be regular advertisers with us in this department. Mr. Smith, who assisted in the preparation of our book, "How to Deal in Stamps" is interested in this firm.

The Hub Stamp Co., which changed hands some months ago, is with us this week. It will be remembered that Mr. W. S. Barker, a well-known Boston collector and dealer, purchased this business from Mr. Cobe. The firm begins with a modest announcement, but will no doubt become a fixture in our columns.

Several advertisers have taken blocks of 50 lines in the trade column and all in all the stamp business shows marked signs of prosperity.

Not a week passes but some advertiser gives us the glad hand for our service in increasing the volume of business he is able to do. An unsolicited testimonial such as the following from L. W. Charlat carries with it an atmosphere that is very pleasing to us:—

"I take pleasure in sending you herewith copy for another adv. and at the same time I want to express my appreciation of the splendid set-up given my quarter page adv.

"Also the results were such that I have decided to confine my advertising in the future exclusively to your paper."

Persistence brings power.

ends of the roller were possibly left there with the object of securing this perfect "register" rather than as a positive feed device for the sheets of paper which would not have required a device of this kind to have kept it in position.

We have considered cardboard, lead, and a somewhat harder metal like babbitt metal, as possible backing substances for the grill roller. An argument tending to disprove the metal backing theory is that not the faintest trace of metallic lead can be found on these stamps under the most powerful microscopes. We know that any paper brought into intimate contact with clean metallic lead or other similar soft metal will retain traces of the metal, often visible to the unaided eye and invariably visible under a microscope of moderate power. I do not therefore believe that a lead plate was used in this connection. I think it probable that a backing of leather, fiber, rubber, cork, canvas, or some similar substance was used. Leather is quite within reason. It was easily obtainable, cheap (where length of service is considered), was elastic, firm, soft, durable, and would not have worn rapidly nor shredded nor "flowed" under the action of the grill roller. Grills produced upon a leather backing would be more nearly the duplicates of the genuine grills, point for point, than those resulting from any other process.

I believe that I have shown, in the foregoing paragraphs, that the different grills were probably the result of different methods of manufacture and varying conditions rather than the result of the use of more than one grill roller.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us a cover which must take high rank as a real curiosity. It is dated Oct. 29, 1861. The sender had evidently taken it to the postoffice with a 3c stamp of 1857 on it. As these stamps had become obsolete further postage was necessary. Therefore a 3c of 1861 was placed over the original stamp but in such a manner as to only partially cover it. From the conditions attending its mailing, this becomes a most interesting cover.

The New England Stamp Co. calls attention to a minor variety of the 4c of 1902. The "F" in "Four" is split at the bottom, evidently by a defect in the plate.

Wm. T. Kimball has shown us the 4c with the new 10 perforation, and the courtesy is acknowledged with thanks.

GERMANY.—Offices in Belgium.—We learn from Ewen's Weekly that the 25pf stamp has also been surcharged for use in Belgium.

Adhesive.
25c on 20pf ultramarine.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Mr. Schachne has shown us the current letter card on a new variety of paper.

Letter Card.
1 penny, red on dark cream.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Offices in Morocco.—Marsh's Weekly says that the current 2sh 6d has been overprinted for use in Morocco, presumably with value changed to "3 pesetas."

GRENADA.—The 3d on yellow paper colored through is now being supplied to this Colony.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Marsh's Weekly Philatelist says that the 5sh King George stamp on surface colored paper is now obsolete. This stamp, together with the 3d and 1sh values on surface colored papers, were only issued in Montserrat, though all three were available for use throughout the whole Leeward Island group.

MEXICO.—Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg sends copies of the last Federal issue of Mexico, with the "$" overprint, emanating from Mexico City.

W. J. Stanton also reports the 4c and 20c values with this overprint. These last came from Puebla.

We are also indebted to W. J. Stanton for specimens of the newest Sonora issue as illustrated in the WEEKLY, October 24. We note, however, that the 1c and the 5c show interesting varieties. In the 1c there are two shades of blue and two shades of red, while the 5c is equally prolific in shade varieties. These stamps are printed in sheets of forty, four by ten. The 20c and 50c of the set according to Mr. Stanton has not yet been issued.

Bright & Son report receiving a cover from Tuxtla, with one each of the 2c and 3c stamps overprinted "G. C. M." in violet and three 5c stamps with the same overprint in red.

Bright & Son also report receiving a cover from Tuxtla, franked with special stamps which were issued in this town alone and were only in use 22 days. Apparently they are revenue stamps, overprinted "Correos" for postal use. The stamps are rouletted with the exception of the 1c which bears the head of the other values. The design represents an Eagle under the sun, with a cupid and two flags on the right hand side. The stamps are surcharged "Correos" in violet on all values except the 1c on which it appears in red. They also seem to be hand stamped "Puerto Mexico" in black vertically, reading either up or down. The 1c stamp also has a label at the foot with an Eagle design on it. The number issued is in parentheses, as follows:

1c olive, (overprinted) with label at foot (300).
1c overprinted "Correos" in red (500).
2c green overprinted in violet (500).
2c green variety with "Correos" inverted (200).
5c red, overprinted "Correos" in violet (1000).
5c red, variety "ORREOS" (100).

The following from George W. Linn is self-explanatory:

"I see you have printed the statements by Mr. Stanton in regard to the recent Green Seal Sonora stamps not being reissues. I regret to see such statements in print because it only helps to confuse collectors and put them in a poor shape to keep up to date on their stamps. Regardless of any statements of any gentleman from Hermosillo or elsewhere, these stamps are undoubtedly a re-issue and a new printing entirely.

"If these are remainders of the former printing then why are the seals all transposed and in a different position than on the early printing? Why with the excellent facilities for getting stamps of any old kind cancelled to order, or perforated to order, etc., that were available at the Hermosillo Headquarters, why did we never see one of these stamps until they were re-issued? If these stamps had been on hand at Hermosillo or elsewhere there is no doubt that they would have appeared long before this. Then why if they are of the old issue were the seals transposed and the transposition made to take place just at the point where the old issue was stopped and at the point before any of these new ones were issued.

"In regard to Mr. Stanton's statement that the paper is precisely the same, I would ask him, 'Precisely the same as what?' The old green seals were printed on about a half dozen different kinds of paper all mixed together. There were no block '5's' with green seal in the former issue except those that came with the colorless roulette. These were all on the Peerless Mills paper. Furthermore these fives were all made by simply adding the green seal to sheets of the first issue that already were on hand.

"The printer has kept the form standing since the printing of the former issues as it would be a very difficult task and not one chance in a hundred thousand of getting it set up again the same as it was when used for the former printings. That it is the same is easily seen by comparing sheets of the two different issues.

"Mr. Stanton will have to show me a thin five cent value that is a reissue. I will admit that he may have seen thin fives which were used at time the reissue was used but if such is the case they are undoubtedly stamps which someone had on hand remaining from the former issue and that he has used them up as would have been possible with any values. This possibility of the use of old issues which were practically issued by a different government than the one that issued the reissues is probably the cause of the new set which was recently issued. If anyone can show me a thin '5c' which came in the reissues I can readily tell him from which sheet or printing the stamp came in the former issue or if a reissue or different printing I can tell him that and show him how it can be told. Let anyone show me any stamps which they claim are remainders from the last printing but which were reissued by the Government now in Sonora and I will show them where they are wrong.

"I might add that I do not base my statements on any information from Hermosillo or elsewhere, but from a careful study of the stamps and I can prove every statement I make. The Mexicans don't know anything about stamps and that is what makes them do such a poor job with some of the fakes they turn out, of which I have several interesting ones in my collection.

"The regular Mexican stamps surcharged with 'GOBIERNO CONSTITUCIONALISTA' and '$' sign between the lines in a six point gothic capital letter are coming from the Mexican Government at Mexico City and are to be used throughout all Mexico that can be controlled by the Central government. Of course this will mean Sonora as Sonora has recently been Villa's headquarters. The only possibility of any new stamps other than these will be from the Carranza crowd, which seems to have become dissatisfied and is reported to have withdrawn to Puebla where a new government is to be set up."

Geo. W. Linn calls our attention to what he believes is a counterfeit Mexican provisional. The surcharge is "Gobierno Constitusionalista" in two lines, and on some stamps, the second word is divided so as to take a third line. Mr. Linn has examined copies of 1, 2, 3 and 5c values and feels positive that the surcharge is not a genuine production.

MONACO.—Whitfield King & Co. has shown us the Red Cross stamp noted last week.

NETHERLANDS.—This country has also fallen into the footsteps of other countries issuing postal cards, perforated in sheets of 10, for typewriter use, according to Mr. Schachne.

5c red on light rose, perf.

ST. LUCIA.—According to The Colonial Journal, the 4d on yellow paper colored through has been sent out to the Colony.

SIERRA LEONE.—Gerald D. Bliss sends two covers from Freetown, Sierra Leone, both of which have evidently been "censored." One has the usual postage, 2½ pence. The end has been cut open and then "Officially Sealed," and stamped with a rubber stamp, "Opened by Censor." The other cover has no stamps, but on the reverse is a roughly printed, rouletted label reading "Postage Free—Prisoner of War—Sierra Leone."

TRENGGANU.—The Colonial Journal states that new duty plates have been prepared for the 2c, 25c, 30c and $3 values, and that the colors of all existing duties, with the exception of the 1c, 3c and 8c values, will be changed.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO.—The 4d and 1sh values have now been supplied on paper colored through.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

PACKETS, SETS AND ACCESSORIES.

Continuing our discussion on stamp dealing for the amateur, we will now consider the above articles. Just what the dealer should carry in these lines will depend largely upon his situation. If he does business by mail he will not need as large a stock of these as he would if he did a counter business. These various articles sell, as a rule, better over the counter than they do by mail. One reason for this is that many stamp accessories and packets do not readily sell "sight unseen" no matter how good the description. It is sometimes true that an article which sells well over the counter will not sell at all by mail, as the mere sight of the article often sells it.

The packet was very popular with collectors, and is still in favor, especially among the beginners, as it offers large variety at little money. The set is growing more popular every day, and is gradually taking the place of the small packet. Every dealer catering to general trade should carry a few packets in stock, such as 100, 250, 500, 1,000 and 2,000 varieties, as these packets are the most essential to the collector, and are the ones that sell easiest. A series of packets by countries, as 100 varieties of Austria, etc., often prove quite popular with collectors, though these necessitate a considerable outlay of money, and it is doubtful if the results warrant the investment unless the business is great enough to permit of large sales. Such a series is excellent for stamp-shop and candy store trade. Special packets of 10 varieties of unused, 10 animal stamps, 10 French Colonials, 50 British Colonials, etc., may be included in the series. Low priced packets sell more readily than higher priced ones, for the reason that the collector has learned of the element of chance involved in buying stamps "unseen" and often hesitates to risk a large amount. Also, since the greater majority of packets are purchased by children, whose money is usually limited, the cheaper ones are often purchased where the more expensive would have to be declined. In my experience with a chain of packets in the candy stores in Chicago, I found that the 10c packets sold best of all, and that the special packets aforementioned sold readily.

So many dealers have taken advantage of the fact that packets were purchased unseen, and have used them to work off all the trash they had, that collectors have grown very cautious. If these same dealers had the foresight of a field-mouse, they would realize that these buyers could be made continuous customers, with little effort. However, they believe it better to sting a man once than to sell him twice. Therefore, if you value your good name and want to build up a business, make the most of this opportunity to reach the new collector, and give value for his money. If necessary, cut down your own profit a little, and charge it to advertising. A 1,000 variety packet that had just a little better value than any put on the market heretofore would be a big drawing card for a dealer. Remember, the new collector buys the packets first, usually before he knows much of the ways of stamp dealers, and if you secure his good-will at the start, he will remain your customer. Use the packet as a means to distribute your advertising matter, by enclosing a coupon offering a premium for every collector trying your approvals, or for the names of three collectors, or something of a similar nature. Avoid "stuffing" the packet with advertising matter that might tend to make the collector think he was getting a larger quantity of stamps than the number enclosed. Also, if practical, put a "money-back" guarantee on the packet, and announce it on the outside. It will pay in the long run, as it shows that you are striving to please. Use attractive envelopes, and pack the stamps neatly. If the contents warrant it, and advertising matter is enclosed, put the stamps in a separate small envelope. Also, keep out the damaged and the trash. Sell these as such, if you must, to somebody who buys with his eyes open and knows what he is buying. Most of the wholesale dealers can assist you in putting out a line of packets, and many offer packets already put up. These are not always advantageous, for the reason that they do not permit the dealer to put "personality" in his goods, nor can he be sure of the quality. In my opinion, the cheaper variety packets can best be secured ready-made, and the smaller "special" packets can best be made up by the dealer. The former require considerable work and do not warrant quite as much care as the latter.

A popular way of selling packets and, accordingly, reaching collectors who might not learn of the dealer's existence, is by mounting them on cards for display and selling through the candy, notion, cigar and other small stores of the town. In this work, a commission ranging from 20% to 40% is usually allowed the store-keeper, and the larger the commission, the more effort will be made to sell the packets. For convenience, it is best to prepare cards in multiples of $1.00 and to make all cards alike, or in series. This eliminates dispute and aids in checking up the amounts by the vacant spaces on the card. Candy, book and cigar stores are the best packet sellers, and stores situated near schools, or patronized by children, are especially good. I have had some quite high sales from hotel shops, railway station novelty counters, and find that some most unusual places often bring results.

A special Christmas package designed to start collectors should prove popular at the toy counters and with the small stores. This package should include a cheap album, package of hinges, package of stamps (a variety and a "special") and a small pamphlet describing the benefits of collecting and a few of the essentials that every collector should know. These packages could be put up in different sizes, some including a catalogue, a hand-book on collecting (of which there are many to be had), and different size packets of stamps. These latter should include a good general assortment, rather than a group of any special country. Needless to say, the dealer will put his card or a little advertising matter in the lot. As people do not like circulars in connection with their Christmas presents, a card simply stating that "further orders or information on stamp collecting can be obtained from ——" is most advisable. If the collectors are interested enough to buy, they will write you.

Sets are proving popular sellers, and can be obtained very easily from the various wholesale dealers. Sets retailing from 5c to 25c are the most popular, though the higher priced ones sell quite well. As in all other branches of the stamp business, or any other, "personality" counts, so offer different sets from those of your rival if you can, and the field is large enough for you to do so. Use cards of uniform size, and mount the stamps with hinges, not with fish glue or tire cement. Some dealers think it is a good joke on the collector when he tries to remove the stamps from the card and succeeds in tearing large pieces from the stamps. The collector also thinks it a good joke on the dealer when he sees the "For Rent" sign in his window. A neatly mounted set will sell far better than one stuck on any old way. Remember this when you mount the cards. Price lists of sets may be issued advantageously, though a stock sufficient to sell all orders should be maintained.

Hinges are absolutely essential to all dealers. Certain firms throughout this country and abroad are offering these in quantity, at figures low enough to allow a good profit, and it is possible to purchase them put up with the name and trade-mark of the dealer retailing them on the box or package. A certain English house issues an attractive circular on their stock of accessories, and includes some unusual offers in high grade hinges, put up in little tin boxes, bearing the retailer's label, and also a watermark detector on the reverse of the box. This same firm can offer an excellent line of all other accessories, in fact, they are one of the few concerns manufacturing stamp accessories exclusively.

Magnifying glasses, tongs, watermark cups, gauges, catalogues, stock books, and albums, should not be stocked unless the dealer has a local shop where he can display same, and has trade enough to warrant the expenditure. The larger dealers will gladly enter into a proposition to furnish the small dealer with whatever he needs in these lines as ordered, at reduced rates. Much money can be sunk in this sort of stock, and unless care is used, loss will result. Rather than buy the stock and be unable to re-sell it, make an agreement with some large dealer to supply you with the goods as needed, or turn the orders away.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Your Hong Kong stamps cancelled in Shanghai are valued at the same amount as those with Hong Kong cancellations, and are nearly as common. These stamps are used by the British Postal Agencies in the various cities of China, and while they might be of special value to someone interested in them, I doubt if you could get much of a premium for them because of the cancellation. These stamps are also found with cancellations of Hankow, Peking, Tien-sin, Canton, and others. These foreign offices are to be discontinued shortly, so the stamps will grow scarcer.

The Liquor Stamps you mention are evidently of private origin, and have no philatelic value. For just what use they were intended I cannot say. However, they were not issued by the Government.

Please sign your initials or name to your inquiries.

J. H. W., Jr.—Your shades on the pair of Confederates are caused by imperfect inking of the plate, in the same way as shades are found on a sheet of the current stamps. The milky blue is distinctly different from the other shade, and was printed at a different time.

If your block of eight contains the crossed lines, the four end stamps are not worth as much as the block with the intersection. If the block is an ordinary line block, there is no difference in the value, though the stamps without the line are worth a trifle less.

All United States stamps of recent issues are printed in sheets with the center line or lines, for guides in perforating. The lower values are printed in sheets of four hundred, and are cut into panes of one hundred each, on the guide lines. The higher values are printed in sheets of two hundred each and are divided into two panes. The blocks of imperforates showing the intersection of the lines are most desirable.

K. M. R.—The "stamp" you illustrate is a label of some sort, presumably for advertising or souvenir purposes, similar to the labels so popular both here and abroad at the present time. It has no philatelic value.

THE STAMPS OF WURTEMBERG.

By B. W. H. POOLE.

MUNICIPAL SERVICE STAMPS.

With the exception of a few stamps issued by Bavaria in 1908 for the use of Railway Officials Wurtemberg is the only German State that has issued a regular series of official stamps. These fall into two classes—those for general use and those for the use of municipalities. The latter class, known as Municipal Service stamps, was first issued on July 1st, 1875, for use on the official correspondence of municipalities within the kingdom of Wurtemberg. The rate of postage was fixed at 5 pfennige irrespective of the weight of the letters. A stamp of this value—printed in mauve like the ordinary 5pf stamp then current—was issued in a special design. In the centre is a diamond of solid color on which a large "5" surrounded by "POST-FREI-MARKE PFENNIG" is shown. Around this is a lozenge shaped band inscribed "PORTO PFLIGHTIGE DIENST SACHE" meaning "Service matter liable to postage." In each of the four angles are small oval shields showing three stag's horns on their left and three lions on their right hand sides. The design is completed by a thick frame line. These stamps, like those for ordinary use, were printed in sheets of 100, the dies and plates being manufactured at the Mint in Stuttgart and the printing taking place under the supervision of the Post-office. Imperforate specimens are known of this 5pf stamp. A 10pf stamp of similar design was issued about the same time for use on parcels and money orders.

In 1890 the color of the 5pf was changed to green to conform with the change of color in the corresponding value of the ordinary set. Several distinct shades of this variety may be found.

On January 10th, 1897, a new value of 3 pfennige in brown was issued and in 1900 a 2pf in grey and a 25pf in orange appeared. The design of all three was similar to that of the first 5pf.

In 1906 all five denominations were overprinted with a crown above the dates "1806-1906" in commemoration of the centenary of Wurtemberg's being raised to the dignity of a Kingdom.

In 1906 some of the values began to appear on paper watermarked with a multiple device of crosses and circles and by the following year all values had appeared on this new paper and two new values—20 and 50 pfennige—were also issued. The stamps on this watermarked paper were printed by the German Imperial Printing Office, at Berlin, and apparently the plates for the two new values were also made in Berlin. These stamps are still in use for the agreement between the Imperial Administration and that of Wurtemberg regarding the unified series of stamps affected those for public use only.

Official Stamps.

Until April 1st, 1881, the correspondence of the ministerial offices was conveyed free of postage, but at that time the privilege was taken away and a series of special stamps was issued for use on all official correspondence. M. Moens described their issue as follows:

Official stamps for franking correspondence connected with the business of the State, churches, schools, and public benevolent institutions were issued, in part, on the first of April last, in terms of a decree, dated 26th March, 1881, of the Ministry of Churches and Schools. Article 3 of this Decree sets forth that "Delivery of these stamps shall be made against printed acknowledgments of their receipt upon forms to be furnished by the post-office department. At the end of every month the post-office authorities shall prepare a statement of number of receipts in their possession for stamps issued, and shall submit it to our Department for examination and payment."

The values at first issued were 3, 5, 10, and 20 pfennige and these were followed on April 18th by 25 and 50 pfennige. The colors correspond to those of similar denomination of the ordinary series then current. The design, which is the same for all, shows uncolored labels on all four sides and a fifth one crossing the centre of the stamps obliquely from the left lower to the right upper corner. The labels at the sides are inscribed "K. WURTT." at the left, "POST" at the top, "PFENNIG" at the right, and the value in words at the bottom. The diagonal label contains the words "AMTLICHER VERKEHR" meaning "Official Business." On each side of the central label are escutcheons, containing the numerals of value, resting on an ornamental background.

In 1882 a new value of 1 mark printed in yellow was added to the series.

In 1890 the colors of the 3, 5, and 25pf were altered to conform with those of the ordinary stamps and at the same time the color of the 1 mark was changed to violet. Shortly afterwards the color of the 5pf was also altered and in 1900 a 2pf stamp was added to the series.

In 1903 30 and 40 pfennige stamps were issued and these, like the ones for ordinary use were printed at two operations with the value in each case in black.

In 1906 all ten values were overprinted in a similar manner to the Municipal Service stamps in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of Wurtemberg's existence as a kingdom, and in 1906-7 all denominations were issued on the watermarked paper used for the Municipal Service stamps of the same date. These latter were printed in Berlin by the German Imperial Printing Office and they are still in use.

Reprints.

Few stamps have been more reprinted than the first three issues of Wurtemberg, and few Governments have shown greater docility in supplying enterprising dealers and collectors, to order, with supplies of the stamps in every abnormal color that could be desired by the most morbid imagination. The so-called reprints of the first issue are, in fact, nothing better than official counterfeits. None of the printing plates were in existence when these imitations were made in 1864, nor were the dies, except the central portions and the frames without the inscriptions. These latter were, therefore, set up again, and small plates constructed consisting of six or

Watermark Detectors

In offering collectors a benzine cup for detecting watermarks, we have taken great precaution to procure a cup that will give absolute satisfaction.

This cup is in a class of its own. We do not offer you a common glass vessel with a painted bottom. The base of our cup is made of a specially prepared jet black crystalized glass, the lid is of clear glass. It is a watermark detector in every sense of the word and cannot be duplicated anywhere at any price. We will mail one to you for FORTY-FIVE CENTS in a neat little wooden box, and if for any reason you are not entirely satisfied with it, you are at liberty to return same to us, for which an immediate refund will be made and no questions asked.

1864—sub-consignments, 2 books.
1866—one book.
1868—4 books, including pairs and blocks.
1872—two books.
Later issues, several books. Sonora and Guadalajara. A fine lot.

twelve electrotypes. In the imitations the letters of "Wurttemberg" and "Freimarke" are smaller than in the originals, the letter "W" is 1½ mm. from the left side-line of the label instead of 1 mm. as in the genuine, and the lower bunch of grapes in each of the two ornaments in the lower tablet are complete whereas in the originals they are not complete. These "reprints" should hardly confuse the most inexperienced collector. Mr. Westoby tells us that "In 1865 a further printing was made on paper of various thicknesses, and of all the colors of the rainbow. The printing seems to have been specially confined to the 1 kreuzer, though the other values are recorded as existing. The reprinting was made on the condition that the reprints should not be used postally."

In 1864 all the values of the Arms series were reprinted and some of these are apt to prove rather confusing. None of the original "Dickinson" paper with orange thread used for the stamps of 1857 remained in stock and though a supply of silk-thread paper was obtained from the Bavarian Administration the color of the thread was different, being red. The 6kr is known with yellow thread and various values in fancy colors are reported as existing with green silk thread. The color of the thread, therefore, is sufficient test in detecting whether the specimen is an original or a reprint. The detection of the reprints on paper without silk thread is a more difficult matter for the colors of the originals were very closely copied and there is no appreciable difference in the paper. The original plates of 1857 did not exist, however, so that the plates employed for the rouletted stamps current at the time the reprints were manufactured were evidently used. On these the stamps were much more widely spaced than in the originals, the distance between the stamps measuring about 2 mm. instead of ¾ mm. as in the genuine. In the case of pairs, therefore, the reprints are at once distinguishable and specimens with unduly large margins may also be condemned without hesitation.

None of the later issues were reprinted.

GOOD FOR BEVERLY.

The annual meeting of the Beverly (Mass.) Philatelic Society was held Nov. 12, at the Y. M. C. A. with 15 members present. Officers for the following year were elected as follows: Pres., Frank W. Foster; V. Pres., R. W. Dutcher; Treas., H. Shaler; Sales Supt., C. E. Herrick; Sec., Lewis E. Hood.

Twenty meetings have been held during the year with an average attendance of 11. Exhibition of collections, auction sales and other interesting features have made the meetings very popular.

The Society has 26 active members and all stamp collectors are cordially invited. Meetings on the 2nd and 4th Thursday of every month except during June, July and August.—Lewis E. Hood, Secretary.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The advertisement of the Economist Stamp Co. offering the 5 peso Mexico as of the 1899 issue, should have read "1910".

—We have a new stamp club known as the Niagara (N. Y.) Philatelic Club, organized November 5. The club was honored in having as a visitor A. A Hunter, Postmaster of Balboa, Canal Zone, who gave an interesting talk on the postal issues of Panama. Regular meetings will be held during the winter months and collectors in the vicinity of Niagara Falls may communicate with H. C. Burns, 538 Second St., Niagara Falls, N. Y.

—Joseph C. Zanini informs us that the 50c beer stamp has just been issued surcharged "Emergency Tax Under Act of 1914." This is evidently the beginning of an interesting output of revenue stamps.

—Maitland Milliken, Foster Bldg., Denver, Colo., would be glad to hear from any collectors in neighboring states who would like to join the Mountain States Philatelic Society.

—The Harmer Rooke & Co., auction sale in aid of the National Relief Fund realized over one thousand dollars. The entire amount was contributed to the Prince of Wales Fund.

—Who will accommodate him? H. O. Houghton, Hopedale, Mass., would like matter descriptive of a stockbook, loose leaf or otherwise, in which the pockets are transparent. What dealer will respond?

—We have been shown by Frank C. Davis, a strip of four 1c Argentine Republic of the 1911 issue. Mr. Davis points out that this strip is genuinely unwatermarked and an examination would seem to indicate that his claim is warranted.

—We regret an error that occurred in the recent advertisement of F. S. Parmelee, where the Netherlands 10 gulden was priced at 25c when it should have been priced at $3.25. While it must have been evident to any collector that this price was a mistake, Mr. Parmelee received many orders for this stamp.

—Bright & Son send us a copy of their new wholesale pricelist, a very pretentious list and one that every dealer should possess.

COMPLAINT AGAINST D. B. CROCKETT.

R. Hamilton of Bath, England, prefers a complaint against D. B. Chockett, Nutley, N. J. An approval selection, value $5.64, with postal expense of 36c is the particular item. We are satisfied that the claim is a just one and take this means of giving publicity to the same. We have discontinued Crockett's advertising in our trade column and our patrons will govern themselves accordingly.

EDITORIAL.

Proposals For Envelopes—The postmaster general has issued the following notice, under the date of Washington, November 9th, 1914: "Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent of this Department until 2 o'clock P. M., January 5, 1915, for furnishing stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the postal service for the four years beginning July 1, 1915. Blanks for proposals, specifications, and instructions to bidders, with samples to show color and finish of paper and cut and style of envelopes will be furnished upon application to the Purchasing Agent, Post Office Department, Washington, D. C., A. S. Burleson, Postmaster General." For the past two four year periods, the envelopes have been made by the Mercantile Corporation of Dayton, Ohio, who, we assume will again enter a bid that in all probability will be successful.

A Label of Love—A letter received from Trinidad, dated October 7th, 1914, bears in addition to the regulation stamp, a rather crude label, roughly perforated, with the design of red cross in the center, surrounded by the inscription:—"Trinidad—One Fraction," above and below; and at sides, "Red Cross—Society." The label is in red and the lettering is somewhat uneven; and evidently it is a local production.

In Four Colors—We have received a copy of the Hungarian red cross stamp with the red cross against a ground of the Hungarian coat-of-arms. The crown at the top with its iron cross is in gold. The central design is surrounded by the inscription: "A Magyar Szent Korona Orszagainak." Labels at bottom read: "Voros Kereszt-Egylete." In the two corners at top, "1914," and in the lower corners: "10." The colors of this pretentious red cross label are black, green, red and gold.

They Come Back—We had a visit recently from Mr. Walter Clarke Bellows, whose wonderful work on "Campeche" is probably the most distinctive philatelic volume that ever was published. The researches of Mr. Bellows established the authenticity of the Campeche issues and though Mr. Bellows disposed of his stamps to good advantage several years ago and allowed his interest in philately to ebb away, he does not claim that he is immune from another philatelic attack.

Lots of Them—Several weeks ago we spoke of colored cancellations on the present U. S. stamps in view of the department's decree in the Postal Guide of 1914 that black ink furnished by the department be employed exclusively. Enough evidence of the use of colored inks has been received to settle any lurking doubt that only accidentally or unpremeditatively did they happen to be chosen. For instance, Mr. Fred L. Pauly, Lebanon, Ohio, writes: "In looking over four day's mail here this week in the office, or eighteen hundred envelopes, I found eight covers with colored cancellations and these I enclose. You will notice that they are from as many different states. I would suggest that the M. O. pad was used; this pad is always covered and is generally red." Mr. Pauly adds that he has the new perforation, 10, in the one, two, five and ten cents, unused, and the six cents, precanceled "Chicago."

Not The Rule—The colored cancellation on the present stamps is relatively unusual for all that and it is apt to emanate from the smallest offices where the rules are not observed to a nicety. For a good many years, the department has prescribed the use of black ink for canceling purposes and now that the department furnishes the black ink, it would seem that there is small excuse for using colored inks. It is probable that the explanation of our correspondent that the money order business inking pad is kept covered and is consequently ready for use and not dried up as the canceling ink may be occasionally accounts for some of the present day colored markings. In a notice sent out to postmasters in 1879, we find the instructions: "The cancellation must be effected by the use of black printing-ink wherever that material can be obtained; and where it cannot, the operation should be performed by making several heavy crosses or parallel lines upon each stamp with a pen dipped in good black writing-ink."

Franked Envelope—A western frank that we have not been able to find listed has been shown us by Mr. H. L. Lindquist. It reads: O. C. Huntley Stage Express Line, in ornamental scroll on the three cent, 1864, U. S. stamped envelope, white paper.

* * *

Pity The Poor P. M.—An envelope prepaid by two of the three-cent, 1861, U. S. and postmarked Auburn, New York, bears the following address:

"Uncle Sam, long life to you,
Will you a favor please to do?
I this letter fain would send
This your kindness to a friend.
His name is Alfred Little,
Fife Major is his title.
Like domus elephantis
His house is where his trunk is
And that is now at Castleton,
—Where he is, faith, it's wassail-ton—
'Tis found in old Vermont state.
Now, Uncle Sam, please not to wait.
Don't let your iron horses lag,
Carry this letter to Curt Flagg.
He'll put it in—sore as 'the rocks'—
To Dan Higley's waiting box."

This envelope is the property of Mr. George Ward Linn and the freak inscription is characteristic of those that were somewhat the fashion say a half-century ago and whose "cleverness" was sometimes heralded broadcast in the newspaper press of the period. It is needless to say that the post office folks did not encourage ingenuity of this stripe as the humor was at the expense of their time and patience.

Many Miles Away—Mistakes will happen; and with this graceful introduction we now proceed to say that in our opinion the Americans at St. Michaels, Azores, have just cause for a "tush, tush." We shall let the post office department tell the story: "The Department is in receipt of complaints that mail addressed to the American Consulate at St. Michaels, Azores, has been delayed on account of the mail having been missent to St. Michaels, Arizona. The Division Superintendents are directed to issue necessary instructions to insure the proper handling and despatch of mails addressed to St. Michaels, Azores."

Poetess Honored—The new Cuban commemorative five centavos blue bearing the portrait of Gertrudis Gomez de Avellaneda, "one of the greatest poetesses of all times," is now coming through the mails; and the tribute paid to the poetess is a charming, and, we are certain, a deserved one. In the ordinary mails, the one, two and three centavos of the regular Mexican set surcharged for the "Gobierno-Constitucionalista" in addition to those already listed, are seen.

AUSTRIA'S NEW STAMPS.

Here is the decree announcing the two new stamps:—

"During the continuation of the war, new stamps of the 5 and 10 hellers denominations will be issued, which will be sold at 2h above face value, that is, the stamps are sold at 7 and 12h respectively. By purchasing the complete sheet of 80 copies, the price is 5kr 40h and 9kr 35h. The proceeds gained in this way will be devoted to the aid of the widows and orphans of fallen warriors.

"The stamps are 8 mm. longer than the current 5 and 10h stamps, and they bear the design of these, and besides, in the space between the portrait of His Majesty and the figures of value, is placed '1914' in white figures on coloured ground, surrounded by foliage ornament.

"The new stamps will be issued on and after October 4th, 1914.

"Until further notice these stamps may be used, besides those of the current issue, for franking postal matters of the interior service and exchange service with Hungary, Bosnia, Herzegovina, and Germany.

"Exchange or return of these stamps are not entertained."

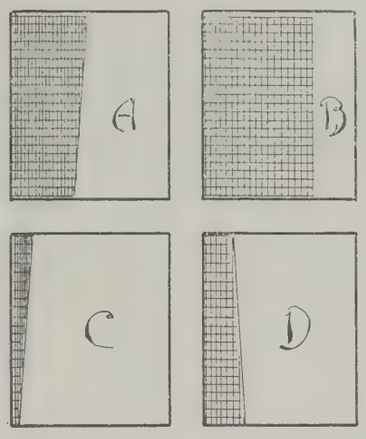
FULTON STAMP CO., 102 West 42nd St., NEW YORK. Postage 4c Extra.



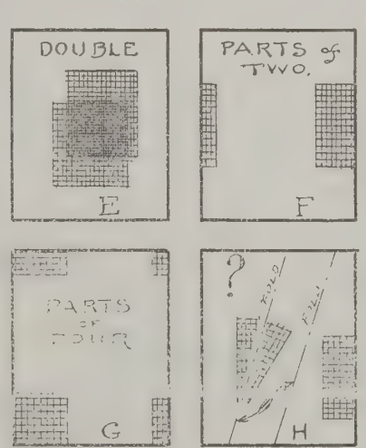
Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE U. S. 3c GREEN, 1870-1887.

By H. L. WILEY.

(Copyrighted, 1914. All rights reserved.)

Marginal Grills.



"MARGINAL" GRILLS.

These grills extend the full length of the stamp, as shown in the illustration. Nearly all of the 1870 series have been found with this marginal grill which was the result of contact between the edge of the stamp and the band of embossing around the end of the grill roller. A sheet of stamps fed into the machine too far to one side or at a slight angle might easily traverse the distance between the regular rectangular grills and the marginal grill. This distance was at least one inch and probably nearer two inches.

The marginal grills are very scarce. The 3c stamp showing this grill is worth at least $2.50.

Double Grills.

GRILL VARIETIES

Double grills are comparatively scarce. They are the result of a second grilling of the sheet. The incentive prompting this process would probably have been an attempt on the part of the operator to rectify the unsatisfactory product of his haste or carelessness. Where the stamp has passed through the grilling machine twice, one grill will generally be found to have been more heavily impressed than the other.

About one sheet in fifty was fed into the machine in a position resulting in the presence of parts of two or four grills on the same stamp. Stamps showing parts of four grills in their true relative positions as illustrated, are rarely seen although they are known to exist. The register of the grilling machine lengthwise of the stamp was evidently susceptible to more perfect regulation than was the transverse register, as the grills are more often out of position transversely than vertically.

Stamps showing various irregular grilled areas caused by folds in the sheet at the time it was fed through the machine are recorded by Luff. These peculiar errors would probably occur only at a corner of the sheet. They are very uncommon, and the "average collector," including the writer have never seen one.

3c 1873, Grilled.

Among other values, a few three cent stamps of the Continental issue were grilled in 1876, forwarded to Washington, and there sold to the public. It is known that a new grill roller was made for this series of grilled stamps. Campbell and Watt, machinists of New York, were the men who made this roller.

This action in grilling these stamps was the result of a suggestion made by officials of the Continental Bank Note Co., during the hearing of a stamp cleaning case in the Federal courts in 1876. The grill roller used in this instance may still exist as the ultimate fate thereof is not available for record. The roller used on the stamps printed by the National Bank Note Company, was destroyed in 1884, as a grill roller. It was transformed into a ticket chopper and was used for destroying tickets which had been used in paying tolls on the Brooklyn Bridge.

Straw Paper.

"STRAW" PAPER AS SEEN IN CONTINENTAL AND AMERICAN ISSUES.

About 10% of the stamps ordinarily accredited to the Continental Bank Note Company show straw fibers in the paper. Practically all of the stamps printed by the American Bank Note Company show these straw fibers and it is possible that the "Continentals" having these fibers are from that indeterminate group printed just before the American company took charge, in the early weeks of 1879, at which date the Continental company had already begun the use of the softer papers which later formed what we know as the "American" paper. This straw paper is not, however, a soft paper. It is firm and snappy and crisp. These stamps range in thickness from .0024" to .0031". Fully 90% of these stamps will measure either .0025" or .0030", the other 10% being "outlaws" of various thickness. The majority of the stamps measure .0025".

The dimensions of the design vary from .775"x.975" to .785"x.990". The average dimension is .7825"x.9825".

The straw fibers are plainly visible to the unaided eye. The color of these fibers is usually light brown, forming a strong contrast with the normal wood fiber. The average fiber length is .03". Copies showing but one fiber should not

Advertising Chat—No. 13.

Space is too valuable this week for us to say very much, but we cannot allow the enterprise of the McGraw Stamp Co. to pass unnoticed. Look where you will in this number and the name of this firm stands out as one compelling patronage. We appreciate the bold stroke in advertising and our readers will no doubt appreciate it also.

As a compliment to the firm we have omitted our regular Melville book advertisement and urge a careful examination of the McGraw advertisement elsewhere. Those books on U. S. stamps are especially attractive.

We welcome Morgan W. Taylor of Hartford, Conn., to our columns this week and trust our subscribers will give him a kindly greeting. Parker's quarter page advertisement should get a goodly patronage.

PHILATELIC HAND BOOKS
Every collector who wishes to be well informed on the subject of stamp collecting should have a certain amount of literature devoted to the subject. This will be found of invaluable interest, and it is left to the taste and inclination of the collector to choose what is desirable along this line.
Many publishers have issued works of a philatelic nature. We list herewith quite a variety of these publications which should not escape the attention of students of philately.

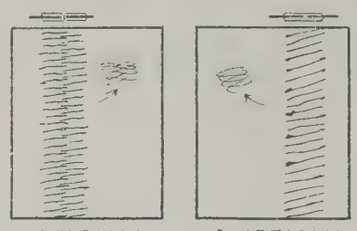
generally be accepted without careful examination. The typical copies used for the above measurements showed from 15 to 25 distinct fibers in each stamp. Holding the stamp to the light often reveals the presence of additional fibers in the interior of the paper structure, thus proving conclusively that the paper pulp contained a percentage of straw and that the visible fibers were not accumulated subsequent to manufacture, by contact with pasteboard, strawboard or straw fiber envelopes. This paper is comparatively common and forms a distinct variety which to the best of my knowledge has never been recognized or previously noted. It deserves exactly the same status as the "rag" papers of a recent date but it will never be as notorious or as valuable. It is too plentiful to afford much amusement for the philatelic crooks identified with some of the darker chapters of the rag paper days but it will no doubt prove to be an interesting detail for the studious collector of these issues.



The "Two-One" Paper.

THE "TWO-ONE" RIBBED PAPER.

This paper was shown to me some months ago by W. L. Stevenson. In looking through an assorted lot of Continental 3c stamps I found two copies in 2,000 stamps examined so I assume that it is fairly scarce. The horizontal ribbing appears to consist of one heavy line followed by two lighter ones, from which the paper has derived its name. It appears somewhat as shown in the illustration. Vertical ribs, similar to the commoner "ribbed paper" are present in the copies which I have seen but they are not as clear as the typical "1-2" horizontal ribs. The heavy lines are spaced about 23 per inch, which, multiplied by three, gives the spacing of heavy and light ribs, which is about 70 per inch. Alternate spaces between heavy ribs seem to be slightly greater than intervening ones. The color is a soft, pale bluish green. The impressions are not sharp. The thickness of the paper is .0027" to .0028".

Stitch Watermarks.

STITCH WATERMARKS.

Approximately one stamp in every thousand should show, in the body of the paper, evidence of the impression made in the wet pulp by the stitches with which the ends of the continuous web of the paper machine were sewed together. On all the specimens which I have seen this "watermark" is vertical. This watermark would invariably be transverse to the "machine direction" of the paper,—that is the direction in which the paper travels through the machine.

This watermark is more easily seen in the thicker papers when the stamp is held so that the light is reflected from it to the eye in a line approximately at right angles to the surface of the stamp. In the thinner papers the stitch watermark is easily seen by holding the stamp to the light. There are peculiar exceptions to both of these rules. The stitches are usually spaced about 40 per inch in the National and Continental issues and 30 per inch in the American and Re-engraved issues.

In the National and earlier Continental stamps the stitches are generally the "over and under" type, similar to that used in sewing the cover upon a baseball, while in the later stamps of the Continental company and in those of the American issues the stitches were the "over and over" type. These differences are easily seen in the resulting watermarks.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—A recent letter from Third Assistant Postmaster General A. M. Dockery to the Managing Editor of the WEEKLY, says that "Coiled postage stamps now have twelve vertical perforations, the number having been changed from ten. It is not contemplated to resume the latter number. The stamps with twelve-hole perforations were first issued by the Department, as follows: 1c, May 29, 1914; 2c, April 25, 1914; 4c October 2, 1914; 5c, June 30, 1914." In order to understand this it is necessary to remember that "twelve-hole perforation" means "perforated 10," as philatelists talk, while the "ten-hole perforation" means "perforated 8½."

FRANCE.—Offices in Morocco.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us a Red Cross stamp issued for the Offices in Morocco. Scott's No. 1625e 10c on 10c rose of 1911, has received the Red Cross and "5c" surcharge, similar to the first Red Cross stamp. The stamp had previously been overprinted "Protectorat—Francais" in small type in black, in two lines, placed between the surcharged value and the Moorish inscription in such a way as to obliterate the three dots of the latter. Evidently this "Protectorat" overprint is a product of the war, and has been issued while the usual sources of information have been closed.

Provisional Adhesive.

10c+5c carmine on red, blue and black.

SWITZERLAND.—J. M. C. Milano calls attention to a minor variety of the 25c Postal Union Jubilee stamp of 1900. In the normal variety the two fine lines surrounding the tablet containing the figure of value are broken at the upper right corner, and at the top a third short line has been added in the centre. This variety is the only one thus far found in the three values. Mr. Milano has found 25c stamps, both used and unused, which have the two lines perfect and unbroken, without the third line at top. There are other minor differences and differing shades of the ink used. This is not the re-engraved as given by Scott. Here's a chance to study an interesting stamp.

If you expect to buy every stamp you need at 50% discount or less, these offers will not appeal to you as we have to pay more ourselves, and being dealers, we must make a profit or quit.

Below we give a list of stamps all on original covers, and of which we have a very limited supply. Therefore we can sell only one cover of each of these to a customer with the understanding that they remain unsold on the receipt of your order, none of these stamps are perfect as to centering and we offer them as they run. If sold out, money will be immediately refunded. We do not send on approval.

CIVIL WAR ENVELOPES

It has been the fashion during the great conflict between the North and South in the days of '61 to use pictorial envelopes having Union or Secession sentiments printed thereon. Some of these designs are ornate and of a general character, while others are of a decided personal flavor, and caricaturized quite severely the leading men and principles of the North and South.

We were fortunate in purchasing an exceptionally fine and large collection of these envelopes, which is the largest assortment that we have ever seen, and whether these envelopes are collectible or not, there still remains a historical interest in them, and every collector of United States Stamps should have some of these envelopes represented in his collection. We can offer these envelopes at the rate of FIVE ALL DIFFERENT for FIFTY CENTS, or ELEVEN ALL DIFFERENT for ONE DOLLAR. All nice and clean and no postmarks.

THE NEW TOGOLAND STAMPS.

Just as we go to press, Martin A. McGoff has furnished us with the first details of the new overprinted stamps of this late German Colony.

The new provisional set consists of the current "Togo" German Colonial ship type series overprinted in heavy type in three lines in black: TOGO—ANGLO-FRENCH — OCCUPATION.

As is now generally known, the ordinary stamps of the Gold Coast were used in this newly acquired territory prior to the appearance of the overprinted set. The postmark employed to cancel the Gold Coast stamps bore the words "Lome-Togogebiet" (Lome-Togo Province).

As regards the new stamps, we are informed that the highest value so far seen is the 80pf, but it is more than probable that the four mark values have also received the overprint of occupation.—Stamp Collecting.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

HANDLING STOCK.

In modern business, efficiency is the order of the day. Every industry has come to look upon high efficiency as an exponent of success. Fifty years ago, a factory was satisfied with the difference between its products' selling price and cost. To-day, however, the live manufacturer must know not only the cost of his raw material, but the amount of labor involved in performing every process, in order that he may run his plant at the highest efficiency and thereby reduce his costs. The same idea is in the mind of every modern business man. Where a few years ago the letter press and copy book was in vogue, to-day the carbon copy and letter file is used, merely to save time and increase efficiency.

Unfortunately for the growth of the business, the stamp dealers are only waking up and beginning to see things in a modern light. Many dealers are still using the methods prescribed by their grandfathers, and are hampered by systems that should have found rest in the grave with the gentlemen aforementioned. If a stamp dealer is doing business for profit, why lose any of it by decayed business methods? To insure efficiency, every dealer should study the smallest details of his business, and eliminate and condense wherever possible. By carefully working out a system, it is possible to cut out some unnecessary handling of stock, thus saving time and decreasing the wear and tear on the stock by this useless handling, a factor to be considered by every stamp dealer.

In the matter of equipment, the writer begs to make a few suggestions, based on his experience with the various articles necessary to the business. In buying stock books, only those with interchangeable leaves and of uniform size should be considered. It is far easier to move a leaf from one binder to another as occasion may require, than to move each stamp from one page to another. There are several very good lines of stock books on the market. Of course, for quantity lots, a pocket stock book is the only kind practical, and the same remarks apply to these books. For counter books, a printed album of standard make is the most advisable, and the style printed on only one side of the paper is the most desirable. Dealers can usually procure these books through buying a collection, thus saving much labor in mounting. Every dealer should have a set of these books whether he does a counter trade or not, as they are useful in finding stamps when wanted for lists or otherwise. If possible, a set should be kept for unused, and another for used specimens. Whenever a new stamp is received, it should be placed in this collection in its respective place. In this way, the dealer can readily find a stamp wanted without causing unnecessary delay to his customer or loss of his valuable time. (A stamp dealer's time is worth something. Bear this in mind, and don't forget to include it in your cost. If you were not attending to the stamp business, you could be doing something else for profit). More sales are lost and customers disgusted by the popular phrase, "I have it around the place somewhere, but can't find it," than by almost any other reason. A. keeps his stamps in a dozen different places and hunts all over when he wants to find a stamp. He remembers he saw it last month on an approval card somewhere. B. puts his stamps in their place as received, and knows where they are in the dark. Who gets the business? Who makes the most profit?

In my opinion, the following equipment is necessary: a set of albums, or two sets if possible; a stock book (or books, depending on the stock) for surplus copies up to ten of a kind for used stamps, a similar book for unused (separate pages may be used at first, or used may be arranged at the left of the line and unused at the right, or vice versa) also a book for blocks, strips, and covers. As the stock grows, more books will be necessary, but these should be a continuation of the ones first used. A stock book size 10 inches by 12 inches, or thereabouts, is the most practical. Do not get too small a book. At the present time I am making no allowance for equipment needed for an approval department, as this will be treated separately in a later issue.

In handling the stamps and books, use care, as the less wear, the greater the profit. Pocket stock books have several ugly habits, such as tearing the stamps and perforations, and are also liable to become loose at the pockets, if overcrowded. Most books are designed to accommodate five layers of stamps to the pocket, and no more than this should be put into a pocket. Also, much strain is removed by lapping the stamps a little. While this takes up more room, it also allows one to get an idea of the appearance of each stamp without removing the whole lot. The less the stamps are removed from the pockets, the better for both.

In handling my own stock, I put all copies in excess of ten in envelopes and file them in tin boxes, first by country and then by number. On the envelope, besides the name of the country, the number, year and value, I put my cost per ten in code. If only one stamp is added, I multiply its cost by ten to get the necessary cost price. In using a code, it is advisable to select a word of ten letters, letting the initial represent one, and the final represent naught. These letter combinations will tell at a glance the cost of the stamp or lot, and selling price may be fixed accordingly. This code comes in very handy especially when more expensive pieces are handled. The code word is very easy to remember and is generally more satisfactory than a number code (which is often confused by the customer to mean the real cost, and false impressions as to profit arise).

In caring for stamps, it is advisable to use a stamp tongs whenever possible, instead of the fingers. Finger marks never added value to any stamp. Also, when mounting, use a first class hinge on all except the very cheap stamps for approval purposes. The new tasteless hinges are to be commended. They give satisfaction and the user does not find it as necessary to run down to the corner to wash away the taste as heretofore and thus time and expense are saved.

In handling rare stamps or extra fine copies of good stamps, it is an excellent plan to enclose them in small transparent envelopes, as this saves much handling. The writer recently had a magnificent copy of an early U. S. stamp damaged by taking it out of a stock book to show, and replacing it. Also, the larger transparent envelopes may be cut into sections and used. The four corners are best.

Remember: the less motion and time lost, the greater the profit. Save time by putting your stamps in the right place the first time you handle them. Don't move them onto a card for future attention. Do it now. You'll have something else to do in the future, and may need the stamp before then. It is too easy to accumulate a bunch of job lots and miscellaneous boxes and envelopes full of stamps. A prominent Western dealer has stamps in his stock which have stayed there over twenty years. He is just learning system, and it is probable that the stamps will move quicker after he learns it.

We will now consider that the reader has digested the preceding remarks, and we will consider that he is sufficiently equipped to handle a mixed lot of stamps just received.

In the first place, the lot should be sorted into the different varieties. Secondly, the best one of every kind should be mounted in the reference or counter collection. If there are more than one of a kind, or are duplicates to the counter collection, these duplicates should be filed in the pocket stock books. All over ten should be filed in envelopes. After the reserve stock is taken out, the dealer may, if he pleases, turn the lot over to the approval department for disposal. The cost of the lot should be noted, and prices marked accordingly. In every lot there are certain damaged and undesirables. These damaged should be put into a sealed box with a hole in the top, kept for such purpose, and when the box is full, it should be destroyed, or perhaps, donated to some one who could make use of it, but never sold. Also, it is often better to sell many odds and ends at a sacrifice rather than handle them, therefore boxes for 1c, 2c, etc., may be kept, and certain stamps put therein for disposal at those prices. This last feature can often be turned to advantage by mixing a few bargains in the lot, and making up one cent approvals, for advertising purposes, to attract trade.

All blocks, errors, etc., should be consigned to the book kept for them, and should be treated specially.

The dealer must work his own system out for himself. The writer will be pleased to hear from dealers on this subject, and articles dealing with same will appear from time to time. In working out a system, try to handle the stamps as few times as possible, and with as much speed and as little motion as possible. These items appear small, but aggregate a great deal. Success is founded on attention to the small details.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. H. R.—Missionary stamps are those gathered by the foreign missions, and while they usually contain only the cheaper varieties, occasional good stamps are found. These are usually picked out by the dealer, and seldom reach the collector, even in unpicked lots. Experiences have on the whole been so unsatisfactory that I cannot recommend the purchase of stamps by the pound.

BRITISH SAMOA PROVISIONALS.

While many of us were not surprised to learn that Samoa had been occupied by an Expeditionary Force from New Zealand, there was a good deal of speculation as to how the occupation would affect the stamps of that territory. Contrary to our anticipation, the Samoan (ship type) stamps were overprinted G.R.I. in type 6 mm. tall, and the denominations altered to English money.

From information received, we understand that only a small stock of German Samoan stamps was found. We are also informed that there was a tremendous rush for these stamps, that very few were sold to the public, only one stamp was allowed to be put on each envelope, and in most cases the envelope had to be stamped in the presence of an official. The first letters we received with new stamps are postmarked 5th September, and we take that to be the date about which they were available. In addition to the first lot of stamps we have heard from several sources that there is a 1sh denomination as well, but we have not seen it, nor have our Apia friends mentioned it.

Unused specimens of this first provisional British Samoan issue will most likely be exceedingly scarce. Even used specimens will be difficult to get, for, as most of the members of the expeditionary force belong to New Zealand, the probabilities are that the letters bearing the stamps went to that country. The cancellation on the stamps appears to be the old one with the word "Apia" at top of the circle, "Samoa" at the bottom, and the date in a straight line across the middle. On all the copies we have, it is very indistinct, apparently having been done by an amateur.

Everything seemed to be topsy-turvy, but apparently instructions were sent to New Zealand, asking for a supply of stamps, and six denominations were overprinted with the word "Samoa" and despatched to that territory on 18th September. These will most likely be plentiful enough.

The overprint on the New Zealand stamps is in orange-red on the ½d, 2d, and 2½d, and deep blue on the 1d, 6d, and 1sh. The colours of the stamps are the same as those of the current New Zealand stamps of similar values.

It seems to us, however, that the New Zealanders are a little "previous," for should the Germans win, they would probably insist up on the "pearl of the Pacific" being handed back to them. We do not know the intentions of the British authorities. The seizure was no doubt made with their sanction; but still, part of the settlement after the war might mean that Germany would be permitted to retain Samoa. Of course, on the other hand, it may have been already arranged, between Great Britain and New Zealand, that if the latter took Samoa, she would be allowed to keep it. Up to the present, however, there has not been any announcement to that effect.

It is interesting to note that in order to provide sufficient of the ½d stamps, the 3pf ship type was used as well as the 5pf. The former is a breach of the Postal Union regulations, which require that all stamps of ½d, or its equivalent, shall be green, but, needless to say, not only Postal Union regulations, but hosts of other regulations, are being ignored at the present time.

Since writing the above, we have received information that the full set of ship type stamps up to 5 marks has been overprinted G.R.I. and surcharged in English currency, the additional denominations being:—

9d on 80pf
1sh on 1 mark
2sh on 2 marks
3sh on 3 marks
5sh on 5 marks

Enormous prices are being paid in Apia for all values.—Aust. Stamp Journal.

SALVADOR

A Rarity. 1896. Official issue. 2c dark brown with double surcharge. (Scott's No. 602a). Only one sheet of one hundred stamps was discovered and the error is much scarcer than No. 617a which is priced in Gibbons' at $15.00.

It is a real rarity but a fortunate purchase enables me to offer a few mint specimens at the special bargain price of $3.00 per stamp. Only 20 for disposal at this figure.

THANK YOU!

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The P. O. Department has sent out a notice ordering postmasters to discontinue receiving parcel post packages for mailing to places in the Ottoman Empire.

—Santa Claus letters may be delivered by the postmaster of every town or city to any responsible charitable institutions or reputable individuals who may desire to use them exclusively for philanthropic purposes. If there is a loud call for these letters, postmasters can divide them up in such proportion as he pleases. If there be no call for them at all, they will go to the dead letter office.

—C. V. Webb, secretary of the Southern Philatelic Association, announces that his next monthly report will contain over seventy applications for membership. This is a record report never before equalled in the history of the Association.

—W. J. Stanton submits for our inspection two Mexican covers of interest. One is prepaid with the 10c re-issued Sonora with green seal but is cancelled with the word "Mexico" in large letters. It is explained that when the Villa forces took possession of Nogales, Sonora, the Carranza postmaster took across the line with him all the office equipment. A rubber stamp cancellation was therefore used for two or three days. The other cover shows a pair of the 5c green, eagle type, cancelled with a Wells Fargo & Co. rubber stamp. Under the Mexican law all sealed letters sent by express must bear the same postage stamps as though sent through the mails, the express agent cancelling them with the office stamp.

—One of our friends has been kind enough to send us five new yearly subscriptions of collectors, all of whom are employed by the Corn Exchange National Bank of Chicago.

—The Co-operative Exchange would like to know the present address of S. E. Morse, formerly 452 Pine St., Manchester, N. H.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Hugo Kuenstler (3).

—The Ellis (Mass.) Philatelic Club met Nov. 13th. A paper was read on "Postal Cards." The issues of the "U. S. 1847-1914" will be taken up in part at next meeting.

—The first meeting of the Western Philatelic Association was held at the rooms of the Atma Vidya Studio, in the Aetna Building, 1010 Broadway, Oakland, California, on the evening of November 11th. A permanent organization has been effected. The association will hold regular meetings on Thursday evenings of each week at the above address. The following officers were chosen pending the adoption of a constitution and by-laws:—President, Dr. John F. Killeen; Secretary, Oliver G. Beardslee; and Treasurer, Henry Loeb.

—Mr. Ohlman withdraws his complaint against R. C. Surbridge of Des Moines, Ia. The account has been settled.

NOTES ON NEW ISSUES.

Samoa.—We have just received information from Sydney that the German Samoa stamps have been overprinted "G. R. I." and value in British currency, the following being the denominations already seen:—½d on 3pf, ½d on 5pf, 1d on 10pf, 2½d on 20pf, 3d on 25pf, 4d on 30pf, 5d on 40pf, and 6d on 50pf. We are informed that as the stock available is very small, nobody is allowed to purchase the stamps in quantity, only sufficient being supplied to pay actual postage on letters, in most cases only one stamp being allowed for each envelope. It will, therefore, be obvious that it is impossible for us to obtain these stamps in sufficient quantity for our New Issue Service, if indeed we get any at all.

Togoland.—The German stamps for this colony have been overprinted in three lines "TOGO—ANGLO-FRENCH OCCUPATION," but without additional overprint of value. We have a standing order for any provisional stamps that may be issued in this place, but it is doubtful whether we shall be allowed to purchase these in quantity; should we get sufficient, we shall send them to our New Issue subscribers when received.

Hungary.—Two war stamps have just been issued in this country. They are the 5 and 10 filler "inundation" stamps of 1913, overprinted in black in the center of the stamp "Hadi segély" (War Relief), and on the label at foot, obliterating the original inscription, "Ozvegyeknek és árváknak két (2) fillér" (for the widows and orphans, 2 fillers). The stamps are sold at 7 and 12 filler respectively, the extra 2 filler being given to the fund for the relief of widows and orphans of Hungarian soldiers killed in the war. As the importation of these stamps is forbidden we shall not be able to include them in our New Issue distribution.

Belgium.—As most of our subscribers already know, current German postage stamps have been issued for use in those Belgian towns and districts which are now in German occupation. The stamps are overprinted with the word "Belgien" and values in centimes, the denominations being as follow:—3 centimes on 3 pfennige, 5c on 5pf, 10c on 10pf and 25c on 20pf.

These stamps are still in use and are also on sale in stamp shops in Holland, Denmark and other neutral countries, at about the usual prices charged for current issues. A correspondent in Holland offered to supply us with any quantity we might require, at sixpence per complete set of four, the offer being coupled with the condition that the stamps must be sent at our risk, as they might possibly not be passed by the Censor. Another customer in Holland sent us on approval, without any order from us, 1,000 each of the 5c and 10c stamps in part payment of our account against him. The stamps were invoiced as follow:—

1,000 "Belgien stamps," 5c on 5pf, Marks 50.
1,000 "Belgien stamps," 10c on 10pf, Marks 100.
Commission and expenses 20%, Marks 30.

These stamps came in a registered letter which was opened and passed by the Censor. What we desire to draw special attention to is the fact that the face value is charged in German money, which is 21% higher than the surcharged value in centimes, and this leads us to suppose that the stamps were never in Belgium, but were bought in Berlin, where they are sold at the Beuthstrasse Post Office. We are confirmed in this opinion by another correspondent, who writes us that the stamps are not yet on sale in Antwerp. The sender of the stamps also stated that 1,000 each of the 3c and 25c stamps would follow in a few days, these have not been received. The whole of the stamps received by us have been returned to Holland, and we may here state, in answer to numerous enquiries from our New Issue Subscribers, that no new stamps, provisional or otherwise, issued by either of the enemy countries since the commencement of the war, will be imported by us, or dealt in directly or indirectly. On the recapture of Belgian towns now in German occupation, the stamps in the Post Offices may be seized, and thus become spoils of war, when it will be legal to deal in them, and not before. We have not the slightest doubt that the stamps are on sale in Berlin in unlimited numbers, and that the sale at face value will continue there after the war is over, but if not, the German stamp dealers will take care to lay in large stocks to be sold when the markets are open again.—Whitfield King's List.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Something To Ponder—Through the courtesy of Mr. W. H. McDonald, we are enabled to quote the following clipping from the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin of ———, 1862: "Rebeldom Highly Indignant.—'Yankee Trick.' Philadelphia Confederate Bonds. Detective Goodrich of the Rebel Treasury Department, has exhibited to the editor of the Richmond Dispatch what he terms 'the last and grossest piece of Yankee scoundrelism, and an infernal means to discredit the currency of our Southern Confederacy.' 'It consists,' says the Dispatch, 'in well executed counterfeits of the Confederate notes and stamps." The clipping continues: "The 'Yankee Scoundrel' who has counterfeited these valuable notes is Mr. S. C. Upham, 403 Chestnut Street. He has issued fac-similes of seven kinds of rebel shinplasters and two denominations of their notes. He has also issued exact copies of rebel postage stamps of three kinds, the five and ten cent stamps issued by the Confederate Government, and the five cent stamp got up by Mr. J. S. Riddell, the postmaster at New Orleans, and bearing his name. Mr. Upham sells these fac-similes very cheap; but they certainly bring as much as the originals are worth." This newspaper notice becomes the more significant when considered in connection with the following advertisement, which, in part, we quote: "Rebel Notes and Postage Stamps. The undersigned has published fac-similes of thirty-five different Rebel Notes and Postage Stamps, which will be found curious as well as interesting mementos of the Rebellion. Perfect fac-similes of the originals (printed on French paper, in red, green and black ink), sold by the 100 or 1,000 at the following low rates:—50 cents per 100, or $5 per 1,000 . . . . N. B.—Agents and others ordering by the 100 or 1,000, to be sent by mail, are required to enclose, in addition to the price of the notes ordered, 18 cents to prepay postage on each hundred ordered. Etc., Etc., S. C. Upham, 403 Chestnut St., Philadelphia , Pa."

In His Own Words—We have before us a copy of a letter written by Mr. Sam'l C. Upham from No. 25 South Eighth Street, Philadelphia, October 12, 1874, which tells of the inception of Mr. Upham's idea and the successful execution of his plan: " . . I have to state that I commenced printing fac-simile rebel notes in the early part of the month of March, 1862. By reference to my memorandum book, I perceive that I printed from the 12th of March, 1862, to the 1st of August, 1863, one million, five hundred and sixty-four thousand and fifty fac-simile Rebel notes of denominations ranging from five cents to one hundred dollars, and presume the aggregate issue in dollars and cents would amount to the round number of fifteen millions of dollars. In the year 1863, two individuals in New York (Haney & Hilton, the former since deceased) copied several of my fac-simile notes, and I have been told, sold large quantities to bogus Jew cotton brokers and other scalawags, who passed through the Confederate lines and purchased cotton from the Rebel planters. None of the designs of the notes were original with me. My fac-similes were all engraved from original notes, for some of which I paid three times their face value in gold. . . . In 1862, I occupied the premises No. 403 Chestnut Street, where I sold patent medicines, perfumery, stationery, and newspapers, foreign and domestic. In the early part of March of that year there was a great demand for a certain issue of the Philadelphia Daily Inquirer, published by Wm. W. Harding, Esq., which contained a fac-simile of a $5 Confederate note, the first that had been seen this side of the rebel lines. I immediately called on Mr. Harding, purchased an electrotype plate of the $5 note, and had three thousand copies printed on French letter paper. They sold like 'hot cakes,' at one cent each. I supplied the trade at fifty cents per hundred notes. On the margin of each and every note was printed 'Fac-simile Confederate notes sold, wholesale and retail, by S. C. Upham, 403 Chestnut Street, Philad.'" Other notes were printed by Mr. Upham so soon as he could obtain an electroytype plate of each variety and he sold the fac-similes at a uniform price. "I sold a $100 fac-simile note at the same price I charged for a five-cent shinplaster. I sold the notes as curiosities—mementos of the rebellion—and advertised them as such in several of the most widely circulated papers in the Union. I printed in all twenty-eight different varieties of fac-simile Rebel notes and shinplasters, and fifteen different postage stamps. During the publication of these fac-simile notes, I was the 'best abused man' (by the rebels) in the Union. Senator Foote, in a speech before the rebel Congress, at Richmond, in 1862, said I had done more to injure the Confederate cause than General McClellan and his army. Since the close of the war I have learned that President Jeff. Davis during the rebellion offered a reward of ten thousand dollars for my corpus, dead or alive."

The Fac-simile Confederates—We shall consider only the Upham Confederate stamp issues made during the period March 12, 1862 to August 1st, 1863. In the Evening Bulletin notice, Mr. Upham is said to have issued three different stamps, the five and ten cent (of the 1861 issue) and a five cent, New Orleans, "got up by J. S. Riddell"; and in his advertisement "thirty-five different Rebel Notes and Postage Stamps" are offered by Mr. Upham. In the letter written in 1874, "twenty-eight notes and shinplasters and fifteen different postage stamps" are given by Mr. Upham as the total issue. The fac-simile stamps must have been in some demand to justify the increase in the number of stamps in the series, from three to fifteen varieties. As by no means there are fifteen varieties of design in the general issue Confederate, it may be inferred that locals other than the New Orleans five cent were included in the assortment. These issues of fac-similes of the Confederates in 1862 and 1863 were not inspired by any expectation of philatelic demand as at the time stamp collecting was a negligible quantity. It would be interesting to know more about the Upham counterfeits,—the certain stamps that they imitated and the characteristics of the printings. Information is desired particularly as to the counterfeit New Orleans and other locals and we have no doubt but that these first of all counterfeits would be of value in certain phases of research work in the Confederate issues.

Another One—We have seen the following inscription on a letter sent unsealed from Hamburg, Germany, to Chicago. The notice is in postmark form and reads: "Uberwachungstelle (Prufungstelle) des IX Armeekorps, Hamburg."

* * *

An English Observation—We were interested to find certain of our remarks in the issue of September 26th, 1914, attracted the attention of the London Philatelist for October. From its leading article, "America and Europe," we take the following excerpts: "In this fearful European crisis the great importance of the United States of America, as the only one of the four greatest powers in the world not involved, is becoming increasingly apparent. . . . The interests of the two great Anglo-Saxon communities are intimately interwoven in all phases of life, and in none more closely than in Philately. The influences of the United States upon the pursuit, both from a financial and philatelic aspect, have been more and more in evidence during the succeeding decades. In this crisis, which so seriously affects us all, it is therefore agreeable to learn that American Philately is by no means inclined to take a despondent view of things."

Advertising Chat—No. 14.

Again this week space is valuable, but we must take a few lines to comment on this week's business.

We have four quarter pages this week, from Krassa, Parker, Drew and Hussman, which shows that our unparallelled advertising offer is being appreciated. Note especially the Parker advertisement where a third column of offers is obtained by the payment of $2 extra.

C. G. Dietrich, a Liverpool, England, stamp merchant of long standing, has taken up his residence in Brooklyn and will be found regularly in our columns hereafter. Mr. Dietrich has advertised in the WEEKLY in previous years and we are glad to welcome him as a regular patron.

The Manhattan Stamp Co. has an announcement of interest this week, and the manager, Mr. Miller, writes us that he intends to use the WEEKLY regularly. Jacques Krebs is taking occasional space and he will be remembered as an old-time advertiser in the WEEKLY.

All in all, for a regular number this issue of the WEEKLY shows a lively condition of business in the stamp trade. All live firms are represented in our columns.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

THE PERFECT PHILATELIST.

VOLUME ONE. Originated, Owned and Operated By Parnassus Penflip NUMBER ONE.

Editorial.

"Per Angusta ad Augusta.'

I have heard the call and I obey. Friends unnumbered have beseeched me to take philatelic pen in hand and write in iridescent letters of philately's estate, present and future. Feeling that the venal philatelic press represses the soul of the philatelic freedman and that by contributing living words to its columns, I stultify myself, I have hoisted my gonfalon; and beholding it on high, the despairing multitudes may take heart again. Poising my lanceolate pen, I shall lead my matchless hosts against the ramparts of error and plant the banner of truth on the highest parapet. The PERFECT PHILATELIST is here and the minions of darkness and the tyrant clan gaze on the lambent figure with eyes of dread apprehension; and well they may, for I, Parnassus Penflip, speak.

* * * *

Mayhap, it came to the ears of the publishers of the WEEKLY that I was to launch my dreadnaught, and peradventure, fear was distilled in their minds, impelling them to offer me space in their columns over which it was vouchsafed that I am to reign supreme,—untrammeled by pusillanimous doubts, questions of business diplomacy or petty pecuniary problems. E'en so, I accept the pledge on its face and to the world I say that if they have ulterior motives or think to fetter the independent thought that throbs in my paper, thunderbolts of righteousness will affright them and shafts of virtue will blind their eyes.

* * * *

Like some proud planet surrounded by its satellites, I shall marshall an army of contributors whose like no philatelic paper has ever seen before. Names to conjure with will be found signed to the incomparable contents of this palladium of philately. Scan the following list and feel the surge of exultation around your heart. Count Lapp de Booz; Sinpod, the Stamp Sage; Miss Gushie Gurgle; Embossed Emil; H. Wesley Legg; Percivale Nitwit, D. F., P. O. D., D. L. O., etc.; W. Hamilton Barnum; Beller, Our War Correspondent and Parnassus Penflip. (Note to printer: Use caps.—P. P.)

Abyssinia and Its Stamps.

By PERCIVAL E. NITWIT, D. F.; P. O. D.; D. L. O., etc.

It is reliably established that Abyssinia is a part of the Dark Continent. Its issues are prolific in shades, blacks predominating. One always turns first to Abyssinia in one's album.

(In the next number, our celebrated specialist will have another exhaustive stamp study.)

Sinpod the Stamp Sage Says

That in the first number of a stamp paper the announcement was made that the monthly had come to stay and that it is still being published.

That an expert said several years ago that a certain stamp was likely to increase in price and recent editions of the catalogue have borne out the prediction.

The Count Collects His Thoughts.

Philatelic psychologists will be interested in a dark chapter from my life which will account for my mysterious disappearance from the haunts of men. My last recollection is that I attended a banquet of the New England Philatelic Association and American Envelope Society (Consolidated) where, I was told, I was the life of the party. Inexplicably, a sudden languor overcame me and nepenthe was enthroned. I have just awakened on a solitary isle, one of the Kerguelens, I take it. More anon when I get my bearings. I send this by Marconigram.

COUNT LAPP DE BOOZ.

The Desperate Dilemna of Robert Harbinger or How Majolica Ware Was Wooed and Won.

By MISS GUSHIE GURGLE.
Author of "The Philatelic Cupid,"; "The Love Affairs of Bill Bloss," etc.

CHAPTER I.

As our hero swung along Center Street with manly stride many a fair maid fetched an involuntary sigh, but our hero, Robert Harbinger, saw not the fluttering bosoms, aye, not even that of Majolica Ware, the banker's daughter, for his thoughts were far away and his noble countenance wore a look of ineffable sadness.

CHAPTER II.

Robert Harbinger lived with his widowed mother in a miserable hovel on the outskirts of the village of Squatdale, and the poor home, for be it ever so humble there is no place like it, groaned under the weight of a mortgage for fifteen thousand dollars which was held by the banker, Majolica Ware's father, a cold, shrewd man who had no pity in his vitals.

CHAPTER III.

The mortgage was due on the morrow. "Mother," faltered our hero, "we shall lose our happy home," and tears glistened in the handsome orbs of our hero. "Hold," he said, and Robert's face was tense with stern resolve; "all is not lost; nil desperandum!" With buoyant step, he sought his couch to woo sweet slumber.

CHAPTER IV.

The following morning ere golden Phoebus had arisen, our hero was awaiting the arrival of the leading stamp dealer of Squatdale at his office. After a wait of many hours, Robert Harbinger was bartering with him for the sale of his modest collection. "No," said the dealer, "I can give you but twelve thousand dollars cash for your album. You see it catalogues but twelve thousand seven dollars and surely I am entitled to some profit." With a reluctant sigh our hero accepted the twelve crisp thousand dollar bills and choking back a sob, he left the shop. Where were the remaining three thousand dollars to come from to satisfy the mortgage?

Did Not Tip Barber.

"A dealer says that one of the stamps has 'face scraped.' Serves it right for patronizing a lady barber," writes Embossed Emil.

We Pin A Medal On Him.

The Parnassus Penflip prize for the display of philatelic courage is hereby awarded to Mr. Pibble who, when his wife told him that she had taken a lot of unused United States stamps out of his album to pay the postage on some heavy packages that she mailed, batted not an eye, but smole a sweet sad smile.

Publisher's Announcement.

Parnassus Penflip will deign to examine manuscripts submitted for publication and those that are found acceptable will be printed with no charge to the authors.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

BOSNIA.—The Stamp Lover notes the addition of a 10k value to the current set. It was issued in September.

Adhesive.

10k blue.

CANAL ZONE.—The Isthmus is to have a set of pictorial postage due stamps. A. C. Roessler informs us that a special set of four values is being engraved for the Panama Government, and will be overprinted for use in the Canal Zone.

CUBA.—Whitfield King & Co. has shown us the stamp issued to commemorate the Centenary of the poetess Gertrudis Gomez de Avellaneda, as announced some time since. The design is a horizontal oblong, measuring 35x21 mm., and shows a portrait of the poetess in a large circle with name in small letters below and "Republica de Cuba," in large letters in a curved line at the top. Just under this is "Correos" at the left, and "Ano 1914" at the right. In tablets at the sides is printed "Fue la mas grande entre las" at the left and poetisas de todos los tiempos" at the right, each part of the legend being in three lines. Ovals in the lower corners contain the figures of value, with the value in words repeated twice. The stamps are printed on white wove paper and perforated 12.

Commemorative Adhesive.

5c dark blue.

GREAT BRITAIN.—Frank M. Mason sends us the 2sh 6d King George stamp overprinted "Morocco—Agencies" in two lines like the 5sh value, Scott's No. 1236, but without new value.

Adhesive.

Overprinted "Morocco Agencies" alone.
2sh 6d dark brown; overprint black.

HONDURAS.—Jacques Krebs has shown us a vertical pair of the lithographed 6c gray violet of 1913-14, imperforate between.

MEXICO.—We are indebted to W. J. Stanton for a very interesting letter dealing with the Sonora issues. We quote from his letter as follows:—

"In regard to the rubber stamp reading Mexico, and used for two or three days in Nogales, this is a substitute postmark rendered necessary as the office was stripped bare of office equipment, when the Villa people took charge. Some Mexicans are sending out unused second issue, re-issued, and stamped with this postmark, claiming it is a surcharge. Such is not the case.

I am enclosing some varieties in the Villa issue. You will note that the arrangement of the 5c is not at all regular, no two stamps being in the same vertical line. I also enclose a strip of 2c in which one stamp appears to have a shade distinct from the other three.

I have received but a single sheet of the 10c and that was a "rush order" from an official. You will note that it appears in the same color scheme as the 1c. Do not know whether it is an error or not, as I have been unable to obtain any more of this denomination. The very first printing of the 5c was in an entirely different shade from the subsequent printing, the two half sheets being distinct shades, and each different from the present printings."

The California Stamp Co. has shown us another value in the new Sonora type-set issue. This is the 20c, the design being the same as the 1c, 2c, and 5c previously chronicled. The background is in orange, the seal in yellow green and the inscription and frame in black.

20c black, yellow green and orange.

D. W. Hulburd writes as follows regarding the discussion in regard to the Sonora type-set re-issues:

"Apropos the discussion with reference to the so-called re-issue of Sonora green seals, let me say that I have a cover, bearing the 10c with black roulette, dated 'Nogales, Son. July 13, 1913,' on front and receipt cancellation on back 'Guyamas, Son. July 14, 1913'; both cancellations are plain and prove conclusively that there were issued some, at least, of the 10c with black roulette, when the issue first came out, and that the stamps now released and called re-issues, may well be a portion of the supply left on hand last year, though but few of the 10c with the black roulette seem to have been issued at that time. I am not a specialist in Sonoras, but having the cover described, and noting the omission of the 10c with black roulette, in looking over the check lists, the fact seemed of sufficient interest to warrant my calling your attention to it."

J. P. Crawford notes that the 50c and $1 values of the so-called "$" issue, has the overprint in larger type than the low values, with a "V" in between the lines.

W. J. Stanton writes as follows:—"I have just received a cover with a 2c re-issued "green seal" perf. 11½. My correspondent says he has several copies of the 1, 2 and 5c perf. and on covers. I have handled over 700 copies of the re-issue, all used, and have never seen this issue perf. I believe it is a private perforation. The copy submitted is postmarked in Guaymas in October and I have several within two or three days of the same date, but none have the perforation. My correspondent also submits the first printing of the 5c Villa issue (orange background) very poorly perforated and unused. Will have official information on this in a few days and will advise you."

UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA.—Frank M. Mason has shown us the current ½d stamp, from a coil like the 1d noted in No. 1245. The stamps are perforated 14 horizontally and imperforate vertically.

WATCH OMAHA'S SOCIETY.

A meeting of Omaha stamp collectors was held Wednesday evening, November 11, at the office of F. S. Parmelee, the well known Omaha dealer, and the gathering included several old timers, who were members of the Omaha branch of the A. P. S., as well as a number of new faces, and a great deal of interest was shown at the meeting. While this first gathering was informal in nature, it was the unanimous sentiment of those present that a permanent organization be effected, and Messrs. F. S. Parmelee, H. A. Whipple and Ora E. Stark were appointed a committee on organization. A meeting will be held Nov. 27, at 210 First National Bank Building, when it is expected that the club will be permanently established. The superb United States collection of Mr. R. C. Hoyt will be shown at this meeting. It is desired that all collectors in Omaha and vicinity who have not already joined in the movement, communicate with Ora E. Stark, 22nd and Hickory Streets, Omaha, Neb.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

CONDUCTING APPROVAL BUSINESS.

Unless a stamp dealer has an exceptional local trade, or devotes his attention to auction sales or wholesale business, he must depend on mail business for a considerable portion of his sales. While many dealers do not carry on an approval business, the vast majority do, and this method of purchasing stamps has grown far more popular with collectors than any other method, chiefly because it affords the purchaser an opportunity of seeing the stamp before buying.

The approval business may be roughly divided into two sections, "kid" business and high-class. If the dealer is in position to devote most of his time to the business, and can secure the assistance of several clerks (girls preferred) he will find the boy business well worth going after. The boys prefer low priced stamps retailing generally from one to ten cents, seldom higher. The larger and more brilliant the stamp, the better. This class of stock wholesales from 10% to 20% of catalogue and allows a fine margin of profit, if enough can be sold. This last condition applies more to the ability of the dealer to handle the trade rather than to the difficulty of securing business. Boy business is practically unlimited. Last year the writer inserted four half-inch advertisements in the American Boy, Boys' Magazine, and St. Nicholas magazines, using all three in December and one in November. Nearly eight hundred replies resulted from these two inches of space. Had the writer been able to handle this volume of business, and to properly circularize and premiumize the boys, it is probable that several thousand customers would have resulted, as each boy can be depended upon to send around at least five friends, and the chances are that these friends will do their part, etc. If the dealer puts out a good line of approvals, he will have little trouble in securing all the business he can handle. The sales from this class of business are generally small, and the expense of handling is practically the same as though the stock was high grade. Therefore, though the margin of profit is great, it is necessary to sell an immense quantity of goods in order to realize a material profit. It is practically impossible for a dealer to handle this class of trade himself, without assistance, though it has been done. It is far better to work out a system for handling this work, and then to turn it over to a clerk, or to some widow or cripple who will appreciate this chance to make a little honest money. No dealer who values his time above eight dollars a week should consider this work. He will soon find that he has enough to do to inspect the lots, handle the correspondence, and keep in touch with the credits and customers.

In order to extract the greatest profits from this business, it is necessary to simplify it as much as possible. The scheme generally followed by the big dealer is to prepare a series of lots, using the same varieties in each series. In other words, a hundred sheets of the same kind are prepared. (Even this quantity will not last long before an "army" of boy collectors). The same varieties are used on every sheet of the lot, and are placed exactly the same on each sheet. This method insures instant detection of substitution, aids the dealer in keeping in touch with the "best sellers," furnishes a check on the clerk mounting the sheets, prevents duplication in the series, simplifies the matter of filling up the sheets as sold (as will be explained later) and in keeping accounts. In preparing these sheets, the clerk may be given a hundred stamps of a kind, twenty varieties, together with a hundred ready priced sheets. It is a very simple matter to make up all the sheets alike, and no cataloguing and pricing is necessary, therefore errors on that score are eliminated. Duplicates of the stamps should be kept on approval cards (reserve stock in envelopes) allowing one pocket to each space on the sheet. In this way, as a sheet returns partially empty, the stamp to fill each space will be found in the pocket assigned to this space. Care should be used that the same stamp is not assigned to two spaces in the series, as duplication will result. Bear in mind that it is absolutely a waste of time and money to send your client a stamp after he has rejected one of the same kind. Avoid duplication. In mounting the stamps, in order to prevent confusion and mis-spacing (especialy if the employee is unfamiliar with stamps) a good method is to attach five small boxes, about 3x3 inches, to a strip of card-board, so that they are in a vertical row. These boxes should be filled with stamps to correspond to a vertical row on the approval sheet, each box representing a space, in the order of their appearance on the sheet. Nearly every operator is capable of mounting five stamps at a time without error, while even the more experienced are liable to make a mistake if the full twenty are mounted at one time. Also, thinking takes time, and time is money. The more automatical this work can be made, the cheaper it can be done. By placing the boxes to the left of the operator and the hinges to the right, it is possible to mount each stamp in six motions, as follows:—

1. Right hand moves from filled space to hinge box.
2. Right hand elevates hinge to mouth (or moves to sponge).
3. Right hand attaches one end of hinge to blank space of sheet.
4. Left hand moves to respective box, selecting stamp.
5. Left hand places stamp under hinge.
6. Right hand bends hinge and exerts pressure to affix stamp.

Since the handling of the moist hinge usually necessitates the most dexterity, the above arrangement is recommended. It may be reversed, however. By using such a method, it is possible to mount stamps very quickly and accurately.

After the sheets are prepared and accounted for, they should be filed away in a box or large envelope. Each lot should be filed separately, and in order. In this way it is possible to find the sheets as needed, without searching through the entire stock.

In sending out the selections, after the application has been approved by the "credit department," a sheet of the first lot should be sent out, together with invoice and return envelope. Premium and advertising matter may and should be included. It is advisable to have several different series available, including U. S., Europeans, Africans, etc., according to the wants of the collector.

In numbering these selections, the writer found the following system very satisfactory: Sheets intended for filling the first order were designated by the figure 1, those for the second by 2, etc. A cipher was then added, then a figure to designate the type of sheet of those intended for the respective lot, and finally the individual sheet number of that type. Thus, 10,170 signifies the seventieth sheet of the first type of the first lot. 30,346 signified the forty-sixth sheet of type three, lot three. Such a system of numbering will prevent the possibility of sending the same type of sheet twice to the same buyer.

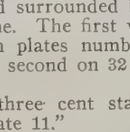
No. 4



"The imprint appears at the middle of the top and bottom of each half of the (National) plate. Between each imprint and the central dividing line is the number of the plate, in script numerals, preceded by "No." Two styles of imprint were used. The first was "NATIONAL BANK NOTE CO. NEW YORK" in white capitals, on a small panel with rounded ends, surrounded by two thin colored lines. The second imprint was "ENGRAVED AND PRINTED BY THE—NATIONAL BANK-NOTE CO. NEW YORK", in two lines of white capitals, on a tablet with pearled edge and surrounded by a single thin colored line. The first variety has been seen on plates numbered as high as 27 and the second on 32 and higher numbers."

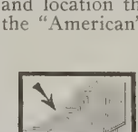
"The imperforate three cent stamps were printed from plate 11."

"Only a very limited amount of information can be obtained in regard to the plate numbers of the embossed stamps. The following numbers are all that are known but doubtless many other plates were used especially for the one, two, and three cent stamps." (For the three cent stamp, plate No. 11 is the only one listed.)

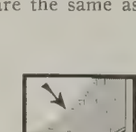
NATIONAL

CONTINENTAL

The plates used by the Continental Bank Note Company were commenced in 1873 and the first plate was completed on April 7, of that year. These plates were engraved with a "secret" mark, which in the instance of the three cent stamp consists of a heavy line of shading on the lower margin of the upper fork of the ribbon which bears the word "THREE." A period of over twenty years elapsed before the keen(?) eyed collector discovered the existence of these secret marks. These secret marks were added to the Continental stamps for the purpose of distinguishing the work of the Continental Bank Note Company from that of their predecessors. None of the National plates were used for the three cent stamps by the Continental Company.



In printing these stamps the Continental Bank Note Company used two steam presses and nineteen hand presses. Luff states that the following plates were used on the steam presses: 3c Plates; Nos. 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 180, 187, 193.



The American Bank Note Company with which the Continental Company was consolidated on February 4, 1879, used several of the plates of the previous issue, among which 292, 309, and 310 are listed by Luff. It is probable that a considerable number were used in addition to those noted.

In regard to the Continental imprints, Luff states that "The imprint appears at the middle of the top and bottom of each half of the plate. It is very much like the second style used by the National Bank Note Company and reads, "PRINTED BY THE—CONTINENTAL BANK-NOTE CO. NEW YORK." in two lines of white capitals, on a panel with pearled edges and surrounded by a thin colored line. Between each imprint and the central dividing line appear "No." and the plate number. Numbers 2 to 193 inclusive are ordinary numerals inserted with punches. Numbers 1 and 219 to 310 inclusive (except 233) are script numerals, from 5½ to 7½ mm. high, engraved on the plates."

The American imprints, on the plates made by that company consisted of the words, "AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY," in heavy faced, shaded capitals without frame or other surroundings. The imprints and plate numbers occupied the same positions as on the plates of the previous contractors. The numbers were all in small italic numerals."

The "Re-engraved" plates, forming one of our principal divisions in this article, were made by the American Bank Note Company and the imprint and location thereof are the same as in the "American" issue.

ORIGINAL

RE-ENGRAVED

The re-engraved stamps are distinguishable from the preceding issue printed by the American Bank Note Company, through various minor differences in the design. The most noticeable detail is a short horizontal dash, 0.05" in length, which has been added below the "ts" of "Cents." This dash is about 0.04" above the lower edge of the design. The most striking feature of the re-engraved stamps is the apparent lack of shading adjoining the white oval surrounding the portrait. The shading around this oval medallion appears to be but half as wide as in the former issues. The addition of vertical lines to the background of the medallion renders it a solid mass of color in the majority of cases. The original lines of various areas of the shield and background have been deepened.

REV. MR. BARBER AND HIS MONACOS.

Collectors interested in the stamps of Monaco will regret to learn of the death on August 13, of the Rev. George E. Barber, M. A., after a serious operation in London. Mr. Barber, who was a foundation scholar of Radley College, went thence to Worcester College, Oxford, England. He had been assistant curate of St. James's, Hampstead Road, London, N. W., and was British chaplain at Sorrento from 1898 to 1902. Mr. Barber later served as chaplain of Bologna and other parts. Recently he visited San Marino again, of which principality he had probably the finest collection of postal and fiscal emissions extant.

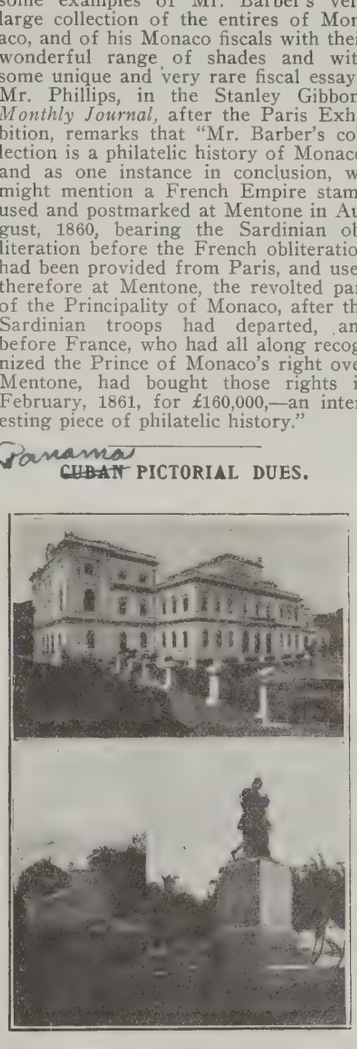
Mr. Barber's kindness to and consideration for the young collector will be ever gratefully remembered by recipients of his bounty. Following is a description of the wonderful collection of the stamps of Monaco, which won for their owner merited recognition:

The Rev. G. E. Barber's collection of the stamps of Monaco is quite a philatelic history of that small but ancient Sovereign Principality. Mr. Barber commences his collection with the old postmarked letters of 1796 and 1797 during the annexation of Monaco to the French Republic, and of 1837 and 1843 under the Sardinian protectorate. From 1849 to 1860 Sardinian stamps and from 1860 to 1885 French stamps were used at Monaco; one of the former (they are very rare) and a wonderful collection of the latter are in Mr. Barber's possession, comprising several rare postmarks, a beautiful pair of the five francs Empire, and one of the Imperial Telegraph stamps, used at Monaco.

The first stamps of Monaco, 1885, are preceded by essays and proofs of that issue (some very rare ones), while that issue itself is represented by very varying shades and large blocks and entire sheets, and, above all, a probably unique pane of twenty-five of the one franc (besides a pair and block of four), and a block of four of the one franc imperforate from the Reinach collection of France and her colonies, and a pair of the five francs.

The 1891 and 1901 issues are preceded by some very rare essays and proofs, and marked by the most wonderful set of shades of each value, including some very rare ones of two centimes, five centimes, fifteen centimes (salmon on cream), twenty-five centimes, and other values. Rare errors of both the 1885 and later issues are to be found, the two centimes of 1885 with a triangular mark on the Prince's neck, the five centimes 1891 doubly printed, the ten centimes of 1901 imperforate, and the fifteen centimes of 1901 in a block without the millisime.

The 1891 and 1901 emissions are also represented by a most extraordinary complete series of millisimes (the millisimes of Monaco are specially interesting), with several extremely rare examples, and the five francs of the 1897 printing with the millisimes "encadre" really an impossibility in the case of the five francs stamps, as they are only issued in half-sheets of seventy-five; two complete sheets alone seem to have reached the Principality by accident. All the issues exist in Mr. Barber's collection used with the various postmarks, and also on entires.



The "O.L." obliterations also exist most complete, with a full history of their unique use, the usage of Monaco stamps on French territory, and of French stamps at the Monte Carlo post office from 1902 to 1908 in the French Commune of Beausoleil.

The Postage Due Stamps of France used at Monaco fill up a large page, and the Monaco Postage Dues are there in large blocks with their millisimes, including the rare rose-red ten centimes of 1905, and the brown ten centimes "error" of 1908, and the one centime dark olive of 1905, of which only three sheets were issued with the millisime five.

"Curisities" include bi-sected stamps postally used, cut-out entires postally permitted, and the like. The Telephone stamps and Postal Orders and the like are fully represented. An interesting and very comprehensive set of facsimiles and forgeries of the 1885 issue from all sources provide opportunity for philatelic study.

The collection as exhibited shows also some examples of Mr. Barber's very large collection of the entires of Monaco, and of his Monaco fiscals with their wonderful range of shades and with some unique and very rare fiscal essays. Mr. Phillips, in the Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal, after the Paris Exhibition, remarks that "Mr. Barber's collection is a philatelic history of Monaco, and as one instance in conclusion, we might mention a French Empire stamp used and postmarked at Mentone in August, 1860, bearing the Sardinian obliteration before the French obliteration had been provided from Paris, and used therefore at Mentone, the revolted part of the Principality of Monaco, after the Sardinian troops had departed, and before France, who had all along recognized the Prince of Monaco's right over Mentone, had bought those rights in February, 1861, for £160,000,—an interesting piece of philatelic history."

Panama CUBAN PICTORIAL DUES.

We illustrate 3 of the designs to be used in the new pictorial dues. The 1c will show the castle of San Lorenzo; 2c statue of Columbus, 4c palace Panama City, 10c bust of Don Pedro J. Sosa. We have no picture of the latter. There will be 500,000 of each. Stamps will be on sale before the first of the year. This is the first time that any government has issued pictorial dues.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—A. W. Foster submits for our inspection copies of a new provisional used in and around Torreon. It consists of the 5c orange 1910 Mexico surcharged "Gobiano Constitucionalista" in a circle with the letters "T.C." in large sans serif capitals in the center. The surcharge is evidently applied with a rubber stamp and one specimen has the surcharge in violet ink, while the second has it in both violet and green. It is plain that almost any color can be supplied.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Herman W. Boers (5), J. P. Crawford.

THE NEW POOLE BOOK.

The new Poole book is now ready. It is entitled "The Stamps of the German States," and the price has been fixed at practically cost, 35c. When one considers that this book makes easy the collecting of the stamps of the several German states, it will readily be seen that there will be a large demand for it. The book is fully illustrated and dealing as it does with stamps of countries now in the war zone, it will be a very timely publication. When ordering this book select some others from the list published elsewhere.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Here They Are—Have you seen all the new revenue stamps yet,—twice twenty-one varieties? Neither have we but what we have seen have made an impression. The stamps certainly have a business-like appearance and the high value documentary stamps, particularly, are sightly productions.

* * *

In the Mail—Our attention has been called to a rouletted two-cent of the current issue in the ordinary mail by Mr. L. B. Lincoln of Chicago; and we have learned that a number of stamps in that condition have been re-marked. Further, a western post office is said to have sold the stamps under circumstances whose truth we wish to verify.

Hungary's Charity Stamps—From Dr. C. F. Roh, Garrison, Nebraska, we have received a cover bearing one of the five and two of the ten filler charity stamps of Hungary. These stamps, as has been mentioned before are the "flood charity" two filler premium stamps surcharged in red on the five, and dark green on the ten filler, the equivalent of "war help" above the crown and "for the widows and orphans, 2 filler" in the added label at bottom. The letter under notice originated in Kassa and bears the Budapest censorship mark.

Good-bye—Here is the closing chapter of the United States postal participation in the affairs of Mexico; and while there may be a sequel, it would not be fair to try to anticipate events. Under the date of November 23rd, the postmaster general has ordered:

"With reference to Order No. 7990, of April 24, 1914, it is hereby ordered that the United States Postal Agency at Vera Cruz, Mexico, is discontinued this date.

Postmasters and other postal officials will please take due notice of the foregoing and govern themselves accordingly."

Russia's Mark—Mail from Russia bears the censor's postmark in three Russian characters which we decipher as the equivalents of D. Tz. U.

Generous Cancellation—A huge obliterator is being used in the large offices for canceling at one fell swoop a line of stamps on parcel post mail; and as each letter in the dauber is almost as large as a stamp, only one impression is necessary to hit all the stamps, even though they are pasted on here and there.

Early Magazine Articles—Our valued contributor, Mr. J. B. Childs, Champaign, Illinois, addresses us: "In Harper's Magazine, Volume 43 (1871) p. 741, et seq., there is a noteworthy stamp article. To thoroughly appreciate what this article means, one must remember that 1871 was only a few years removed from the beginning of stamp collecting in the United States. The author, according to the index is James M. Chute. Whoever he was, at least he had a good knowledge of the stamps extant at that time. The article deals with stamps of different countries and some of their history. The article was fully illustrated with crude woodcuts (I think that there were sixty-seven in all). The nice bit of information remains: the 1847 issue; some of the 1851 issue and others and the large five cent periodical were shown life size. That reminded me forcibly of what we have at present in illustrations of United States. I was possessed of the idea that such a stringent law was then in existence. You may have seen this article before; but if you have not, it might be worth the trouble of looking it up. You might know whether the government objected to the circulation of such illustrations. The author must have been prominent among stamp collectors then; his name might be found among the contributors to some of the early stamp journals. In an early bound volume of Harper's Young People, I discovered several short articles by Joseph J. Casey. The early volumes of Scribner's Monthly (now the Century) had a short article (illustrated) on the New York post office, which, I think, gave one or two U. S."

We Remember—The foregoing letter conjures up the days of old and for the time, memories of the past take precedence over the realities of the present. We have extolled Mr. Chute's Harper's Magazine article in these columns and the impression that it made on the plastic minds of the philatelists of 1871 has been recorded in enthusiastic words. There were several worthy stamp papers published in 1871, for instance, Trifet's Mercury and J. W. Scott's Journal, in Boston and New York, respectively, but stamp collecting had been but scantily recognized and collectors almost piteously solicited attention from the big unheeding outside world. Now we come to James M. Chute, who we remember as a Bostonian and a personage in the philatelic world of letters, if we may be permitted a complimentary flourish. He was a voluminous contributor to the collecting press up to about the year 1886 or so; and during his long term of devotion to philately, his allegiance was alert and out-spoken. Mr. Chute's setting sun disappeared over the horizon just as organized philately in this country became a realization; and he spanned the two eras of philately in America. Joseph J. Casey of New York City was a contemporary of James M. Chute and survived him philatelically but a few years. He was a scholarly man and a school principal in his city. Mr. Casey was a sort of dilettante dealer and conducted auction sales for a while in the late eighties.

Illustrations Of Our Stamps—In 1871, there was no prohibition against the illustrating of United States stamps; and stamp albums, catalogues and printed matter generally used the cuts without let or hindrance for many years subsequently, as well. We remember that our first album of 1879 had cuts of U. S. but that our second one of the 1884 edition was without them. It was about 1883 we believe, that the authorities began to take measures to suppress the pictures of our issues and we know that Edward B. Sterling, Trenton, New Jersey, used a cut of the five cent Garfield on his circulars, with immunity for some time. We have gone into the subject of the date of prohibition of stamp representation more precisely in the past, having had recourse at the time to data that Mr. Sterling had supplied us with; and on this occasion we shall content ourselves with approximate dates.

* * *

The Revenue Stamps—Manuals describing the application of the new revenue stamp tax are on sale and collectors will find them fully explanatory of the use of the stamps. It was the intention of the authorities to have had special stamps for payment of the tax on wines, etc., if the resources of the bureau of engraving and printing had not been so greatly strained by the preparation of the documentary and proprietary sets. Stocks of the revenue stamps have been delivered to the distributing offices and everything is supposed to be in readiness for the successful operation of the stamp tax.

THE POSTAGE STAMPS OF GAMBIA.

By R. E. R. DALWICK.

The King George Series.

The appearance of the Georgian issue of Gambia was heralded by an official notice of the postal authorities at the end of May, 1912.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the new postage stamps, stamped envelopes and post-cards of the colony, bearing the effigy of HIS MAJESTY KING GEORGE V., will be placed on sale on the 1st September next. The stamps, etc., bearing the effigy of the late KING EDWARD VII., which may be in stock on the 31st August next, will be destroyed on that date.
Central Post Office, Bathurst, Gambia.
28th May, 1912.

The new series, comprising no less than sixteen denominations, duly made their appearance, having been printed from a new POSTAGE—POSTAGE key-plate. A new value was added to the series, viz., 1½d olive-green and blue-green.

With this exception the values were the same as the superseded Edwardian issue.

The colours adopted were based on the scheme instituted in 1909.

The perforation gauged 14 and the paper was of the medium wove unsurfaced type, watermarked with the usual Multiple Crown CA device.

The following is a complete list of this issue—name and value in second colour:

½d green.
1d carmine.
1½d olive and green.
2d grey.
2½d ultramarine.
3d purple on yellow.
4d black and red on yellow.
5d orange and purple.
6d dull and bright purple.
7½d brown and blue.
10d sage-green and carmine.
1sh black on green.
1sh 6d violet and green.
2sh purple and blue on blue.
2sh 6d black and red on blue.
3sh yellow and green.

The above is certainly an extensive issue, but one cannot but remark that a complete set looks well in an album—whether all values were necessary is quite another matter.

D. P. S. PUBLIC MEETING.

We are indebted to Herman W. Boers for a clipping from a Detroit paper giving us the particulars of a reception and public meeting given on Thanksgiving eve by the Detroit Philatelic Society. The meeting was held at 33 E. High St., and invitations were extended quite generally to any interested in stamp collecting, but especially to teachers and pupils connected with the public schools of the city.

The affair was a great success and much credit is due to the committee in charge, which consisted of Dr. W. L. Babcock, Mr. C. Frederick Heytrman and Mr. Theodore P. Ladue. The program for the evening was as follows: Registration of guests; address of welcome, General C. A. Coolidge, president of the American and Detroit Philatelic societies; exhibition of specialized collections, in charge of Mr. George W. Rice; literary contest in charge of Mr. T. P. Ladue; stamp drawing in charge of W. L. Babcock, M. D.; stamp auction, Mr. Don R. Bennett, manager, Mr. J. Wilowski, auctioneer; buffet luncheon.

Regular semi-monthly meetings of the society are held the first and third Wednesdays of each month. The officers are: President, General C. A. Coolidge; vice-president, Herbert Bowen; secretary and treasurer, Henry Look; sales superintendent, R. E. Smith; auction superintendent, J. E. Scott.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

Stamp Collecting.—By A. B. Creeke, Jr., published by Thos. Nelson & Sons, N. Y. City. Price 25c. The publishing house of Thos. Nelson & Sons has issued a very neat set of hobby books, edited by Archibald Williams, and this particular book is No. 9 in the series. It contains much the same matter as is found in all guides for beginners but we must compliment Mr. Creeke upon the very interesting manner in which the matter is written up. It is finely illustrated and is provided with a very useful index. The book is bound in cloth.

N. Y. BRANCH OF THE N. P. S.

The first annual dinner and dance of the New York Philatelic Exchange Society, was held Thanksgiving Eve at Aschenbroedel Hall, E. 86th Street, New York, and it can be said that from every point of view it was a notable success. Promptly at 9.15 a Thanksgiving dinner was served in accordance with a menu prepared by the committee, on which philatelic expressions predominated, and afterwards the members and their ladies danced to their hearts' content. Speeches in keeping with the occasion,—and of course mostly with a philatelic flavor—were made by President Herbert, President Weiss of the National Philatelic Society, Charles Heller, A. C. Roessler, E. H. Gammans, Jr., P. H. Simmons and M. Ohlman. Souvenir hats were distributed to everybody, as well as printed copies of the songs rendered by the cabaret singers, in which all those present joined most lustily. A. C. Roessler, the well known Newark dealer, presented to each a copy of the beautiful 3 cent Brunei stamp of 1908. As a social gathering of a very young society, the affair was a rousing success, and is probably the forerunner of many more to come.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

CONDUCTING APPROVAL BUSINESS.

Since it is impossible to demand references from boy trade, and to investigate them, the only way to handle this business is to take a chance. A sheet cataloguing 56c and selling for 25c net, should cost about 10c. Thus quite a number of losses may be suffered before any consequential amount is lost, and the sales will offset this. In my experience, I found that between five and ten per cent. must be charged to loss, either from carelessness or theft. However, as I did not follow up my claims very well, this percentage is a little higher than had I made more vigorous attempts to collect. In listing customers, I use a 3x5 card system, using white cards for prospects, manila for customers, and blue for frauds. Consultation of this card case will often save a second loss.

In keeping my approval record, I use a loose leaf binder with specially ruled pages to fit. At the top of the page, I enter the name and address of the buyer, as well as any references and the source of inquiry. In the first column, I enter the date of sending the lot; in the second, the sheet numbers; in the third, the gross or net value, as the case may be; in the fourth, the net price for the entire lot; in the fifth, the discount; in the sixth, a description of the lot, if special; then in the seventh column (on the right side) I enter the date the lot is returned; in the eighth, the amount purchased; in the ninth, any debits or credits; in the tenth, the total amount purchased to date, and lastly, any remarks, to aid me in sending further lots, or otherwise. This entry sheet was devised by the manager of one of the largest stamp companies in the country, and is, I beieve, the most practical ever designed, as it gives the full information of every transaction in a compact form, and tells at a glance just what kind of a buyer each customer is. As accounts are closed or temporarily discontinued, I file the sheets in another binder, alphabetically. At intervals, I circularize these accounts and usually succeed in drawing some new sales from them.

In sending out these selections, the dealer must aim to please the customer, and yet must protect himself. Many frauds attempt to secure large lots after the first few times, and dealers should have a fixed limit of value for each selection. My first selection listed at 56c and sold for 25c net, my second at 90c and 40c net, my third at $1.28 and 60c net, my fourth at $1.70 and 75c net, etc., adding a few cents each time. The first time I sent but one sheet, the second, two, and later three or four. After the customer has proved himself honest and enough of a buyer to warrant the trouble, it is a good plan to submit larger selections. As my time was limited, I made it a rule to cater only to customers spending at least 10c the first time and later 25c each time.

For an invoice, I use the following:—

Heading

Date

Address of customer.

"Dear Sir:

I enclose herewith a selection of stamps on approval as follows:

Enclosures ..... $..... Net purchases ..... $.....

Etc.

Discount ..... You may keep this entire lot for $..... Please note opposite the entry the net amount taken from each item. I cannot give you credit unless you return this invoice. ALL GOODS REMAIN MY PROPERTY UNTIL PAID FOR IN FULL. (See Article on "Credits.") Remittances under $1.00 may be made in unused 1c and 2c stamps GUMMED. Do not risk loss by sending coin by mail.

I will appreciate the return of this selection within ten days. Unless forbidden, I will submit another selection.

If you have any suggestions or complaints to make, I want to know them.

Yours very truly,

_____."

The above should give the new dealer a good insight into the handling of boy trade. Bear in mind that it is the volume of business that gives the profit. At an early date, the subject of "High Class Approval Trade" will be discussed.

CATERING TO HIGH CLASS APPROVAL TRADE.

In many ways, the high class trade is handled the same as the cheap class. Essentially the same methods and forms should be employed. These were discussed in detail in the last issue.

In dealing with boy trade, it is the volume of sales that brings the profit. In the high class trade, the profits are based on the individual sale. As far as stock and preparation are concerned, high class approvals differ materially from low priced ones. In the low priced series, an inexperienced clerk can easily mount a series without error, but in preparing large selections of fine stamps, more or less knowledge of stamps is required. Where it is possible to mount a hundred selections of a kind of cheap stamps, it is possible to mount only a limited number of high priced ones.

Personality is a fundamental requirement in handling high class trade. The same would apply to the cheap trade but for the fact that the cost of individual attention is prohibitive, where the volume of business is so great.

Let us suppose that the dealer has quite a large stock, consisting of possibly fifteen thousand varieties, and from ten to fifty of a kind of many of the cheaper stamps. A great many collectors are satisfied with a general selection of miscellaneous stamps, or by countries, and do not require as complete a lot as the specialists. For these collectors, the dealer should prepare a series from his surplus stock, making possibly ten or twenty books of a kind, and using only stamps of which he has quite a line. In this way, it is possible to price the entire lot of books by cataloguing one, also spaces can be readily filled without retiring the books from circulation, as stamps are sold. Much time and trouble are saved in this way.

Many collectors of single countries, or heavy buyers, require large selections by countries. It is well to make up these books to fill the wants of the buyer. This gives him an opportunity to use his personality in supplying the wants of his customers.

From an advertising point of view, the dealer who can furnish a good line of books by countries, and who features them in some unique manner, has a splendid means of attracting trade. It is possible to secure an "individual" approval book for practically the same price as the usual stock books so generally used by dealers; Messrs. Poole, Brown, Legg, and Gibbons, among others, have their own style of books. No matter how nice the stamps are, if the book is crude, or the stamps are mounted in a slovenly fashion, the final result will lack many of the fine touches so important in making sales. My own book is made up from pale blue stock, unruled, with a darker blue cover, is size 3½ by 6 inches, and is of the type known as vertical. The stamps are mounted in four rows of three stamps each. As there is no ruling on the pages, I can mount blocks or large stamps without spoiling the appearance of the page, and can also note any data I see fit. I prefer the vertical type for the reason that the book may be held and inspected without the pages sagging.

A first class selection of a country should include every variety, or as many as possible, both unused and used; also minor varieties, pairs, strips, blocks, or oddities. The stamps should be numbered and catalogued, and any descriptive matter noted. Needless to say, any damaged goods should be excluded, or in the case of great rarities such defects should be noted, also reprints and counterfeits should be sold as such. These latter may be included in selections by countries as many collectors like to buy them for reference. When they are sold, however, no misunderstanding as to their nature should be permitted. Remember, that practically every collector who would care for a first class selection of this nature is a "condition crank." Therefore, make your books by countries your very best selections, and give them the pick of your stock. If necessary, charge a little more for the stamps. Bear in mind that neatness in mounting will act largely in selling your stamps; so use the utmost care in making up the selections. Put yourself back of every book. If a stamp is especially scarce, note the fact. Let the buyer of these books know that you appreciate his business and that you are giving him the very cream of your stock. Sell him what he wants, not what you want him to have, if you would satisfy him.

When a new customer applies for advanced selections, it is a good plan to send him a card for information with the first selection. This card should contain the following questions, or those of a similar nature: Do you collect 19th Century? 20th? Used? Unused? Both? Pairs, strips, blocks? Minor varieties? Perforation and watermark varieties? Paper varieties? Shades? How large is your collection? Do you collect all countries? If not, what? What country do you prefer? With the above information, the dealer can easily base his selections on the wants of the collector. Probably a good portion of the approval business is lost because the dealer fails to connect the right stamps with the right buyer. If your man collects United States only, why send him a lot of Russians or Chinese? If he wants unused, don't waste your time making him want used. He knows what he wants and will go somewhere else to get it if you can't supply him. If he asks for U. S. and you can't supply them, tell him what you have in Africans, but don't send them.

Service is the key-note of success. The better the service rendered, the more satisfied the client. The more satisfied the client, the better buyer he becomes. All because of service. If your customer sends you a want list and you can't fill it, why not send to some other dealer who can, and supply the stamps at cost, rather than see your customer go to the dealer who can fill his wants. Furthermore, it is possible to make arrangements with some of the large dealers to fill any lists submitted at "trade-discounts" so a little profit can usually be made. A satisfied customer is the best advertising medium a dealer can have. A prominent local dealer says, "I use the WEEKLY to get the business and my own service to keep it." That man knows how to play the game, and he is on the winning side—a long way ahead of another dealer who says, "If you don't like my stuff, go somewheres else."

In mailing selections of value, the dealer should avail himself of the opportunities offered by parcel post insurance. Many of the reputable insurance companies offer coupon books priced at $2.50 and $5.00 per 100 coupons. One coupon will insure a letter up to $10.00 in value by ordinary mail and $50.00 in value by registered mail, 2 coupons will insure to $25.00 by ordinary mail, etc., until a value of $50.00 by ordinary mail or $150.00 by registered mail is reached. For selections of $25.00 and under, this means of protection is far cheaper than registered mail, and also the losses are generally paid quicker. Dealers should take this matter up with their local insurance agents, or if they cannot accommodate them, I will gladly direct them to some agent who can.

In checking up the books as they are returned, in case it is impossible to replace the stamp sold, the dealer should mark the space with a rubber stamp with his initials or some mark for identification, in order that the vacancy may not be charged to the next buyer. Also, the initials of the buyer receiving the book may be entered on the back inside cover, or some other convenient place. In this way, the book will not be sent twice to the same collector, unless by request.

If this article does not explain the subject sufficiently clear, the writer will be glad to give any information desired.

Guide Arrows.

Out of a total of 38 stamps showing arrows on the margins the locations were as follows:

Corner of Stamp.	National.	Continental.	American.	Re-Engraved.	Position. Total.	Per Cent.
N. E.	2	9	2	—	13	34%
S. E.	3	4	3	—	10	26%
S. W.	—	5	—	—	5	13%
N. W.	—	8	2	—	10	26%
Total Found,	5	26	7	0
Per cent.,	14%	68%	18%	0%

The 38 stamps showing arrows on the margin were found in an "unpicked" lot of 6,000 mixed National, Continental and American issues. The normal yield should be one "arrow" stamp for every fifty examined in case the sheets were cut exactly on the arrows.

In this case but one stamp in one hundred and sixty shows the arrow.

Plate Lines.

No "guide lines" were engraved on any of these 3c plates. The upper and lower margins show small "arrows" at the middle of the sheet. The arrows, as usual, point toward the center of the sheet. Stamps which show parts of the arrow and the numerals of the plate number are sometimes found.

The illustration shows the characteristics of the various marginal arrows which are available for study in my personal accumulation.

Perforation.

All of these stamps were perforated 12. Luff reports the three cent Continental imperforate and in a horizontal pair, imperforate between the stamps. In the National issue, he reports the three cent stamp imperforate, and another variety with "Impression on the reverse." The imperforate three cent National was from plate No. 11.

Wide margins are common in all of these issues and alleged imperforate stamps are often offered to the uninformed. Copies showing parts of adjoining stamps on both sides and with large margins at top and bottom are not uncommon. The normal top or bottom margins of the top or bottom rows were about three times as wide as the common "interior" margins and the top and bottom horizontal rows of perforations usually run through the imprint so that stamps are often found with wide upper or lower margins which show parts of the marginal imprint. The distance between the designs of adjoining stamps varies from .09″ to .11″, the average being very nearly .10″. This distance is approximately the same in all issues and in both vertical and horizontal directions although the stamps are somewhat nearer together vertically than horizontally. I believe that it was the intention of the manufacturers to make these spaces exactly one-tenth of one inch and that the variations from this dimension are mechanical errors. The theoretical "stamp distance" is therefore 1.1″ vertically and 0.90″ horizontally as the designs approximate 1.00″x0.80″, but actual measurements will almost invariably show quantities slightly smaller than this.

Cancellations.

The earlier stamps were canceled with whatever happened to be available, and the appropriately whittled end of a broomstick seems to have had an extended vogue. About ten per cent. of all the stamps observed had received colored cancellations of which blue predominated. The colored and pen cancellations in a mixed lot of these stamps will run about as follows:

Type.	Quantity
Pen,	2%
Color,	10%
Red,	1/12 of 1%
Purple,	5/12 of 1%
Blue,	8%

An analysis of the pen cancellations existing on 103 copies of the 3c National and Continental issues is recorded herewith. The fact that about 90% of the pen cancelled stamps observed are copies in which the cancellation falls completely on the stamp and does not extend to the envelope may be of value in considering some of the "bisected provisionals" which are offered to collectors from time to time in which "philatelic evidence" in the form of numerous pen strokes extending over both stamp and paper are strongly in "evidence."

The foregoing check list includes several varieties which are not ordinarily obtainable by the average collector. Undoubtedly there are many more common varieties which are of interest. If the American and "Re-engraved" issues are studied they will yield much that is worthy of record. These stamps have been neglected because they were too "common" to attract the fastidious collector whose envious eye is too often fixed upon the unobtainable beauties that grace the albums of the great.

Acknowledgment is made to author and publishers of "The Postage Stamps of the United States" for valuable data contained therein which have formed an important part of this article.

Much of the material which was studied was supplied through the kindness of Mr. E. B. Power.

Without the valuable information written by Mr. Luff and the indispensable stamps furnished by Mr. Power this article could not have been prepared.

WANTED: A PHILATELIC HEGIRA.

By WILMOT CORFIELD.

The Hegira (or Hajra) signifies "departure" or "separation," and refers to the historic night-flight of the Prophet from Mecca to Medina. The Mohammedan world's chronological jumping-off point dates from the Hegira; just as does that of the Christian world (approximately) from the appearance of a bright Star above a manger where a Young Child lay.

The Mohammedan Hegira is reckoned from 622 A. D. Each country's philatelic Hegira should date from the most convenient point following the 6th May, 1910.

Philatelic time would be measured off into two periods: there would be an old philatelic dispensation, and a new philatelic dispensation; and collectors would accustom themselves to think in the terms of two Philatelics instead of one, and work out their ideas accordingly. The death-day of King Edward would arbitrarily become the earliest date from which the new Hegira could start.

A sort of philatelic "A. D." and a philatelic "B. C." would follow as a matter of course. The pre-Hegira catalogue (with the exception of its price-columns) would tend to consolidation and ultimate finality. The Hegira catalogue would start under conditions laid down in the light of the accumulated knowledge of the years, and continue upon scientific methods.

In Great Britain the last stamp of the pre-Hegira catalogue would be the Edwardian 7d, and the first of the Hegira catalogue the Georgian ½d of Coronation-Day. The 7d would be No. 1 of the pre-Hegira British stamps, and (working backwards) No. 272 (to be listed on page 1 of the "Red" Gibbons) would be the 1d, intense black, of 1840. The Hegira catalogue would begin with the Georgian Coronation halfpenny (die A) 1911, and end, for the present, with No. 37, £1, green, 1913.

Most countries have by now qualified for admission into the Hegira catalogue. The States, Portugal, Russia, China, Egypt, Turkey, etc., etc., have all made very distinct new departures since May, 1910; and perhaps France is the only great country still lingering in the pre-Hegira wilderness.

A conference of representative Philatelists would meet to decide upon some guiding principle, by which to regulate the admission from the first, of Overprinted and Surcharged stamps to Hegira catalogue rank; and to formulate a working scheme for the barring out of all such as possessed no real philatelic significance. In the case of a series of overprints or surcharges all similar, only one would be listed, and that upon the denomination nearest in value to one penny alone would be mounted in albums by loyal philatelists, the underlying idea being to recognize only differing super-impositions, regardless of the differing stamps upon which they appear.

A like regulation would apply to the listing of issues, such as those of many of the French colonies, when obviously made for other than postal use. The Hegira catalogue would notice only the lowest denomination of each type, and not every denomination of the series. It would also disregard all double and inverted super-inscriptions or other examples of bad workmanship, deeming them "printers' waste."

The Congress would publish an annual Hegira catalogue (without selling-price columns) fixing the status of all Hegira stamps. Exhibitors of non-listed labels would render themselves answerable to a committee of Congress, holding powers of the kind held by the Jockey and Kennel Clubs for the regulation of equine and canine affairs. It would be many years before the volume of the stamps of Hegira increased so seriously, as to render the cost of issue of an annual catalogue prohibitive.

All collectors would recognize the idea that, whilst pre-Hegira stamps must now of necessity be accepted upon lines already laid down, those of the Hegira are susceptible of catalogue regulation and control.

The Generalist of the Hegira would re-arrive, as proud of his knowledge of what not to collect as of what to collect, making a clean start from some declared Hegira date, in the case of each country. He would control his own pursuit, and not let it control him.

Who will declare the NEW HEGIRA?—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

A 5000 LINE CONTRACT.

We have one advertiser in the WEEKLY who has a contract to use 4000 lines during 1915 but we are now pleased to state that the Marks Stamp Co. has contracted to use 5000 lines during the same period. A contract such as this is a striking testimonial to the value of the WEEKLY as an advertising medium. The following communication will be of more than ordinary interest:—

TORONTO, CAN., Nov. 30, '14.

Dear Sirs:

"We are enclosing you $20 which kindly credit us with. Also please send us each month a detailed statement of the month's advertising as we have not received any invoice for the November advertising.

We wish to enter into a contract with you to use five thousand or more lines during the next twelve months at 10c per line and you might until further notice run our three electros in every number of your paper but we must ask you to give them good positions.

Yours truly,

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

We rejoice in the publication of "The Commemorative Stamps of the World," by James H. Lyons and issued by the New England Stamp Company, as we have been anticipating its appearance with no ordinary interest. The value of the series of articles that have been a feature for a period of years past of the New England Stamp Monthly has been apparent and the story of the commemorative stamp in permanent form is a welcome addition to the literature of stamp collecting. In our callower days when we conducted an inquiry department, many were the questions asked concerning the significance of the designs of the celebration stamps and the answers were apt to be somewhat prosaic and none too adequate in all particulars. We realized then that there was a consistent demand for all information about these fascinating stamps of attractive and striking aspect, as a rule; and as time went on, it follows that the volume of interest in these stamps increased because of the greater attention, in later years, to what in a general way may be called the symbolism of stamps. Here in a tastefully prepared cloth bound volume of one hundred and thirty-two pages is all the lore of commemorative stamps from first to last. The stories are well told and the illustrations are in keeping with the text. The descriptive matter is succinct but complete and all in all the book deserves to be the standard on its subject. We feel that we can recommend the little work to readers, with all assurance. There are two styles of binding, the one in cloth being priced at one dollar while an edition de luxe on special paper, bound in limp leather, and limited to twenty-five copies only is three dollars. Publishers: The New England Stamp Company, 387 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

BREAKING UP COLLECTION

I am breaking up a fine collection of nearly 12,000 varieties contained in six large volumes. This is a splendid opportunity for serious collectors to add fine items to their own collections at the price of ordinary approval goods. To collectors who are willing to spend at least five dollars on a selection, will be pleased to submit these volumes, one at a time, on five days' approval. First come, first served. A deposit or good reference essential from those not known to me. This is your chance to look over 12,000 varieties, and compare with your album, page for page. Many fine items never found on ordinary approval selections, and the condition will please you if you are a condition crank, but the cost is no more. 50 per cent. discount allowed on everything, except when it will bring unused stamps below face value. Those of you who frequently pay two-thirds and full cat. for certain desirable stamps will appreciate this discount.

YOUR OPPORTUNITY! WRITE NOW and state if you collect 19th or 20th Century stamps, or both. To those inclined to make smaller purchases, my regular line of Superior Approvals contain better stamps for less money than usually found on an approval circuit, and testimonials received verify this. Premiums of recent Mexican Provisional covers to all collectors answering this advertisement, and enclosing return postage, and reference.

ONCE AGAIN IN TROUBLE.

Here is a duplication of the incident recorded two weeks ago. We recently published T. H. Webb, Hanover, N. J., in connection with unsatisfactory business relations with a New York dealer. We now find that Mr. Webb has been off in Canada since last July and we therefore withdraw Mr. Webb's name and apologize to him for having given publicity to the matter.

Dealers will please bear in mind that in the future if they have complaints to make they must be made to an attorney or collection agency before they are given space in the WEEKLY. We don't like this apologizing business. Some day it might mean a law-suit.

THE MANAGING EDITOR.

EDITORIAL.

Revenue Rush—Stories of spirited scenes attending the rush for stamps at the revenue offices at the large distributing points during the first week in December have been features of the newspapers. For instance in Chicago, the stock of revenue stamps was absorbed almost immediately and the police were summoned on several occasions to quell the clamoring crowds. As it was impossible for the first few days to supply the needs of many intending purchasers, it was necessary that permission was extended to defer stamping taxable papers and commodities until an ample stock of revenue issues was ready. We read that for a period of thirty days, payment of the tax may be made in cash, according to a certificate or affidavit covering items on which the tax has not been paid by stamps. We anticipate something in the way of provisionals in consequence of the temporary stamp famine. Last week, some uncertainty was expressed as to the proposed issue of the set of stamps for wines and cordials but this doubt had already been disspelled in the minds of readers by the statement of Mr. B. D. Forster in the paper of the preceding week that the set in question had appeared.

Fiscal Permit—We have received from Mr. A. Roterberg, "DeLand's Playing Card Pattern," on which the rubber-stamped impression is found in two lines: "United States—Internal Revenue Tax Paid," and the following explanation, likewise stamped: "This certifies that there has been paid in the Treasury of the United States four cents, covering the tax on the original sheet of sixty cards from which these cards are made. Decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington. Manufactured and tax paid in the First District of Pennsylvania, U. S. A." This "pattern" has a window cut out the size of the ordinary playing card to serve as a guide in cutting out the playing cards which come in sheets, in connection with the "Hindu Card Mystery." Mr. Roterberg says: "By special dispensation this man got permission from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington to sell full sheets of sixty playing cards, uncut, the purchaser to cut them out by means of the accompanying pattern. The manufacturer pays a tax of four cents on each sheet. This will come under the same heading as the 'Permit' on mail, although in this case I assume that the impression would be called a 'Revenue Permit'."

Internal Revenue Stamps—Many inquiries for the new revenue stamps are made at post offices and in consequence the Washington authorities have issued the following notice: "Internal revenue stamps are not furnished by the Post Office Department, and postmasters who intend to sell them should apply to the nearest collector of internal revenue for the stamps and for any information relative to the matter."

Down on the Farm—Direct from Mineakoning Farm, R. D., No. 1, Flemington, New Jersey, that worthy yeoman, Mr. H. E. Deats, sends a word of cheer as follows: "I will send you a list of Upham's Confederate States of America stamp fac-similes in a few days. Too busy out-doors yet to work at the desk by day-light." Denizens of steam-heated apartments in the cities who are not wholly satisfied with prevailing conditions and consequently are contemplating the change to the easy and profitable life of the bucolic gent may take warning hereby that the lot of the agriculturist is not all beer and skittles.

Fanciful Creations—The remarks upon the product of Mr. Upham in the paper of November 28th have evoked some answers. For instance, Miss Amy L. Swift, Whitman, Mass., has sent for inspection a lot of no fewer than fifty specimens of forgeries and bogus productions with the information: "They came to me from an old collection of a cousin who gathered them some time during or shortly after the war. From the little that he can remember, they were bought certainly before 1868, from New York and Philadelphia firms, and 'didn't cost much,' but he always supposed that they were remainders found in offices after the war had closed, once good for postage but afterwards good merely for souvenirs." We can readily believe that these labels which include a number of fancy varieties of the locals, some of which are not so well known as others, made an early visitation for we find in the first edition of Gray's catalogue, London, 1862, the notation, under Confederate States of America: "There are some stamps in circulation among the French dealers which they profess to belong to the Confederate States but the imitators seem never to have seen the original stamps." We may add that in the list of general issues in this catalogue are a one cent, portrait of Colquhoun, (for Calhoun, probably) and ten cent General Beauregard, in "red or blue ink." In the 1866 edition of Gray, in a list of Confederate locals, "copied almost verbatim from Kline's Manual Guide," we find the fictitious "Florida Express" and a host of alleged Richmond issues, although an annotation practically repudiates the Richmond labels. We know that in 1868, vide Trifet's American Stamp Mercury of that year, a packet of fac-similes of the Confederate locals was advertised by F. Trifet and Company of Boston and that for many years afterwards labels of the kind were regarded as trade staples by some of the dealers and openly advertised on the specious pretext that inasmuch as the originals were so valuable, it was advisable to fill the empty spaces with fac-similes.

Shut-in Names—Last year we conducted a campaign for the benefit of the philatelic "shut-ins" that was abundantly successful; in fact, so much time was necessarily given to it that routine duties were neglected. For several reasons this year our operations will be curtailed in extent but to those of our readers who have written for the names of deserving "shut-ins" we say that we shall be glad to forward them names of afflicted collectors that are sent us in good faith. We have some stamp packets already on hand for distribution.

French-Belgian Union—From Messrs. Alfred Smith & Son, London, England, we have received a registered envelope bearing three of the current set of Belgium "with the extra-territorial cancellation of the special post office at Havre." The Belgian stamps mailed in France under special privilege cetrainly mark an interesting historical phase of the great conflict.

* * *

Out With Them—Some years ago, in speaking of a sample sheet of United States envelopes illustrating the sizes and colors of the current envelopes that the department distributed to encourage the use of stamped envelopes, we mentioned the possibility that in the future some of these stamped impressions might come on the market to puzzle uninformed collectors, after the envelopes had been "cut square." We regret to have to say that the envelopes on wove paper, only surface-colored, in question have been offered as government imitations from the original die. These hybrids should have no place in general philatelic circulation.

A BIT OF "DEALER" ADVICE.

By A Buyer.

Seein' as how I used to be a boy, I have been scouring over Bill's articles to the youngsters, and I want to have a little word with you and Bill and the world of boy collectors at large about this "dealer" business.

I suppose a buyer with no "dealer" desires for himself, ought to be a good critic. Anyhow, I'm going to start out on that basis, and if I'm not a good critic, I'm going to hit some things that Bill skipped.

All that good advice about aims and ideals, Honesty and perserverance would fit most any youth starting out in most any business. The thing that Bill forgot is that almost anybody, and easiest of all a person in the habit of being alone and working alone, can become self hypnotized on one topic, and that in that condition his sense and better judgment invariably gets set aside till the dream is busted.

I'm not setting out to be a wet blanket. We must have dealers, and as time goes on the younger ones become dealers of standing and experience, but the test that makes or breaks the beginner is stamp knowledge and funds. Perhaps a few who have tried, would say funds and stamp knowledge. I know the cash end of it is a big factor, but the knowledge part is just as important, and if you who read could go back with me over years of buying, you would admit that there are a lot of dealers who are fixed a lot better with funds than with stamp knowledge. It is these gentlemen that, either from luck or because of the employing of a clerk that has what they lack, are prone to come out with a thesis about the 69 varieties of U. S. heretofore unlisted by ex-authority J. N. L. or who write somebody's book over and put it out for their own little business. It was one of these gentlemen that told me that the gum remaining on a rarity that I had taken off a torn cover has been "put on by hand" and refused to believe that either my boy or myself could tell the truth. It was one of this class that passed a "premier gravure" at a recent sale and instantly offered one-fourth catalogue for it when he got wise.

Believe me, Bill, the mistakes that "reglar" dealers with more money than brains make would fill an awful big book. And moreover, if half these men had to begin over again, they would not land. Today's amateur is better read than he was fifteen years ago, and he is a lot wiser. Likewise he is wise to his own shortcomings in a measure, but when you tickle his fancy and suggest to him that he become a dealer, he loses his head and falls for a lot of bunk because he is flattered.

It seems that the sentences of Bill's first paragraph up to the last one, I fairly agree with, but I want to say right here that:—given funds, the right managing clerk (who knows stamps) a little gall and the modicum of business ability sufficient to make any business move, and a man who knows nothing of stamps and collectors can run a stamp business and make good. There are such.

The wise guys that blow around with a bag full of plunder that they are selling on commission, or perhaps own, are far more worthy the name of dealer than such a one.

Right here I would remark that a careful culling over of the men in the trade would assure Bill that the ones that write the valuable monographs, the ones that pass on the questionable stamp that you send to be expertized, the ones that do the mounting and plating and bear the laboring oar of the stamp trade, are employees.

The guy you meet in the office with the "presence" and all that is the boss. The man that knows is in the back office. You think that over.

The combination of owner, manager, expert, and clerk won't work out well. The good clerks are the ones that have learned the business and paid for their experience with their own money.

Most of them know because they have discovered that a one man firm is a weak one. I could point out several men in the trade outside of the managers who are working for someone else out of preference, more from necessity and more still because they found that their stamp knowledge was not business knowledge.

I won't fight with Bill over his directions about buying, either for the amateur dealer or the dealing amateur, but I will say here that the vital thing for either is to remember that buying for an "investment" means tying up money that may be needed later, and buying what is needed or what is ordered keeps the bank balance healthy.

But to the would-be dealer I think Bill should have said, "Be sure you know enough about stamps to be a dealer, and be sure that you know enough about business to be your own boss."

DREW'S AUCTION SALES.

Our old advertising patron, the firm of B. L. Drew & Co., naturally feels somewhat aggrieved at a mistake which occurred in their advertisement in our issue f November 28. After describing in proper terms the desire of the firm to reach those who intend to sell at auction the type was made to read "Our reliability can be clearly established and our best references are those who have used our ice for boys and beginners: perf. gauges 10c, touch with us."

This is really a most unusual statement and one which the proprietor, Mr. Drew, feels does not do him any credit. The excuse for its appearance may be found in the close proximity of the "ice" line of type as found in the adjoining column.

Anyone who visits the Drew office will witness the fact that the proprietor does not deal in ice and the "Browsery" as it is known has a philatelic flavor of a marked degree. To make amends for this mistake in this advertisement we advise our readers to look up the issue of Nov. 28 and see what is possible in the printshop in connection with amusing typographical errors. When one considers the thousand and one possibilities for mistakes each week we feel that Mr. Jewett, our printer, is giving us a remarkably able service.

CONFEDERATE "DOUBLE TRANSFER."

By Jas. Lewis Howe.

I have recently come into possession of a pair of Confederate 10 cent reds, one of which is an excellent specimen of a "double transfer." I think this is the first time a double transfer has been recorded for any of the three lithographed stamps of the Confederacy, tho Mr. Klemann writes me that he has a duplicate of this stamp, on cover. Close comparison showed the stamps to be identical. In this stamp all the horizontal lines are doubled and the others spread, up and down.

As there is no double transfer in known sheets of the 10 cent blue, it seems clear that at least two lithographic stones were used for this stamp, and that some of the red stamps were printed from a different stone from that used for some of the blues.

A photograph of the lower half of the sheet of blues with the Augusta, Ga., imprint shows no double transfer, but of course there might have been such on the other half. It would be interesting to know if any instance of a double transfer exists in the blue stamp.

A DEFENSE(?) OF MISSION STAMPS.

By C. C. S.

I notice in No. 1247, remarks that might be construed as advice against the purchase of mission stamps by the pound. To counteract these remarks as much as possible I should like to submit the following arguments in favor of such stamps.

First, there is the "business as usual" argument. Their sale is a recognized institution and should be supported whether good or bad. Otherwise what would become of them?

Second, there is the satisfaction of one's natural gambling instincts that may be innocently derived from such purchases, even on Sunday. I once found a good stamp, catalogued at 8c, in a three pound lot. And I have frequently seen stamps catalogued as high as 3c in one pound lots.

Third, there is the fact that the possession of, say, a three pound lot will keep one busy sorting and expecting in all his spare time for years, and so keep him from much more costly diversions.

In speaking in favor of Mission Stamps, I wish to make it clear that I have no ulterior motives. I am only an ordinary collector, with nothing to sell; but I have at various times bought three lots of Mission Stamps, and I couldn't part with them for a good deal. I couldn't even give them away. I have tried.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—We are indebted to B. D. Foster, the Wray Stamp Co., Joseph C. Zanini, and others for specimens of the new United States revenues, made necessary by the failure of the tariff legislation to provide sufficient revenue for the support of the Government. These stamps are now on sale at all internal revenue offices, and became obligatory on Dec. 1. There are three separate issues, though all are labelled "Series of 1914,"—"Proprietary," "Documentary" and "Cordials, Wines, Etc." The proprietary stamps are a horizontal oblong, while the others are upright. The salient feature of each design is the large colorless figure of value in the central circle, with "Cent" just below. The Documentary stamps have the value in words inserted between the figure of value and the word "Cent." Briefly described, the designs are as follows:

Proprietary—Horizontal oblong; colorless figure of value in circle, with horizontal lined background; "United States Internal Revenue—Series of 1914" in a circle; "Proprietary" in straight line at top and "Cent" at bottom, with the balance of the space filled with lathework.

Documentary—Upright oblong; colorless figure in circle; on a background of lathework; "United States Internal Revenue" in band around centre; "Documentary" in curved line at top, and in tablet at bottom, "Series of 1914—One Half—Cent."

The Documentary stamps of $1 to $50 face value have the head of Liberty as the principal feature of the design. The three higher values will resemble the same denomination in the 1898 issue but will be printed in single colors instead of having the head in black. The portraits will be: $100, Washington; $500, Hamilton; $1,000, Madison.

Cordials, Wines, Etc.—Upright oblong; colorless figure in centre, with background of crossed lines; "Series of 1914" in central circle without dividing line; in surrounding band, "Cordials, Wines, Etc.;" band cut away at bottom so that central circle and lower tablet run together; in latter, "Cent—United States—Internal Revenue."

All designs have a thin line of color and a thin colorless line running completely around the stamp. All inscriptions and figures are colorless. The stamps were evidently printed in haste, as colors vary greatly, the Documentary stamps from pink to carmine, or rose carmine, possibly the experts will say, and the Cordials from pale green to gray green. The values have already been printed in the WEEKLY.

Joseph C. Zanini reports having seen the 25c, 50c, $1 and $2 beer stamps, surcharged "Emergency Tax, under Act of 1914," in black, except the $2, which is in yellow.

W. E. Marsh reports the current 5c stamp perforated 10.

Howard C. Buttermore reports the following stamps, perforated 10: 7c black plate No. 6919; 10c special delivery plate No. 5863.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us three values of the current English stamps, overprinted "Bechuanaland—Protectorate," like Scott's No. 83. This issue was announced in No. 1232, the 1d being already in the Catalogue. The current ½d Post Card of Great Britain has been overprinted "Bechuanaland Protectorate" in one line.

BRITISH NYASALAND.—Ewen's Weekly announces the issue of a 4d Registration envelope, King George type.
Registration Envelope.
4d dark blue.

CANADA.—Mrs. Louise W. Kellogg shows a plainly marked double impression of the 6c red brown of 1882-90. These double impressions are not unknown to specialists, though not catalogued. Probably due to some imperfection of printing.

EPIRUS.—Ewen's Weekly quotes the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung as follows: "A very short currency was the fate of the Epirot series. Already since Aug. 28, it has been superseded by a new set printed by Messrs. Aspiotis frères of Corfu. These stamps look very original and represent a white cross on blue ground upon which is placed a double-headed eagle. 'Autonomous Epirus' is the wording of the two sides of the stamps. The value in figures and words appears at the foot of the stamp.

Bi-coloured stamps, perforation zig-zag.
1 lepton, brown and light blue.
5 lepta, green and light blue.
10 lepta, red and light blue.
25 lepta, dark blue and light blue.
50 lepta, violet and light blue.
1dr red and light blue.

After the Epirots had taken Koritza, a place belonging to Albania, provisional stamps of the 1 lepton, 5 and 25 lepta values were issued. These provisionals have a likeness with the previous "Chimarra" issue of very primitive, hand-stamped execution, and are with the latter inasmuch in relative connection as the compositor of the Chimarra stamps must have been used for this issue. In both issues are found the same peculiarity by the figure 1: the upline being reversed.

It is not known how many of these provisionals were actually issued, but they were sold at the Post Office above face value, the proceeds will be used for the benefit of the poor.

Unicoloured issue, hand-stamped, white paper punctured with sewing-machine.

Provisionals.
1 lepton, black on white.
5 lepta, black on white.
25 lepta, black on white.

FRANCE.—Ewen's Weekly quotes the Schweizer Briefmarken Zeitung to the effect that the French Postal Administration intends to issue special stamps of the 1 to 25c denominations for franking newspapers and printed matter. These stamps like the Belgian 1 and 2c will be supplied precancelled, and only in large quantities to newspaper circulators, publishers, and such firms who have a large dispatch of printed matter.

Offices in Morocco.—Ewen's Weekly reports a variety of the Red Cross stamp recently chronicled. The red cross overprint is done in blocks of 25, and the seventh stamp has the "c" after "5" omitted. All the crosses vary slightly in type.

GERMAN NEW GUINEA.—The Daily Express says: It is reported that the entire supply of Deutsch Neu Guinea postage stamps in the familiar ship design of the German Colonies, on hand at the post office at Raboul, has been converted for use under the British administration by overprinting them with the cipher "G. R. I."

GREAT BRITAIN.—Morocco Agencies.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the 2sh 6d stamp overprinted, without new value, as noted in No. 1248.

HAYTI.—A. W. Dunning reports having seen used copies of the following stamps of Hayti with the recent "Gl. O. Z." surcharge; Scott's Nos. 26, 38, 52, 57, 64, 65, 66, 96, 97, 109, 138, 149, 155, 140 and 210.

HONDURAS.—Hermann Focke sends us a cover, with the 5c carmine, steamer type, overprinted "Oficial," and also the new 2c brown of the current lithographed set with the same overprint. This is the first stamp of the series to receive this overprint. Apparently, none of the 1913 set has hitherto been used for official service, the 1911 steamer type coming forward until now.

Official Adhesive.
2c brown; black overprint.

HUNGARY.—We are indebted to Conrad L. Friberg for information regarding the surcharged Red Cross stamps noted in Whitfield King & Co.'s notes last week.

MEXICO.—W. J. Stanton informs us of a new "E. S." surcharge now used in the state of Sonora. The surcharge is made with a rubber stamp in purple ink and consists of the two letters in script form in the form of a monogram. The only copies Mr. Stanton has seen are the 1899 3c brown and the 1910 5c. It seems possible just now to obtain most any kind of a stamp with most any kind of a surcharge and perforated or rouletted in any old way.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—It is reported from abroad that Newfoundland is to make a contribution to the National Relief Fund, in the form of a special 2c stamp, which is to be sold for 25 cents.

SONORA.—The California Stamp Co. has shown us another value in the new type set Sonora series; also a new color for the 5c recently chronicled.

Adhesives.
5c black, green and orange.
10c black, red and blue.

TOGO.—According to Ewen's Weekly, there has been two distinct issues of the ship type stamps overprinted "Togo—Anglo-French—Occupation," the stamps mentioned in the excerpt from Stamp Collecting last week being the second issue. The first issue had the value in English money in addition, ½d on the 3pf and 1d on the 5pf. Presumably, the 5pf was used for ½d, when no new value was expressed.

TURKEY.—The London Daily Express says: From Turkey there came to hand by the last mail three values of a new provisional issue, overprinted with two lines of Arabic characters, upon the current pictorial stamps, issued early in the year. The significance of the new inscription has not yet been ascertained, but in all probability it has reference to the closing of the foreign post offices and the achievement of postal independence by Turkey on October 1st. The values seen are 20 paras rose, 1 piastre blue, and 2 piastres green and black, but others doubtless exist.

The Boston Philatelic Society.

THEO. W. BARRY, Pres.; LOUIS G. BARRETT, Vice-Pres.; C. A. HOWES, Sec., 55 Kilby St., Boston; CHAS. S. HILL, Foreign Sec., 67 Milk St., Boston; G. CARLTON RUSSELL, Treas., 38 Wellesley Park, Dorchester, Mass.; J. H. LYONS, Supt. Auctions; HENRY A. KIDDER, Supt. Sales; A. W. DUNNING, Supt. Bourse.

Meetings first (informal) and third (regular) Tuesdays, Room 322, Tremont Bldg., 7.30 P. M.

BOSTON, MASS., Dec. 12, 1914.

The 326th (regular) meeting of the Society will be held at the Club Room on Tuesday evening, December 15th, at 7.30 o'clock.

There will be appropriate Christmas entertainment provided by the Committee as in previous years, and all who can attend will be sure of a good time. Come and bring any friend who is eligible.

The application of Mr. Arthur Abbott will be acted upon.

C. A. HOWES, Sec.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The assembly for supper at 6 o'clock by those who remain in town for the meeting was so successful last month that it will be repeated next Tuesday at the Hotel Dreyfus, Beach Street, near Washington St.

Remember Tuesday, December 15, at 6 o'clock.

BOSTON, MASS., Nov. 17, 1914.

The 324th (regular) meeting of the Society was held at the Club Room this evening with Pres. Barry in the chair and 41 members and friends present.

Mr. Brown reported that a few envelopes had been presented for the Society Collection.

The Library Committee presented the following:

LIBRARY REPORT, JULY-NOV. 1914.

Added by purchase:—Gebruder Senf's Postage Stamp Catalog, Adhesives, 1915, and Entires, 1914. By donation:—90 odd numbers of magazines from A. W. Dunning, 71 ditto from F. H. Burt, 32 ditto from T. W. Barry; year's subscription to "The Blue Book" from A. W. Dunning; and the current numbers of the following magazines generously contributed by the publishers: "Gibbon's Monthly," MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, "Stamp Journal," "Postage Stamp," "Philatelic Journal of Great Britain," "Collectors' Monthly," "Collectors' Journal" and "Mitteilungen des Oberelsassischen Philatelisten Clubs."

Mr. Freeman Putney, Jr., was elected as member No. 598.

The name of Mr. Arthur Abbott was proposed for membership.

Mr. C. A. Howes gave a talk on Nova Scotia, illustrated by a collection of very fine copies unused, on cover and in blocks, loaned by the New England Stamp Co., as the specialized collection of this country which it was hoped to exhibit was not available. Some new points in the philatelic history of Nova Scotia were presented as Mr. Howes has recently been making a special study of this country.

The informal auction for the benefit of the Society Collection realized the neat sum of $19.72 which will enable the Curator to add materially along certain lines. Any donations should be addressed to Mr. A. P. Brown, 17 Alpha Road, Dorchester Center, Mass.

C. A. HOWES, Sec.

The Postal Card Society of America.

S. SCHACHNE, Pres.; W. C. STONE, Vice Pres.; S. M. EDWARDS, Sec., Argusville, N. D.; J. N. MORSE, Treas.; Ex. Com., Pres. and Vice Pres. ex-officio, H. E. CARPENTER, J. H. FOUNTAIN, G. W. HARTWELL.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The secretary hereby calls for nominees for officers for the next year. Let us hear from all. While at it send in an application for membership.

Change of address—Mrs. Caroline L. Gardner, to 2111 Baker St., same city.

For the benefit of new members I will state that for five years beginning March, 1894, (56 numbers) the society published the reports of the different departments, new issues, matters relating to postal and letter cards, etc., in the "Monthly Bulletin of the Postal Card Society of America." These monthly issues contained a great deal of interest to the members. They are interesting to peruse after a lapse of twenty years. There were many numbers remaining after members were supplied and sample copies sent out. The secretary has arranged these remainders in sets as far as they go. None are complete. The most complete contain upward of forty-five numbers. These sets are for sale at 50 cents, each, post paid. The first come will get the largest sets. Remit in post office money order with next year's dues, or if that is already paid, then in stamps.

S. M. EDWARDS, Sec.,
ARGUSVILLE, N. D., Nov. 30, 1914.

WRITING AN ADVERTISEMENT.

It cannot be expected that the mere insertion of an advertisement in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY will overwhelm any dealer with business. An advertisement must be well written, offer desirable stamps and at prices that compel attention.

Recently an advertiser in submitting copy for a small advertisement offering approval selections at 50% discount asked us how many replies he might expect to receive. We could not give him much satisfaction.

Subscribers to the WEEKLY are no different from subscribers to other publications in that they are looking for things that they need, and they want them at as reasonable prices as they can be secured. Make it easy for a collector to answer your adv. and remember that definite offers of stamps at reasonable prices will secure patronage.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centers Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Anyone interested in antiquated paper money will do well to communicate with Luther B. Tuthill, South Creek, N. C. Price list No. 26 is just at hand.

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from Morril B. Spaulding.

—The Stamp Journal describes a variety of the 2c 1893 Columbian. The hat on the person standing third from the left has an indentation giving the appearance of a cocked hat. It is said that about one copy in every thirty-five shows the variety.

—"In checking up the series of ads that I have been running recently in your paper along with several other papers I take pleasure in saying that your paper puts the balance in the shade. I get more good applicants from your paper than all the rest combined and as soon as I can arrange to devote more time to stamp business I shall come in for display space."—H. W. LITTEN.

—Time is the great equalizer. A European stamp tax led to an American war, and now a European war leads to an American stamp tax.—Clipping.

—H. Cormack, the well known South and Central American stamp dealer, is reported seriously ill at his home in Port Ewen, N. Y.

SPITZBERGEN'S MAIL.

PHILATELIC PRODUCTS OF THE WAR.

In our issue of Nov. 28 we chronicled the stamps of the German colony of Togoland as having been overprinted with an "Anglo-French Occupation" surcharge. It was stated that the set showed no overprint of value in English, but a set submitted by W. T. Wilson shows the 3pf brown and the 5pf green to be surcharged "Half penny" and "One penny", while the 20, 25 and 30pf have no values in English money.

Mr. Wilson also submits a very interesting cover with 1d King George Gold Coast postmarked "Lome-Togogebiet." The stamps of the Gold Coast were put into temporary use immediately after the British occupation and it is curious to note the German postmark on the British Colonial stamp.

MONEY ORDERS FOR MEXICO.

The Postmaster General having directed the discontinuance on the 23d instant of the United States Mail Agency at Vera Cruz, Mexico, postmasters, until otherwise instructed, will decline to receive applications for money orders payable in Vera Cruz. They should, however, continue to pay orders correctly drawn on them by the United States Mail Agent at that place and claim credit therefor in the usual manner.

The Postal Administration of Mexico having, on October 26th, announced the suspension of money-order business with the United States, postmasters are warned against paying money orders issued or purporting to have been issued after the date mentioned at any post office in that country.—A. M. DOCKERY, 3d Asst. P. M. G.

THE HINGE

A Journal that Sticks to The Hobby.

Edited by Josiah Slicer Haight.

Vol. I This Month, Same Year. No. 3

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Hinge carries more advertisements than any other all wind stamp journal in Tuckahoe. Our rate of $1.00 per inch is very low considering our enormous circulation. All advertisements are payable one week in advance.

POLITICS IN TUCKAHOE.

Absolm Greg the temperance advocate, professed and avowed, moreover, who is a candidate on the prohibition ticket, caused some comment in our village when it was stated that three kegs of beer were delivered at his home yesterday evening. We have just received the following letter from Mr. Greg:

Editor of the Hinge.

Dear Sir: It is true that three kegs of beer were delivered at my house yesterday. I am collecting beer stamps and I bought those kegs of beer to get the stamps. That is all.

Absolm Greg.

We called Mr. Greg up by phone and offered to have the Hinge stick by him through out the campaign, in return for one of those kegs and contents. A voice replied, "I positively refuse to be interviewed." We have shed what little light we could upon this matter, and we exercise our editorial prerogative and say nothing further.

SILAS SAYS

"Be Gosh! If that 'ere Mex revolution ai'nt like the exemier, jes' 'bout time yere got her soothed over an' cured, out she breaks again. I kin stand if they ken. I'll jes add onter my album a few more flappers an' keep up my watchful waitin' policy fer more Sonorie dope. By Heck!"

THE POOR KING.

Mike: Do you know why the German Emperor is the poorest man in Europe?

Ike: Sure, I don't know.

Mike: He felt in his right pocket for some money, and discovered he had lost a New Guinea, and searching his other pocket he found he had lost some more.

MAY NOT RECOVER.

Dr. Bonehead holds very little hope for the recovery of Ben Zinne who was shot by one of our staff just above the Court House, wounding him seriously as the doctors statement bears out. The trouble started when Ben made the remark that the Hinge was a journal with a backbone of gum arabic.

ADVERTISEMENT.

Lady philatelist of refinement, desires to correspond with gentleman stamp collector who possesses a copy of the 2c Pan-American inverted centre. Object matrimony. No objection to bald headed philatelist. Address: Miss Rose Carmine, 23 Skidoo St., Tuckahoe.

PHILATELY OUT WEST IN 1851.

"Halt" rang out the voice of Water Mark Pete as the Bullion Gulch stage coach came in view. "Throw out the mail pouch and drive on," commanded the road agent. The veteran driver taken by surprise and looking into the muzzle of a dangerous looking weapon could not do otherwise than to obey. When the sack hit the ground the desperado cut it open and hastily but carefully examined the mail. Then with a look of disgust threw the mail to one side and exclaimed: "Foiled again, not a 90c blue to complete my set," and slunk away in the underbrush.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

A STANDARD DECIMAL CLASSIFICATION FOR UNITED STATES POSTAGE STAMPS.

By H. L. WILEY.

The Issue of 1908.

Included in this issue are the stamps on the double lined watermark and those on the single line watermark. These two varieties are designated by the numerals "1" for the double line paper and "2" for the single line paper set immediately following the decimal point. The bluish paper is made a secondary variety of the paper having the double line watermark. Of the secondary varieties are the imperforate stamps, the stamps issued in coils, the stamps issued in booklets, the stamps having machine perforations and the precanceled stamps. This same list of secondary stamps generally applies to the stamps on the paper having the single line watermark. The writer believes that all of the principal varieties have been included in the list.

The Issue of 1909.

In this issue the three commemorative stamps of that year are grouped; the 2 cent Lincoln designated by the numeral "1" to the right of the decimal point, the 2 cent Alaska-Yukon-Pacific having the numeral "2" used and the 2 cent Hudson-Fulton, having for its principal index, the numeral "3," are included under the general heading. The method used in this instance is not desirable because it departs from the general plan, as in the instance of the 2 cent different designs of the 1902 issue, but it may be that a more definite index will be found for these three stamps.

The Issue of 1912.

This issue presents no difficulties. The book leaves are found with two perforations which requires a secondary series of numerals. The imperforate stamps are designated by the numeral "2," the coiled stamps by the numeral "3," the book leaves by the numeral "4" where perforated 12 and by the numeral "5" where perforated 10, the machine perforations by the numeral "6" and precancels by the numeral "7."

I GOT A COLD SHIVER AT 3.13
this G. M., when I heard the knob of my pet safe being twirled by some unknown slabman. I did the fox trot downstairs and came face to mug with Nick Carter's "Spike McCoy." "Take off your mask, you are homely enough without it," says I. "Put it on, and you will look better," says he. "Who are you, and what do you want here?" says I. "I am Paraguay Pete, late of Sing Sing, and I want to see your stock," says he. "What made you travel 1000 miles, when there are dozens of dealers so much nearer home?" says I. "But they haven't got the stamps I want," says he. He pulled out a want list, as long as the hair on a foreign musician, and a roll of bills as thick as the ankle of a Phila. pie woman. Back up, Percy! When I saw him to his private car, 42615, Lehigh Valley, as he entered he called, "Those bills are 'Clucks'." "All right, Pete," says I, "I filled your list from my Cft. Col. 50/50, old top."

READ THIS LETTER.

Dear Sirs: If you have the time, I wish you would read this letter through to the end. I have now been a subscriber to your paper since April, 1907, and have never yet entered a kick. I am not entering one now, but write you as I know of no other way that I can explain to the collector or dealer what I have to say.

For the last ten years I have been buying stamps from various dealers and am an enthusiastic collector. Now the days when I must stop collecting are at hand. Until last June, I was ablebodied and could make my own way without asking aid of any man. Since the accident I have recovered from the injury, but from the nature of same will be a cripple in the left hand for life. While I am able to use the member, it is not fit for manual labor such as I will have to do to get along without begging, which I WON'T do, not if I die first.

The accident took place in a factory of this city, and was caused by not having a clutch on the gravity conveyor, which I was oiling at the time. In the course of my duties I must have slipped on the floor and in falling, my arm fell in between two wooden ball bearing rollers, over which a heavy iron bar passes and same was the cause of the broken arm and wrist. While I am lucky in not losing my whole arm, I am unfortunate to be crippled in the left wrist and joint.

Now as I am quite familiar with the stamps of the world, I wish you would try and interest some dealer in my favor. I think that I can make good at anything in that line. I have a good common school education and some two years of business, which I am not very efficient in as the last two years in school were very irregular, because of my duties in the post-office. I also wish to state that I was an applicant for the U. S. Railway Mail Service, which I had planned on being my life work, now that must be given up, as I am physically unfit.

I can give you any number of references that you may desire. I would not ask you to print this free of charge as I am not a "player on the good will of any man." If I could afford to advertise I would willingly do so. Hoping you will at least give me a little advice, I will close.

Very truly yours,
HARRY C. REDDY,
Fremont, Michigan.

Dec. 3rd, 1914.

P. S. This is my own machine and writing, slow but sure.

(Editor's Note).—The foregoing letter is published as received and we are hopeful that if a place exists for Mr. Reddy, his communication will be the means of finding it.

DATE OF ISSUE 5c 1861.

By A. E. STOCKIN.

In Melville's "Confederate States of America" I find (pp. 26 and 27) a discussion as to the date of issue of the 5 cent green of 1861. All the evidence given is from newspapers of the time. Evans giving October 18 and Howe giving October 16. Collin and Calman's Catalogue as it appeared in the American Journal of Philately gives the earliest known dated cancellation as October 18. I have a cover plainly cancelled "Richmond Va. October 17, 1861." Does this serve to confirm the date of October 17?

EDITORIAL.

Rouletted—Two weeks ago, the one and two cent stamps of the current issues, were referred to as having been seen in the mails. Mr. L. B. Lincoln of the Newfoundland Stamp Exchange, who was the first person to show us the specimens in the condition indicated, now submits the following letter for publication, from Mr. J. H. Harris, postmaster at Kansas City, Missouri, dated December 7th, 1914: "In reply to your inquiry of the 5th instant will say that a local firm who formerly purchased of us unperforated stamps in sheets of four hundred has discontinued purchasing same, leaving us supplied with this stock. In order to dispose of them the perforation you speak of was executed at this office and is therefore a purely local matter." Here is an interesting development and an authoritative statement that accounts for the appearance of the rouletted stamps in the ordinary mails from Kansas City, Mo. These varieties are informal indeed and while we have no wish to exalt them to a position of prominence or to analyze any claims that they may have to enthusiastic recognition, it is to be said that at least they possess that requirement that sometimes is so portentiously dwelt upon by arbiters of philatelic destiny of having been "sold over the post office counter."

Half a Stamp—From Mr. Wm. F. Palmer, East Haddam, Conn., we have received for inspection a cover that is worth the philatelist's eye. Mr. Palmer found recently in a trunk stored away in an attic ("same old story," he observes parantheticallly) about one hundred envelopes from 1862 to 1875 that yielded some interesting combinations, to say nothing of cancellations. Among the envelopes was one sent in 1871 that bore a pair of two cent brown, one of which was halved diagonally and used as a one cent stamp, the inference having been that the supply of three cent stamps had become exhausted at the small post office of mailing. The whole stamp and the half stamp are pen-stroked but the postmark. "Linglestown, Feb. 11, Pa." just missed the stamps. The letter was addressed to East Haddam, Conn. This provisional is an excellent example of nationally unauthorized but locally recognized means of meeting a temporary stamp shortage at a small office.

Genuine Enough—We have seen not a few genuinely used split stamps dating in the seventies when there was no reason to suspect any philatelic impulse as having been responsible for their creation. It was in this decade that the department particularly gave its attention to abolishing the tendency to resort to the use of split stamps on provocation more or less grave. As illustrating this prohibition, we quote from the postal laws and regulations of 1879: "Fractional parts of postage stamps and postage due stamps cannot be recognized in prepayment of postage. For example, a letter or package to which one two-cent stamp and the half of another two-cent stamp are affixed cannot be considered as having been prepaid three cents, but only two cents; and a letter or package on which eighteen cents postage is chargeable cannot be prepaid in full by affixing a six cent stamp and the half of a twenty-four cent samp."

Now the Envelopes—The regular five centavos orange of Mexico, stamped envelope, bearing the inscription showing the dominance of the constitutionalists is surcharged not across the stamped envelope impression but the upper left hand part of the envelope with the familiar imprint: "Gobierno Constitucionalista," separated by an ornament that this time seems to be an 8 lying laterally.

Riff-Raff—From Mr. George W. Linn, we have received an interesting account of the theft of a quantity of spoiled or waste sheets of the green seal issue of Sonora without the seals. In the lot which is alleged to have been taken from the Hermosillo printing office are a small quantity of remainders which naturally cannot be told from the original stamps. Those who appear to be foisting the stamps that were purloined on the market are not clever enough in a philatelic sense to cover up their tracks so that suspicion against their offerings is not excited in the mind of the knowing collector.

The Shut-Ins—We have received several more offers of stamp gifts for philatelic shut-ins, and we shall be glad to act as intermediary between the givers and the afflicted philatelists, who find in stamp collecting some degree of mental comfort. We may add in this connection that again the Sunset Stamp Company of San Antonio, Texas, comes to the fore, as shown by the following letter: "Through illness, we have gotten behind in reading the WEEKLY, and so therefore we take the liberty of writing to you as we did last year for the names and addresses of ten 'shut-ins.' We wish you and all the others connected with the WEEKLY, A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year."

A Suggestion—One of our readers, Mr. W. A. Girton, Franklin Grove, Illinois, says: "I have been quite busy of late arranging my old French and Belgian stamps with postmarks from the war zone. Brussels, CharleRoy, Bruges, Louvain, Lille, Reims, etc., I find hundreds of them very plainly postmarked fifteen and twenty years back. These postmark journeys in the affected countries may appeal to other collectors as they do to me, especially so if Germany becomes spotted with battlefields."

Non-Postage Stamps—The post office department as usual at this time of year wishes it to be known generally that there are different of the foreign countries that refuse to admit to their mails articles bearing non-postage stamps "unless the non-postage stamps are affixed to the backs of the covers." Letters violating this ruling will be returned to the sender or to the dead letter office. The naming of "non-postage stamps" is obvious and the appelation covers all celebration labels and charity seals.

London Opinion—The largest firm of dealers in London has just recorded its belief in the stability of philately notwithstanding prevailing conditions, in the following words: "One thing our clients may be quite sure of, and that is that the war will not cause any permanent reduction in prices and values of stamps. On the contrary, we are convinced that the war will create thousands of new collectors and probably enormously increase prices of stamps. That is what took place after the Boer War." Etc. . .

POST OFFICE DEPT. ORDERS.

In order to facilitate the handling and delivery of mail during the Christmas holidays, the requirement that domestic matter bearing on the address side adhesive seals or stickers, other than lawful postage stamps, shall be treated as unmailable, is hereby suspended from December 1, 1914, to January 1, 1915. Postmasters shall, however, inform their patrons that such seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail.

Owing to existing conditions, the dispatch of parcel post mails to Belgium is suspended until further notice. Postmasters must refuse to accept parcel post packages for mailing to Belgium, therefore, until otherwise instructed.

Arrangements have been made for the resumption of the dispatch of parcel post mails from the United States for Germany, Austria and Hungary. Until further notice, therefore, parcel post packages which conform to the prescribed conditions should be accepted for mailing to said countries.

The Department is advised that until further notice mail addressed to the United States military forces, Vera Cruz, Mexico, should be sent to Galveston, Texas.

CUBAN CHARACTER IN STAMP MAKING.

Cuba's bureau of engraving and printing, with a force of 100 workers of many nationalities and a maximum output of 2,500,000 stamps a day, was installed by George P. Foster who was for 17 years an employee of the bureau of engraving and printing at Washington.

He returned from his labors a few weeks ago and tells a most interesting story to the Washington Star, of how American determination, machinery and efficiency overcame, seemingly, endless obstacles which eventually gave Cuba her own stamp-making bureau. Incidentally the success of the plant at Havana has led President Menocal, Mr. Foster says, to urge the Cuban Congress to allow the little republic to make her own paper money.

The history of the enterprise is as follows:

In 1911, Jose Lopez Rodriguez, millionaire director of one of the finest publishing houses on the island, secured from the Cuban government the right to engrave and print all stamps which were to be used. Before embarking upon the enterprise, he had decided to expend $300,000 in the construction of the new building which was to be the home of the plant, and to outfit it with the most modern of American engraving and printing machinery.

Hence Jose Lopez Rodriguez came to this country and traveled far and wide, inspecting the foremost printing houses of the nation. An expert himself, he did not reach a quick conclusion. Eventually his travels brought him to this city, where he was invited to go through the Washington bureau. There he found the perfection he sought. Calling the director aside he asked him to name some man in this model of efficiency who could copy it on a smaller scale in Cuba.

"I am satisfied that if this can be done," said Jose Lopez Rodriguez, "my troubles will be at an end."

From all accounts the word "picturesque" is not misused when applied to Rodriguez. "Pote" they call him, affectionately, all over the island of Cuba. The word "Pote" means pot. The nickname was derived from Rodriguez's frequent statement that he collected all ideas and "boiled them in a pot."

Rodriguez had come to Havana from Spain when a boy—a penniless, friendless, but determined boy—who began his career by selling books on the street. His tremendous imagination—he seemed to possess a second sight—and his steady digging began to show results. He became several times a millionaire, and one of the trusted assistants of all Cuban political factions. The belief in his personal integrity, so Foster says, is boundless.

So, lock, stock and bottle, the job of starting the new factory was turned over to the young printer. He traveled around purchasing $125,000 worth of machinery, the exact duplicates of the type to be found in the government's bureau of engraving and printing in Washington. The paper and gum to be used was also the same.

In the latter part of 1911, Foster, with five Americans whom he had taken with him, reached Havana, and by November the building had been completed and the machinery installed.

There was a big celebration attended by President Gomez and his cabinet, buttons were pressed, the machinery started on its trial spin, many flowery speeches were made and Havana sat back to see the "Americano" make good. There were three little things that obstructed the road to happiness. They were:—

No English-speaking employees.

An utter lack of mechanical knowledge among the Cubans, to whom this work was as impossible as the solution of a problem in higher mathematics.

The climate.

The bureau of engraving and printing, where Director Foster had worked for so many years, was the direct outgrowth of 75 years of experimenting. Girls, who do most of the work, begin when they are young as apprentices on the easiest and simplest of work. They are gradually promoted as they become more efficient. Thus, it is easy to see that the force has a never-ending supply from which to draw.

Not so the Cuban bureau. Here it was necessary to put 80 "green" girls and 20 "green" men to work at once. And as though this were not difficult enough of itself, Director Foster, the only teacher, couldn't speak a word of Spanish. The first thing the director did was to begin a study of the native language. Meanwhile he employed a native interpreter, a girl who was bright, but who could not be expected to grasp the first essentials of machinery.

Patiently he explained each detail of the work to his class. First he would tell the interpreter over and over again until she began to see light. Then he would give a personal demonstration of what he was trying to do, working slowly on the machines until the class as a whole began to see light. Then he would repeat his instructions via the English-Spanish route, and finally would start the girls and men to work.

It was curious to notice the little blunders that kept cropping out. The girls did not see the need of all the trouble with the paper. Paper was paper, was it not? Madre Dios, did the senor think the paper was sacred? If the paper was spoiled could he not buy more? The senor could and did buy more—much more, before his class showed perceptible improvement.

"Slywipe" is a phrase which the American engraving girl knows throughout the United States as synonymous with carelessness. One of the young Cuban maidens used to smile with pleasure when this phrase was applied in reproach to her.

"The senor has called me shighigh," she would say, proudly. "Shighigh" was as close as she could get to "Slywipe" for many and many a day.

All the time that Foster was training these girls other problems arose to confront him. The gum preparation which was perfectly satisfactory in the United States was not the right consistency for Cuba. The excessive moisture in the atmosphere softened the gum, and whole sheets of stamps would become glued together and would have to be destroyed. Oil, which was thick in the United States, would thin out when it reached Cuba. Vaseline was in constant demand, for the machines, erected so close to salt water, were constantly rusting and getting out of order. All of the extra parts which were stored away were rusted before they were ever put into use.

Foster tells of one afternoon soon after his arrival when a terrific thunderstorm broke. The rainfall was so heavy that it was impossible to send the paper into the drying machines. These had to be stopped while the papers were put in by hand. Then the sheets would be taken out and others substituted. They worked in this fashion all the afternoon.

Out of 10 girls who would be tried out, four would be retained. The other six would prove incompetent and would be dismissed. The same approximate average held regarding the men.

Director Foster's comments on the relative merits of Cuban and Spanish girls, in this new work, are interesting.

"I found," he says, "that the Cuban girls were the more intelligent. They would grasp an idea more readily. They seemed to excel the Spanish girls in understanding what the purpose of all this work was. But they never attained the ultimate efficiency of the Spanish girls. They were more anaemic than their Spanish sisters. The individual output of work would not be as high. In other words, they could do more work at the beginning and less as they proceeded, while the Spanish girls reversed this rule.

"How do you think," Foster was asked, "the Cuban girls would compare with American girls?"

"American girls," he replied, "could do more work in the end than either the Cubans or Spaniards. But I doubt whether they would learn as quickly as the Cuban girls did."

One year was given Foster before he was expected to turn out a supply of stamps. The first batch were turned out within three months—nine months before the time required. The issue comprised 20,000,000 revenue stamps. The government passed upon them and found them entirely equal to what they had been led to expect.

Since that time the plant has turned out 400,000,000 revenue stamps for matches, cigars, cigarettes and other taxable articles, and has additionally acquired the right to issue the postage stamps and what are known as the guaranty stamps—the latter proving that cigars and cigarettes are made of pure Cuban tobacco.

Of the former they have issued 20,000,000; of the latter, 67,000,000. But this was done at a price. Director Foster lost 26 pounds in six weeks. He was required, of necessity, to be on the jump all day long, and then at night, when his Cuban employees were sleeping, he was in the study of his home pondering over problems of chemistry, management or other things. It took him six weeks to find a gum which could be used in the Cuban climate. It was solved when he discovered the proper proportion of dextrin, a substance something like tapioca, which should go into the concoction.

The hardest lesson to instil into the minds of the Cuban girls was the lesson of accuracy—absolute accuracy on all occasions. The girls, and many of the men, were of the indolent, easygoing type. To them a sheet of postage stamps was about the same as a sheet of paper. If it was lost, another could easily be made to replace it. It was only after many hard lessons that the girls were made to understand that every single stamp in the millions turned out daily, must be accounted for before they went home.

The director, or "jefe," as the Cubans called him, had personally to count and recount the sheets of stamps every day. This in itself was a good, man-sized job. Foster tells one story of an occasion when he found, at the end of the day, that his list tallied one-quarter of a sheet more than it should. Calling all of the girls and men together, he explained to them that this quarter sheet must be found. They were impatient. Supper was awaiting them.

Eventually they began the—to them—useless search. Box after box was opened and recounted. The director himself found the box that was one-quarter of a sheet shy of its proper contents. It was among the last of the boxes opened. This was the lesson needed to teach carefulness. Thereafter the director had little trouble.

As soon as things were running smoothly, Foster employed two Cuban boys as apprentices. They are now going through all the stages that result in the expert plate printer, and when they have concluded their courses they will be the first Cuban engravers to learn the art of plate printing on the island.

As a remedy for the thin oil, Director Foster found that the use of vaseline in greater quantities will prolong the life of the machinery. But in discussing this he adds:

"We still confront another difficulty which is not in the way of the United States Government. We are 1,200 miles from our base of supplies, and consequently must order our material in large quantities. Frequently we have as many as 2,000,000 sheets of paper for stamps on hand. One must recall the size of each sheet, 18 by 20¾ inches, before the magnitude of such a bundle is realized. This paper is kept in a specially built warehouse; it is carefully packed so that our one biggest enemy, humidity, will not affect it. Other supplies are purchased on about the same scale."

Foster's comparisons are illuminating, not only in regard to himself, but also concerning the general sentiment of Cubans toward Americans.

"I had occasionally heard," he says, "that there was a certain antipathy toward Americans. I found this to be absolutely false, not only regarding myself, but also my companions and those Americans whom I met on the island. The Cubans are cordial and gratefully appreciate what the United States has done toward aiding them to better government.

When I took charge, I found that the labor officials in different branches of the plant were more than anxious to do whatever they could to make my work lighter. They were especially helpful to me while I was struggling with the Spanish language. Time after time they would correct my mistakes. They did it in the politely pleasant way which leaves no embarrassment.

One thing which the new bureau has done is to overcome largely the Latin prejudice against girls going out to work. Time was when this would have been regarded as a disgrace. Now it is accepted as honorable. When Foster first took charge he had a little difficulty in persuading relatives of the girls that the government did not expect them to serve as chaperon. It is a custom as ancient as the Latin race that no girl shall go forth unless she is accompanied by an older person. Many mothers tried to enforce this custom on the bureau of engraving and printing, but were eventually persuaded that their presence was not necessary in a business establishment.—The Cuba Review.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

UNITED STATES.—The new Massachusetts "Stock Transfer Tax" stamps have been issued, and are bound to be popular with collectors. We have seen only the 2c value as yet. The design is an upright oblong, 22x28 mm. with a broad border of lathe work, broken in the lower corners by the larger circles containing the figures of value. The Arms of Massachusetts occupies the centre of the design. "Commonwealth of Massachusetts" is in two straight lines at the top with "Stock Transfer Tax" in a curved tablet just over the arms. "Cents" appears at the bottom between the figures of value. The stamps are printed on white wove unwatermarked paper, and are perforated 12.

State Revenue.

2c orange.

Kendall P. Smith and Milton R. Miller call attention to a change in watermark in the new revenue stamps. The 1c Documentary stamps are now issued on paper watermarked double line "U S I R" while first printings were on paper with the single line "U S P S" watermark. The latter is printed in a pink shade, while the regular paper has the carmine shade.

F. L. Bennett also calls attention to the new watermark, and reports having seen the "U S P S" watermark on the 1c, 2c and 5c Documentary and ½c Proprietary, and the "U S I R" on the 2c, 3c and 4c Documentary and ¼c, ⅝c and 1¼c Proprietary.

Lowell J. Ragatz, C. A. Howes and others have called our attention to the current 1c envelope, watermarked "U S S E" precancelled "Federalsburg—Maryland", in violet. This is believed to be the first precancelled envelope on record.

The last A. P. S. publication was franked with a strip of coil 1c stamps precancelled "Federalsburg—Maryland," printed in violet ink.

CHINA.—Nabha.—W. T. Wilson sends us the 4a and 1r King George stamps with the normal overprint "Nabha—State" at the top and "Service" at the bottom. A year ago Mr. Wilson sent us these two stamps, but with the provisional overprint, "Service" at the top and "Nabha—State" at the bottom.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have received from several correspondents a full page clipping from the New York Evening Telegram of Tuesday, December 8. It is of special interest to stamp collectors from the fact that more than a hundred U. S. stamps are illustrated either in whole or in part. All our correspondents call attention to the infraction of P. O. regulations, it being the most serious one that has ever come under our observation.

—The American Stamp Dealers' Association, a protective organization, is now an assured fact. The secretary, W. F. Slusser, Key West, Fla., has favored us with a list of the members, which by the way, is very representative and the Association gives evidence of becoming a very worthy organization.

PUNS ON PENNY POSTAGE, 1840.

My Dear Friend.—I write you this letter to explain to you why you have next to nothing to pay for it. The Government has settled the business; and the Chancellor of the Exchequer has resolved to set his revenue a-going by the Post. We are to pay a penny for a letter, which is expected to have upon it the stamp of the Post Office, and of public approbation at the same time. I hardly think it will. Some of the community are looking dull about it already. There is a pence—ive air about the two—I beg pardon, the—one penny postmen, which strikes every one. They intimate that it is gammon to load a man with an additional hundredweight of paper, and to call that a reduction of public duty. It clearly affects people of that stamp; and the public surmise it may even touch the newspapers. In short, they say that the Times will be quite altered by the Post. Ladies generally seem to like the idea, but there is a visible depression in the mails. Many a coachman has been thrown off his guard, and surprised into a most determined alteration of carriage. The Government will be a political midwife, engaged in an everlasting delivery. London is already afflicted with a metropolitan rheumatism, produced by the introduction of fresh draughts into passages, the carpenters having cut holes in all the street-doors. Sanguine people, however, retain their knockers, in the hope of getting the reward offered for the discovery of perpetual motion! They say there is to be an issue of more than a million of letters a day; but men are a little at issue about this. There must be some truth in it, however, as two thousand counters have been engaged,—one thousand to count them and the other to count them upon. Sorters of all sorts are employed. At the Post Offices, at all hours, the pigeon holes will be surrounded by carriers. The poor fellows will be like muskets, perpetually going off. Rowland Hill has invented this scheme; but the postmen do not complain of him so much as of the other hills they must trudge over with their great bags of letters. The only district there is any contention for is Bag shot heath, once famous for highwaymen; they say, however, that we are all highwaymen now, and do nothing but make them "stand and deliver" from morning till night. Some mercantile quarrels have sprung out of the new regulation. For instance, there is a good deal of milling among the paper-makers. The march of paper will be prodigious—the French say we shall have none left, that it will be all papier marche! Men, women, and children are to write—right or wrong. Enjoinments to this duty—now the other duty is off—press from all quarters. "Be sure you send me plenty of notes," says the son, departing for College. "Write to me often, Billy, do," asks the affectionate mother of her school-going child. Love-letters, containing mutual pledges will be popped into post by thousands; and hearts gone passed redemption will be slipped recklessly through a hole in the door. It is uncertain whether orators will not cease spouting and singers write the notes which they formerly would have uttered. Iron mongers are looking up—and forgery is going on famously—in consequence of the great demand for steam steal pens. Manifold-writers are quite exhausted. I confess, I do not like the system myself—as it's Hill, it has its ills; any good in it will appear on an examination—

Post Mortem.

WITH THE BOY PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

GETTING BUSINESS.

In every industry that depends upon selling goods, the selling end is the most important, and is the division that receives the most attention from the executive in charge. No matter how profitably the merchant buys his stock, or prepares it for sale, if his methods of drawing sales are at fault, his business will suffer. Since it is the sales department that brings in the money, it is highly important that that branch of the business be the most perfect in the whole organization.

The work of the Sales Department may be divided into two classes:

Getting the Business.

Service, or Keeping the Business.

Publicity is the recognized business builder in all lines. There are many ways of gaining publicity, but all tend to influence sales. A concern may have a good or bad reputation, according to its merits, and since this reputation is publicity in a certain sense, it is necessary that the good name of the house be maintained. In these days of competition, every concern must give absolute satisfaction and service or fall by the way-side. The concern that can deliver the goods the way the people want them and is not afraid to back their product to the limit will gain a reputation that is the best possible advertising.

I have paid considerable attention to the advertising feature of modern business, and believe I can offer a few hints to the new dealer, (possibly one or two to some of the old fellows, as not a few seem to know little of this most important end of their business). Let us imagine that we are in charge of a stamp business, and are "after the customers." We have an advantage over the real dealer, inasmuch as we can do anything we please. We are unlimited in our stock—of imagination.

Advertising begins farther back than the columns of the paper, or the circular letter. It begins when the first stock is purchased. Let us cite two examples: Anderson has ideas on advertising and decides to feature a certain line of stamps, say the stamps of America. Accordingly, he designs two series of books. One series is by countries, the other is sold at large discounts to work off the "culls" and stamps out of his line, or surplus stock. He wishes to feature the first as "Anderson's American Approvals," accordingly he buys his stock with the intention of making the finest possible series of American approvals. The picked copies he lays aside for his first class series, and the others he discards for sale through the cheaper books. Whenever he buys a lot, he considers the saleability through his books, and the advertising possibilities of the lot. He intends to make a name for his series, and to help his advertising, he designs a unique campaign featuring "Anderson's American Approvals." This method will help him, inasmuch as it attracts attention, and keeps his name before the public.

Jones also intends to put out a series of approvals. He has little advertising ability, and cannot see the advantage of buying stock to feature any one line. Accordingly, he prepares a very ordinary set of books, including good, bad and passable stamps in his books. He uses ordinary stock approval books, rubber stamps his name on the cover and on his stationery, and does not adopt a trade name. He advertises as follows:

50% DISCOUNT APPROVALS.
from a large collection. 50 stamps free to every applicant who encloses 2c for postage.
H. E. Jones, Noplace, Iowa.

He offers not a thing to attract the collector's attention. His display instead of featuring a name that the collectors can place his books by, announces that he has to offer just the same thing that some several hundred others are selling. His books themselves do not create any additional interest to the collector. His stock may be fine, but it is so carelessly prepared that the buyer is dissatisfied, and as a result, will certainly neglect to recommend H. E. Jones to his collecting friends. This, while it may not hurt Jones' reputation, will do nothing to increase his business.

A grocer may start business in a small town. His shop may be commonplace and his apples wormy, yet he will do business until competition comes along. Then he will either wake up, or close up. Competition is lively in the stamp business, and the successful dealer must keep abreast of the times or close up his shop. Business will not come to any dealer without attraction. Certain Eastern dealers do not advertise. Very well. But don't they advertise? True, you never see their name in print, but ask a New York collector where he can get such and such a stamp in fine condition. You have tried every dealer without success. He will tell you to go to the — Company, that their stock is very large and their service unexcelled. They have been doing business for forty years and carry a very large and fine lot of stamps. They never advertise, because they have the best possible advertising, a name for efficiency in supplying wants and service in handling orders. They may not know it, but every satisfied customer is an indirect advertisement. Therefore, they advertise.

Every dealer must attract attention in some way to himself, and put individuality into his business. Colman, of Washington, has won fame because he is known as the "headquarters for U. S. & Colonies," "P. M." was well-known for his "Large Selections," Stanley Gibbons have gained note as "The People with the Goods," etc. Suppose that all of these dealers advertised "50% approvals." Would they draw trade from one another? Not in ten thousand years unless each had something better than his rival. No buyer is going to patronize a dealer unless he believes he will do better there than elsewhere. If you want success in advertising, put yourself back of your product, feature some line of your business, and begin to advertise from the beginning. Of course, a good salesman can sell anything, but it is far easier to sell something good. Also, the people come back for more, and it is continued buying that spells profit, seldom the first or second order. Before you start to sell, prepare your goods in some attractive manner that can be featured.

It is not necessary to have a large stock, nor even a fine stock. Personally, I have a very small stock, yet I am selling with satisfactory results to patrons of the big dealers. Every dealer can offer something attractive to the public. It may be "1c approvals" of cheap stamps, or "Simplified Selections" for the beginner, or "Big Books" for the busy buyer, or "Square-deal Packets," according to the circumstances of the dealer.

It would be useless to outline unique methods in these columns, as a certain amount of originality must enter into every sales plan. Later, some of the schemes that have been successful and unsuccessful in advertising stamp business will be discussed. In an early issue, we will continue the adventures of Anderson and Jones in the stamp business, and will show how they wrote good and bad copy. Let it be understood that the two examples named are truly fictitious and do not apply to any dealer, but the names are used merely to strengthen the copy.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

O. J. R.—I am not very familiar with the Peruvian stamp in question. If this surcharge is hand-stamped, it is not worth a great deal more inverted. If it is genuinely printed, however, it should be worth quite a little more than the normal variety. These stamps are hard sellers, however.

I have heard nothing about a 6c 1907 Honduras in ultramarine. There are several distinct shades of this stamp, however. Are you sure that your copy is truly ultramarine, and not lavender? I have seen shades bordering on a blue, yet hardly ultramarine.

The surcharges on your Indian and Venezuelan stamps are control marks of some sort. The Venezuelan stamps inscribed "Escuelas" (schools) and "Instruccion" are revenues as well as postage stamps.

G. G. G.—Your New South Wales stamp apparently has an inverted watermark. It is rarer this way than with normal watermark, and a collector interested in this country might pay you a premium for it. I have never seen one sold, so cannot put a price on it.

C. A.—I do not know of any book on the stamps of Bosnia. This little country seems to have been neglected by the philatelic scribes. It is possible that a letter addressed to Mr. Adam E. Daum, Assistant Librarian of the American Philatelic Society, 421 Wood Street, Pittsburgh, Pa., will bring you the desired information.

T. P. S.—Your Cuba stamp surcharged "u" in "October" and the Paraguay stamp with flag in "5" missing are caused by broken letters. As there are a great many differences of this sort and since they generally are of interest only to a very advanced specialist, they are not listed in the catalogue. Almost any sheet of stamps will present some slight difference, especially if surcharged, so it is almost impossible to list all these differences, and the vast majority of collectors do not favor listing such varieties.

Your German-Turkey surcharge and Reunion stamp with the differences in type are minor differences of considerable interest, yet scarcely of importance enough to be listed. The catalogue does, however, list many varieties of this sort, and I can see no reason why they should not include yours if they list any.

The Colombian Republic stamp exists with several varieties of hand-stamp, and apparently little effort was made to secure absolute uniformity in these stamps.

I cannot account for your Russian stamps with numeral watermark, unless this watermark is part of the paper-makers brand or mark. Varieties of this nature occur in the stamps of Argentine and British Colonies.

Your French stamp with dash in "5" is caused by a scratch or broken plate.

I believe your Spanish stamp to be a chemical changeling, since blues are easily turned to green by certain common chemical reactions.

WHEAT AND CHAFF.

A. C. Roessler in his September Stamp News writes an interesting article on the Postal Service of Iceland, wherein he states that there are four carriers employed, and "No uniforms are worn." It looks like a cold winter for postmen in Iceland.

THE STAMPS OF DENMARK.

By FRED. J. MELVILLE.

Denmark has used postage stamps for sixty years, during which period the design has not often been changed. The first stamps were issued during the reign of King Frederick VII, but it was not until nearly the end of the long reign of King Christian IX that the portrait of the Danish ruler was introduced—on the stamps of 1904. Today, however, it may be regarded as customary in Denmark for the stamps to bear the portrait of the Sovereign, and the sudden death of King Frederick VIII necessitated the preparation of new stamps. That was the view taken by the head of the firm of contractors for the Danish stamps and banknotes, on hearing the sad news during a visit to London, recently.

The early alterations in Danish stamps were occasioned by changes of currency. The first stamps were denominated in rigsbankskilling (48½ R. B. S.—1 mare banso—1s 5½d); the next issue was in skilling (96 skilling—1 rigsbankdaler—2s 3d), this currency continuing until 1874, when, in the stamps of that year the values were expressed in ore (100 ore—1 krona—1s 1d). The English equivalents are approximate. The two values in the first, the rigsbankskilling, issue of 1851 are the 2 R. B. S. blue, and the 4 R. B. S. brown. A separate design was prepared for each value, the lower one having an uncoloured circular space in the centre, in which the value is expressed by the figure and word—"2 rigsbankskilling"; the higher value has the Danish regalia in the centre, and the value is not expressed in figures, but in the inscription at the bottom, "Fire R. B. S."

During a visit to Copenhagen in 1898 His Majesty King George (then Duke of York) elicited the information that the 2 R. B. S. stamp, which at that time was being much discussed in philatelic circles, was produced from a single steel die, from which ten matrices were obtained in plaster, and the type-metal plates of 100 stamps were made from the plaster matrices by stereotyping. Both stamps were printed on paper which was covered with a burelage of yellow wavy lines, as a protection against forgery; they were also watermarked with the device of a crown, and a still further protection was afforded by the insertion, in a different part of each of the two designs, of a so-called "secret mark" the letter F standing for M. W. Ferslew, the engraver.

The change to the skilling currency involved new engravings, and A. Buntzen was entrusted with the work. He followed the Ferslew engraving of the 4 R. B. S. for the design of all the new stamps, but reduced the inscriptions to the shortest of contractions. The value is expressed "2 S." The "K. G. L." on the left stands for Kongeligt (Royal); "Post" at the top is the only word spelt out on the stamp; " F. R. M." at the right is for frimaerke (stamp). The values 2, 4, 8 and 16 skilling were, like the stamps of the preceding series, issued imperforate, and the ground of the design, between the outer border and the wreath which encloses the regalia, is composed of fine dots. It is this last feature which is the most prominent distinction between the 4 and 8 skilling stamps of 1853-57, and those values which Buntzen engraved anew in 1858; in the place of the dotted ground the new stamps have a ground of wavy lines filling the spandrels. The stamps of all four values, and both the types of the 4 and 8 skilling (viz., the dotted ground and the wavy-lined ground) are known rouletted and unofficially perforated.

All the stamps from the Ferslew and Buntzen dies are of a small square shape, but with the adoption of perforation in 1864, it was found more convenient to follow the upright oblong shape of stamps as used by most of the other countries. The engraver, Ph. Batz, continued the use of the regalia as the central device, but in his design the crown is on an oval medallion, and the crossed sword and sceptre extend out into the inscribed band which surrounds the central device. The same abbreviated inscriptions were continued, the same values were repeated, but a new one was added to them in 1865 in the 3 skilling dull rose. The perforation of this issue gauges 12½, 13.

STAMPS WORTH WHILE.

If you are starting a collection, don't try to find the greatest number of stamps for a dollar, but look for the best dollar's worth even though it be but one stamp. A good stamp bought for a dollar is an investment and an asset. A dollar's worth of poor stamps is a liability. Buy the good stamps for your collection first, everybody has the low priced ones to sell or give away—and they will come to you for the asking. If you want to buy stamps worth while and your name is not on our Mailing List

The same engraver, Batz, was responsible for the new type introduced in 1870, showing the large numeral in the centre, with the name "Denmark" above and value below, contained in the enclosing oval band; the stamps were printed in two colours, one for the entire central portion and the other for the spandrels and sides of the frame. The values at this date were still expressed in skilling, but, in 1874, practically the same design was continued after the adoption of the ore currency. The perforation of the stamps of this design, whether skilling or ore values, was, for the most part, made by comb-machines, gauging 14x13½, but the earlier "12½-13" machine was also used at different periods.

In 1882 a new design was introduced, with the view to reducing the cost of manufacturing the stamps; the central device is the Arms of Denmark, and the value is expressed at each side in figures. The stamps of this design were all produced at one printing instead of two, but the change only affected three values, 5, 10, and 20 ore, until 1896, when the series was extended to six denominations. The other values meanwhile were continued in the familiar bi-coloured series. These two designs were in con-current use until 1904-5, when the King Christian IX portrait type, engraved by M. Damman, of Paris, came into use. For some time during the preparation of the 1904-5 stamps, two of the old stamps, the 8 ore and 24 ore, were surcharged 4 ore and 15 ore, respectively, these being the first provisional issues Denmark had occasion to produce.

The stamps of 1904-5 were of two kinds, produced by two distinct methods of printing. The King's head type were printed from recess plates, and included five values, 10, 20, 25, 50 and 100 ore; the other kind were surface-printed, and show a simple ornamental ground with the value in coloured numerals on an uncoloured oval; this second design was used for the 1, 2, 3, 4, and 15 ore. A new die of the King's head was engraved in 1905 at the Imperial Printing Office in Berlin, and the 5 ore from this die appeared in November, 1905, and the 10 ore, which had already appeared in the Damman type in 1904, was superseded by the same value in the Berlin type in April, 1906, although King Christian IX had died three months previously. The next year, 1907, a commencement was made with the series of portrait stamps of the late King Frederick

VIII; these also were from dies engraved at the Imperial Printing Office at Berlin.

A year or so ago it was intended to issue a new value, 35 ore, but owing to a fire which occurred at the works of Messrs. Thiele, of Copenhagen, where all the Danish stamps are printed, it was found impossible to do more than provide a makeshift in time for issue on April 1, as officially announced. Recourse had, therefore, to be made to surcharging old stock in order to provide stamps of this denomination, and remainders of the 16 ore and 20 ore of the 1874 issue and the 32 ore official stamp of 1875 were converted into the new value of 35 ore, the official stamp having an additional overprint to indicate its availability for ordinary postal purposes. As a matter of fact, the 35 ore of the permanent type was only one day late, being issued on April 2.—Telegraph.

LET US SURPRISE HIM.

"Gentlemen. Mr. Daniel Torpy, Elba, N. Y., is an old soldier. For several years he has been helpless—sitting up but a few hours each day and never able to stand up. His only pastime is reading and stamps. I have taken the WEEKLY for him, also given him a quantity of stamps, but he would be very grateful for a few more. His pension hardly supports him and if you could so arrange it that he might get a few stamps for Christmas, you would be doing a favor that would be greatly appreciated by an Old Soldier, who has little to help pass away the long and tedious hours.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Two weeks ago we illustrated the designs to be used upon the new Canal Zone postage dues. In some way the heading of the article ascribed these stamps to Cuba instead of Canal Zone.

—We have received clippings from Herman W. Boers, one of which gives the particulars of the meeting of the Detroit Philatelic Society, Saturday, Dec. 5. Karl Koslowski exhibited his collection of Russian postage stamps, an exceptionally fine one. The society has some twenty-five members and meets every two weeks.

—Lowell J. Ragatz advises us that he has seen some Patiala State ½a and 1a King Edward "Postage and Revenue" type in which the "Patiala State" is printed in quite large letters with glossy ink, some of the stamps having Bombay postmark. Mr. Ragatz secured the information from India that no such stamps were ever issued in Patiala. He also states that he has seen some fake surcharges of Italy overprinted "LaCanea" in black, exactly like Scott's 852. The values seen thus far are 1, 2, 5, 10 and 15c. We have not verified the above information.

—E. B. Hill of Mesa, Ariz., submits a cover showing a 10c registration stamp used in payment of regular postage.

—Fred Timeaus sends us a clipping from the Seattle Post-Intelligencer giving the particulars of a three days' convention of the Washington State Philatelic Society which met recently in that city. The meetings were held at the Savoy and several fine collections were shown.

—We have been furnished with correspondence between H. Tasker and the Quebec Post Office in which we are acquainted with the fact that J. L. A. Couture, 31 Crown St., Quebec, has been deprived of all postal facilities. Mr. Tasker's latest communication to Couture was returned stamped, "Suspected to be of a fraudulent character."

—Clippings are acknowledged with thanks from C. M. Breder, W. F. Van Dusen, James D. Patterson, Wm. F. Works, E. Russell Jones (2), Burt McCann.

—T. E. Flick, secretary of the Galveston Philatelic Society, sends us the club program for 1914-15. The society is in a very flourishing condition, with some twenty-five members, and is doing an excellent work in holding up the interest in philately in Galveston.

—The N. P. S. met December 11 at the home of Wm. L. Aldrich. After a short business session a pleasant evening was spent in the enjoyment of musical selections. Refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed.

—The first annual banquet of the Brooklyn Stamp Society was held at Grisoli's, Brooklyn, on December 9, with C. H. Nammack, vice-president, as toastmaster. Responses to various toasts were made by Edw. Weiss, J. W. Nicklin, M. Ohlman, W. J. Coleman, Wm. Lycett, and E. H. Gammans, Jr. Secretary Lycett informs us that the society has a membership of over thirty, twenty-five of whom were present at the banquet.

—"Would you put your readers on their guard against a set of stamps, inscribed 'BELGIQUE—BELGIE,' oblong shape, bearing the portraits of the Belgian King and Queen. They are offered from Holland with the story that they were in use in Flanders for two days only. The values are 5c green, 10c rose and 20c mauve, and the copies we have seen are postmarked 'ROULERS, 5 OCTO, 18-19 1914.' They are a swindle and we are officially informed by the Belgian postal authorities that the 'Roulers' postmark must be from a stolen or forged die."—ALFRED SMITH & SON.

OMAHA'S SUCCESSFUL CHRISTENING.

At the organization meeting of the Omaha Stamp Club held on November 27, 1914, there were present the following: Jos. Balaz, Frank Brown, W. C. Estes, R. C. Hoyt, C. T. Lam, C. C. Meihsner, Rev. F. W. Leavitt, F. S. Parmelee, O. E. Stark, N. T. Thorson, H. A. Whipple, John Benson, C. G. Carleman, and L. T. Brodstone of Superior, Neb.

Permanent organization was made, a constitution adopted and the following officers elected to serve during the coming year: President, Richard C. Hoyt; Vice President, Frank S. Parmelee; Secretary-Treasurer, Ora E. Stark. Dues were fixed at $1.00 per year, payable quarterly in advance. On motion the invitation of Mr. Parmelee to use his offices at 210 First National Bank Building for meetings of the club was accepted with thanks, and the first Friday night of each month set as the date of meetings. As the regular date for January, however, falls on New Year's day, it was decided to hold the next meeting on TUESDAY, DECEMBER 29, at 8 p. m., and it is hoped that all members will arrange to be on hand and bring with them any friends who may be interested.

Those who failed to attend the last meeting and see the splendid collection of United States exhibited by Mr. Hoyt missed a treat, but it is hoped that he may be induced to display it again at a later date. At the meeting to be held on February 5, 1915, Mr. John Benson will show his fine collection of British Colonials, which includes the King Edward heads practically complete.

The offices of exchange manager, auction manager, librarian and counterfeit detector will be filled by the president at an early date, but in the meantime members desiring to exchange stamps should bring their selections with them to the meeting. Also, see if you can't get together a few good auction lots and we'll arrange for a rattling good auction in February. Any suggestions which will help to maintain a live interest in the club are greatly desired.

Mr. Charles L. Pond, of Indianapolis, Ind., who was secretary of the Omaha Collectors Club way back in 1901-03, has written to say that there remained in his hands at the death of that organization a balance of $3.30, and this amount he has turned over to the Omaha Stamp Club. This windfall has been added to the Club's treasury and with the payment of the first quarter's dues, which are collectible at this month's meeting, we will have sufficient funds to meet the running expenses of the club. We now have twenty-seven members—a very creditable showing—and hope to increase this number to fifty or more in the next few months.

ORA E. STARK,
Secretary-Treasurer.

NOTES ON MEXICAN PROVISIONALS.

There is evidently a wealth of provisional issues in store for collectors who like to secure surcharges made by means of a rubber stamp. It is a very convenient form not only of surcharging stamps to gratify the vanity of local postmasters, but also as a means of raising a bit of revenue.

Our friends on the border-line are keeping us well posted in regard to the course of events, though the different authorities vary in connection with the details of issue of these provisionals.

The very latest provisional are the "E. S." surcharges to which we have already referred, speciments of the same being submitted by W. J. Stanton. He has seen the following stamps with this overprint:—1899, 3c; 1903, 2c; 1910, 1c, 2c and 5c; dues 5c and 10c; also a 2c postcard.

Mr. Stanton also informs us that some of the 3c green Sonora with seal in the re-issued type have "Gob" in "Gobierno" dropped. This does not appear on all the sheets but where it does appear it is the fourth stamp. Of six hundred copies of all values examined only two were found in the type indicated.

A. W. Foster of El Paso, Tex., indicates a rubber stamp surcharge from Durango with the overprint consisting of "G. C. M. Durango" in red ink. Mr. Foster has a full set up to the peso and informs us that the new Madero set is expected soon. We may have chronicled this provisional but mention this item for what it is worth.

Just as we go to press A. C. Roessler sends us a word of condemnation of the "E. S." surcharge. He is not satisfied that these provisionals have any standing and closes his communication with these words:—"All rubber stamps surcharges from Mexico should be looked upon with suspicion. The set referred to has been out ten days and none have been received but from the initial source."

EDITORIAL.

After Many Years—A striking story has been relayed to us by a reader. He relates that a letter which was sent from Arendal, Norway, to Helsingnor, Denmark, fifty-nine years ago has just been "returned to the writer." The pilot of the "King Sverr," headquarters, Bergen, Norway, has this venerable letter which was sent by his mother fifty-nine years ago from Arendal, Norway, to Captain A. Olsen, of the brig, "Nidelvin," Helsingnor, Denmark. The captain had deported when the letter arrived at Helsingnor and the missive, on which the postage was 24 skilling, was interned by the custodian of the captain's letters, who died soon afterwards. The letter which over a half-century later was found among the papers of the functionary, was duly returned to its place of origin and then into the hands of the son of the writer, the mother having died fifteen years ago; and on the back of the letter was the endorsement to the effect: This letter has been lying among the papers of the ship chandler, ——, fifty-nine years, etc. The postmarks showed that the letter was sent June 28th, 1855, and was received July 1st, 1855.

Confederate Lore—Our remarks recently on Confederate printings and fac-similes were received with manifestations of interest and a somewhat lively correspondence on the subject has developed. Several letters convey information of no little value and we are pleased to find space for observations from a gentleman who has succeeded in gathering much original information on Confederate stamps and associated studies. To others who have so kindly sent specimens of counterfeit and bogus Confederates, we have returned our thanks with the stamps. It is a satisfaction to find that so much interest in Confederates is being evinced by a large number of collectors who are eager to receive and give, when occasion allows, information on the subject of the stamps in question.

Confederate Printers—Our friend says that the question of sequence of engravers and printers of the Confederate stamps was never more compactly or authoritatively expressed and definitely settled than by H. St. Geo. Offutt in 1868. Mr. Offutt was the First Assistant Postmaster General of the Confederate States and he served in that capacity until the close of the war. As chief of the Contract Bureau of the Confederate States post office department, the securing of postage stamps was directly under his supervision. The first contract was with Messrs. Hoyer and Ludwig, lithographers of Richmond, Virginia, for the five cents, head of Jefferson Davis; second, denomination of ten cents, portrait of Thomas Jefferson; and third, two cents (green) head of Andrew Jackson. Archer and Daley of Richmond succeeded Hoyer and Ludwig as contractors for furnishing stamps; and here, we quote: "Mr. Archer engraved the first steel plate postage stamp for the Department and a Mr. Halpin, employed in his office, engraved all of the others, and the plates, dies, etc., were the property of the Department and delivered by Mr. Offutt to Keatinge and Ball when he made a contract with them, after it became impossible for Archer and Daley to furnish them." The following is a bit of personal recollection by Mr. Offutt: "The plates furnished by Thos. De La Rue and Co., of London, England, were purchased by an agent of the Department that was sent out by it; and his name was not Mayer Gorgas, and my collection of stamps and designs was brought to me by the agent from the office of De La Rue and Co., and has their imprint on it. . . ."

It Is Before Us—The details in the foregoing paragraph are taken from a communication that appeared in the American Stamp Mercury, Boston, May, 1868, from Mr. H. St. Geo. Offutt, New York, whose intimate connection with the post office department of the Confederate States has been indicated; and they were incidental to an exposure of the preposterous claims of those who argued at the time in favor of the validity of that arrant stamp rogue, the ten cent "Stonewall" Jackson. Further, a copy of this old number of Mr. Trifet's paper has been handed us so that we might see the original text of Mr. Offutt's counter-blast; and we may add that parts of Mr. Offutt's letter have been drawn upon freely by historians of the Confederate issues since that day and date, April 14th, 1868.

Glad To Hear It—We take the following paragraph from a letter received from Mr. Donald R. Heath, Monroe, Michigan: "The other evening I came across a letter which you had written to my father on December 24th, 1890, enclosing a menu card of a banquet given by the Chicago Philatelic Society on December 18th, 1890; and the card represented an envelope that was franked with an imprint of the two cent, type of 1883, United States. This alone would have been sufficient to warrant saving the card but upon examination, I found that the cover was mailed with a beautiful specimen of the 1890, two cent, with right cap, (one straight edge). I took it to Detroit with me to the last meeting of the Branch and from the 'General' down, all pronounced it 'great.' I do not suppose that right caps were so numerous then that each invitation bore one for a souvenir." We well remember the menu card of the banquet held at the Grand Pacific Hotel in 1890 by the Chicago Philatelic Society that we as secretary of the society mailed to prominent philatelists throughout the country. Among those foremost philatelic citizens of that age, we knew of none worthier than Dr. George F. Heath of Monroe, Michigan, who, while first a numismatist, yet was a philatelist of the best type. Mr. Donald R. Heath is the son of Dr. Heath, deceased, and his philatelic inclinations are disclosed by his attendance at recent conventions of the American Philatelic Society. We are pleased to hear that an act performed in 1890 has had so satisfactory a sequel twenty-four years afterwards.

Go Slow—On several occasions recently we have been placed in a position of embarrassment and have been much inconvenienced likewise by reporting names of alleged delinquents as sent in by dealers and others for exposure in our columns only to find after the names have been printed that the delays complained of have been satisfactorily explained and differences adjusted. The specter of a libel suit need not be invoked to make us wish not to work hardship, even unwittingly, upon persons against whom no charge in fairness may lodge, when all the circumstances are known. Such a contretemps is repugnant to sentiments of justice. We shall adhere to our rule not to publish names of suspected persons until a competent attorney has passed on the case and certified to the justice of an exposure or until the misconduct comes under our own observation. Of course, in cases of repeated and flagrant dishonesty, our duty is clear but when an element of doubt enters into them, we must be watchful.

* * *

New Revenues—Two varieties of watermark may be found in the paper of some of the new revenues, the old double-lined and the single line watermark. We have seen the half-cent wines and cordials in so light a shade of green as to be to all purposes almost a different color.

SONORA GREEN SEALS WITHOUT THE SEALS.

It has been reported that recently someone has stolen from the printing office at Hermosillo, a quantity of spoiled or waste sheets of the issues which have been made with the green seals thereon. Just what the lot contained is not known but as some of these stamps are now being offered we shall soon know about what was in the lot that was stolen. And as is to be expected the thief is queering his own game on account of lack of knowledge of the stamps and how to properly manipulate them in order to more nearly deceive collectors. All that I have seen so far are clearly made up to deceive the collector.

I have had sent me direct from Hermosillo and submitted by various dealers and collectors the following stamps which are undoubtedly from the stolen lot.

The stamps referred to, Scott Nos. 322-5-6-8 are O. K. in so far as the printing, etc., is concerned, but in putting the embossed colorless word "CONSTITUCIONAL" on, the parties who stole the stamps evidently could not steal the die to do the embossing with and have evidently had one made and it is of a different size than the original. The original embossing die measures 42 mm. long and the letters are 4 mm. high. The fake die measures 38 mm. long and 3 mm. high, so that we now have the first issue saved as these remainders which were stolen all have a counterfeit embossing on them and this makes them of no value.

Next we find strips or single copies of the No. 341, 5c which should have green seal. This is from the Maro error sheet which was printed on soft creamish paper and none were ever issued without the seal, by the government. The first MARO error sheet was Scott's No. 329. Later these sheets were overprinted with the seal. None of the stamps without seal on soft creamish unwatermarked paper were ever issued. The stamps which were stolen and which are being offered would be very dangerous to collectors if it were not for the fact that the crooks who got the goods have, in their effort to deceive collectors, embossed all these stamps with the word CONSTITUCIONAL the same as was used on the first issue. If it were not for this the stamps would puzzle collectors for it is known that copies of some of these stamps on soft paper without the seal were purchased at the post offices at the time of their use. Two used copies of the 5c are in an European collection which was to be shown at the Cassel exhibition and sheets of some other values with the green seal on one row of five stamps and without the seal on the other row of five stamps are known in this country. I have a sheet of the 1c value in my collection.

The next and most common of these stolen remainders is the 2c value of the REISSUE, green seal set without the seal. The crooks have also embossed these stamps which helps to kill their real interest to collectors.

It would look to one who has studied these stamps carefully that parties who have made this haul have found a few sheets or portions of sheets of some of the earlier issues and quite a number of the 2c value of this reissue set. These 2c stamps are also embossed with the word CONSTITUCIONAL which lessens their interest to collectors. If this word were left off the stamps they would be of more danger to the collecting fraternity.

Faked covers containing a pair of these 2c stamps and a single copy of the first issue 1c No. 322, also covers with a single copy of these 2c stamps and first issue 3c No. 325, cancelled HERMOSILLO and backstamped MAGDALENA, are making their appearance and they are about the best job of faked covers that have come from Mexico but at that it is easy to detect them as made to order goods.

In the first place there is a variation of 20 days between the two towns in cancellation dates. In the second place the postmark which is being used on the Hermosillo end of the job and which is used to cancel the stamps is not of the same style as was used at the time of the original use of these stamps. Therefore all you need do to detect a faked cancellation on one of the first issue of these type set stamps, and assure yourself that it is a fake in the present instance even if it is removed from the cover and separated from its brother, the 2c Reissue without seal is to compare the postmarks. The postmark now being used is found on all recent issues and is much different than that used on the early issues. Then the idea of finding one of these 2c reissues cancelled in August, 1913, at least a year before the stamps were issued is quite a laughable matter in itself.

Do not blame the Mexicans or the Mexican authorities for all this stuff. If we lived next door to Nicaragua and things were so handy for us as they are with Mexico, I should hate to imagine what a mess we would make of the work they are doing down there.

So far as the Government is concerned these Mexican issues have been very clean and handled in as honorable a manner as the stamps of many other countries. It is the everlasting hunt of the collector and dealer for something new that is causing the most of the faked goods to come on the market, but most of it can be spotted on the jump by one who is experienced in these stamps and there is little cause to worry. The good will be separated from the bad and it is only you fellows who are buying direct from Mexico that are apt to get severely stung as the bunch down there will gladly supply you with anything you want and anyway, you want it for a few pesos. This statement has also applied to many other countries.

As regards the buying of these green seal stamps without the seal, you can do just as you please about them; you know their status and if you are a real enthusiast you will want them, but of course you need not buy them with the thought that you are getting a rarity when you now know better, altho the quantity which is available may be so small that they will really be rare. They will have a very interesting place in any specialized collection and will be eagerly sought for.

I have had submitted to me within the last three weeks no less than 50 stamps which the owners were doubtful of and have in all cases advised them of their true standing and will always be glad to perform a like service for any collector. I know these stamps and am interested in protecting the collectors of these issues and feel quite proud of the fact that I have yet to see something which I could not explain and place in its proper class.—GEORGE WARD LINN.

OUR BOOK REVIEW.

The Catalogue of Yvert & Tellier, published by Yvert & Tellier, Amiens, and Theodore Champion, Paris, France, in collaboration, is one of the great works of its kind and is the standard in France. As we become more familiar with this catalogue in its succeeding editions, we find its attractions more impressive. A careful examination of the eight hundred or more pages makes one a staunch friend of the book. Its scope is wide as it includes telegraph stamps, postal fiscals, etc., and its arrangement is logically excellent. The important feature of illustrations is beyond criticism; the cuts are reduced in size but singularly clear and there is a wealth of illustrations of the smaller differences of type, which are puzzling to the average collector when the explanation is made in text alone. The various tables in the preface are embracive and in their instructive way are helpful to the studious collector. These, with the clean cuts and illustrations of minor variations, supplemented with plentiful descriptions in text, which, of course, are in French, make the catalogue one of the needed volumes in one's working library and a most comforting and pleasant work to consult. We may add that the minor varieties are relegated to small type. The prices in the book are said to be the "actual" ones and while it is not our idea to pass judgment on them, yet we may safely say that the quotations are given by minds fully experienced in the broadest philatelic sense. It seems to us that it is particularly enterprising on the part of the publishers to issue this excellent and substantial volume in these trying times in France. The price of the catalogue is given as four francs which certainly is a reasonable one; and we assume that postage is extra. Catalogue de Timbres-Poste, Yvert & Tellier, 1915. Yvert & Tellier, 37 Rue des Jacobins, Amiens, France or Theodore Champion, 13 Rue Drouot, Paris, France.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES AND VARIETIES

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Information regarding new issues gratefully received. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. Letters calling for a reply should contain a self-addressed stamped envelope. We cannot give addresses of our correspondents.

UNITED STATES.—David E. Maxwell also calls attention to the yellowish shade of the current 8c stamp, as noted in No. 1238.

F. L. Bennett, Frederick J. Rider and others have given us further information regarding the watermarks of the new revenue stamps. The list of those seen to date is as follows:

U. S. P. S.

Proprietary—⅛c, ⅜c, 1¼c. 3⅛c, 3¾c, 20c.
Documentary—½c, 1c, 2c, 5c. 10c, 50c.
Cordials, Wines, etc.—¼c, ½c, 1c. 1½c, 3c, 4c, 5c, 6c, 8c, 10c, 20c.

U. S. I. R.

Proprietary—¼c, ⅝c, 1¼c, 1⅞c, 2½c, 4c, 4⅜c, 5c, 6c, 10c.
Documentary—1c, 2c, 3c, 4c.

AUSTRALIA.—Bright & Son have shown us a letter card with new King George stamp and the usual inscriptions on the obverse, and a picture of Geelong Harbor on the reverse. This is found printed in green, blue, red and purplish black on gray card, inside white.

BECHUANALAND PROTECTORATE.—Whitfield King & Co. have shown us the current 3d and 4d English stamps overprinted for use in this Protectorate.

Adhesives.
3d bluish violet.
4d slate green.

BOSNIA.—The 5 and 10h stamps of the 1906 issue have been overprinted 7 and 12 heller respectively, beneath the date 1914, these being War Relief stamps applied to the same purpose as the Austrians already chronicled, say Whitfield King & Co.

ERITREA.—Whitfield King & Co. have been informed by the Director General of Italian Posts that "it is untrue that any 5c or 10c stamps of the pictorial design have been issued for this place. The only denominations that have been issued in this type are the 15c and 25c."

HUNGARY.—Whitfield King informs us that the complete set from 1f to 5kr have been overprinted in the same manner as those of 5 and 10f as described in their November Monthly List, but it it not quite clear from their correspondent's letter whether the stamps overprinted are the ordinary issue or the "Flood" stamps, though probably the latter.

ITALY.—Offices in the Levant.—From Whitfield King & Co. we have received the following:

"Santi Quaranta. Several journals have chronicled the Italian stamps of Janina overprinted 'Santi 40' and values in paras and piastres. The Director General of Italian Posts informs us that no Italian Postal Agency has been established at this port in Epirus and therefore no stamps have been issued by the Italian Government."

Offices in Tripoli.—The International Stamp Co. has shown us a curious cover from Tripoli. It has a 15c stamp of 1909 without overprint, and a 10c overprinted "Libia," Scott's No. 1015. In addition to these stamps the cover hand-stamped with a large circular stamp having the Royal Arms in the centre, and "4th Divisione Special—Officio Canita" around the circle. It was postmarked at "Derna—Cirenaica," the latter preserving the old Latin name for the country.

JAPAN.—Tadayasu Maki sends us a print of a special commemorative postmark used at the "Special Grand Military Manoeuvres, 1914," held near Osaka. This postmark was used only at that office, November 19, 20 and 21. Our correspondent says that these commemorative postmarks are often used in Japan.

PERSIA.—Bright & Son have shown us two new post cards from Persia, a 2c card for interior use and a 5c card for foreign mails.

Post Cards.
2c green on greenish.
5c carmine on buff.

SAMOA.—The Postage Stamp says that eight values of the German Samoa stamps of the ship type have been overprinted "G. R. I." and surcharged new values in English money. The overprint is in tall fancy lettering, and the new value is in heavy figures, widely spaced from the "d".

Provisional Adhesives.
½d on 3pf brown.
½d on 5pf green.
1d on 10pf carmine.
2½d on 20pf ultramarine.
3d on 25pf black and red on yellow.
4d on 30pf black and orange on buff.
5d on 40pf black and carmine.
6d on 50pf black and purple on buff.

In addition to the above in September, a supply of New Zealand stamps was overprinted "Samoa" after the style of the Aitutaki set. These will supersede the interesting provisionals noted above.

Adhesives.
½d green.
1d carmine.
2d mauve.
2½d blue.
6d carmine.
1sh vermilion.

The stamps above overprinted are the Dominion 1d, the pictorial 2½d, and the King Edward issue for the balance of the list. The overprint is in orange red on the ½d, 2d and 2½d, and in deep blue on the others.

TURKEY.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly says that the overprint on the three stamps noted in No. 1250 reads "Capitulations abrogated, 1330." The date in the Turkish Calendar conforming to "1914." This is Turkey's celebration of the abolition of the foreign post offices.

OUR REBUS CONTEST.

We have been some time announcing the results of the rebus contest launched in our issue of September 26. It will be remembered that portions of eighteen stamps were pictured, seventeen of the designs being illustrated in the catalog. We find that the contest proved a very difficult one and tested to the fullest extent the keenness of the collecting eye.

The solution to the rebus is as follows, the designs being numbered horizontally from left to right:—

1 Uruguay A32	10 Portugal A62
2 Bosnia No. 33	11 France A18
3 Spain No. 94	12 Chili No. 88
4 New So. Wales No. 80	13 Hawaii No. 74
5 Mozambique A2	14 Peru PP1
6 Canada No. 102	15 Spain No. 355
7 Bolivia No. 138	16 Switzerland No. 97
8 U. S. No. 320	17 U. S. T. 15a
9 Spain & Colonies	18 Egypt A4

The following is the list of prize winners:—

C. H. Loomis, McLean, Va.
F. C. Clark, Medford, Ore.
C. O. Swaney, Trinidad, Col.
Willard Newton, Somerville, Mass.
M. Borowsky, Bronx, N. Y. City.

The solution sent in by Mr. Loomis may be termed perfect, though in one instance it did not tally with the official list as given above. The author of the rebus gave Bolivia as the correct solution to No. 7, but Ecuador will apply with equal correctness. The solution by Mr. Loomis gave Ecuador No. 139 and this stamp was named by several of the contestants. We feel that this particular entry is deserving of special mention, not only because of its being a correct solution but for the reason that the entry was neatly typewritten and Mr. Loomis submitted specimens of the stamps from which the illustrations were taken.

Second honors go to F. C. Clark of Medford, Ore., whose prowess in connection with the solving of rebuses is appreciated by contestants in the past. Mr. Clark solved correctly all but Nos 6 and 7 and his entry was a literary venture of merit. C. O. Swaney of Trinidad, Colo., failed to solve Nos. 1, 6 and 7; Willard Newton of Somerville, Mass., Nos. 6, 7 and 8 and M. Borowsky, Bronx, N. Y. City, Nos. 6, 7 and 8.

We feel that special mention should be made of the entries of James Lewis Howe (Nos. 6, 7, 8 and 12 missing), T. Russell Hungerford (Nos. 6, 7, 8 and 15 missing) and Francis Dessart (Nos. 6, 7, 8 and 15 missing).

Entries were also received from:—Ira M. Kells; Frederic C. DePuy; Chas. Todd Plumlee; Frank P. Sayben; Fr. Altfelix; Verdin A. Berger; Henry K. Gerrish; Walter F. Lemke; Egbert Bacon; Robt. L. Clarke; A. E. Stockin; Virgil Monnet; Mrs. T. S. Farquaharson; W. W. Palmer; Wm. Rae Ferguson; L. C. Brown, and John B. Mehrtens.

We may be able to have another contest of this kind after our January rush of advertising has been taken care of.

FEDERALSBURG, MD., PRECANCELS.

Members of the A. P. S. receiving the last number of the official journal were pleased to note on the cover a strip of five 1c with the overprint "Federalsburg, Md." in violet ink running vertically in two lines upwards. We wrote the postmaster at Federalsburg and received the following information:—

"The J. W. Stowell Printing Co. being compelled to send through this office a large amount of mail matter, we secured a permit to precancel 11,000 1c stamps for use on one lot of matter posted in the week of Dec. 7. These stamps are percancelled with a rubber stamp furnished by the government and stamped by hand in this office."

THE PARTNERSHIP COLLECTION.

By J. Avery Wills.

When the Boy's eighth birthday was coming near, his mother planned to gratify a childhood wish of her own, as well as to place in the Boy's hands a new interest. So from a back corner of her desk she drew forth a little old blank book and a worn envelope, containing the stamp collection of her early days. She went to the book-store, and with a good bit of satisfaction bought a Nineteenth Century Album, an extravagance her parents had frowned upon. With much study and many mistakes, she finally mounted that old jumble of both really good and woefully shabby stamps, two hundred and fifteen specimens in all, and the birthday gift was ready.

The minister-father approved, but from a distance,—it was "good for the Boy" and "could do no harm." The young eight-year-old evidently inherited the philatelic spark, which had lain dormant in his mother, and enthusiastically set to work to "fill the blank spaces." The mother had wisely left the gathering of current and recent issues to the young collector, and the daily mail, waste-basket, all relatives and friends were requisitioned to furnish supplies for this new stamp-campaign. The mother herself felt more real enthusiasm than in her own solitary collecting, and eagerly they looked up and mounted each new treasure. When, in a few months the infant collection was doubled, there was as much pride in her heart as in the young owner's.

But still the father only showed an amused tolerance, until one day a few Bosnia jubilees and some other equally artistic, if not highly valuable stamps, were shown him. Somehow, they appealed to his interest, and he began to "take notice"; it was not long before the Boy's stamp collection had a new and constant friend,—and with his broader associations, additions came from many quarters.

Mekeel's became a weekly visitor in this home, and was about as eagerly read by everyone as the daily papers in war-time. A stamp catalogue could usually be found on the library table, or tucked in the corner of someone's favorite reading chair. Many an exciting hour they spent over a table spread with little piles of stamps and all sorts of stamp paraphernalia.

The Boy's interest never flagged. Stamps were consolation in sickness, of which he had more than his share; they were prizes for school achievements; they were gifts most choice. He early showed preference for a small British Colony, thus unconsciously dipping into "specialism," spending much of his small allowance for the really worth-while stamps of the interesting Island. He eagerly searched advertisements for bargains, kept up lively exchange with other enthusiasts, and spent long hours with his album.

The father's interest did not stop with the gay picture-stamps, but found satisfaction in many rare bits of early engraving. His, also, was the careful, painstaking study that put pages of beautiful shades and varieties in the United States album. He came into his own when a considerate friend sent the eleven-pound hoard of an old lady. In the relaxation from more exacting duties, he hunted out many bits of treasure-trove. It was his care and patience that added the "right cap" to the '90 issue, and enriched the "triangle" issues with wonderful wealth of detail and completeness. To him is left the search for nieties of shading and the interesting minor varieties which the growing collection finds place for.

The collection grew, naturally, as every good thing that three people are interested in is bound to grow. And the old International Album found its blank pages and its margins overflowing, its U. S. corner wholly inadequate, and its binding in quite desperate condition. The family council decided that new loose-leaf albums must lodge the ever-increasing hoards. It was to the mother's hands again that fell the task of re-arranging the stamps, and mounting them on their new pages. The task appealed to the artist in her, as with care and nicety, issue after issue came to its rightful place. Cleaning, hingeing and sorting, the Boy was her right-hand man, and together they planned the best pages,—though that is a tale by itself.

Today that little collection, coming on its thousands now, stands for the relaxation and interesting pursuit of two busy people, and the inspiring and educating hobby of a live boy in the teen age. The "partnership collection," as the Boy has dubbed it, represents probably more of the nice points of collecting, and wisdom of choice than most boy's collections,—because in his purchases and additions, he has been, unconsciously oftentimes, guided by somewhat steadier heads,—thus being saved much of the froth-and-sticker gathering of the average boy. He has learned a discrimination that is worth-while; and, best of all, he has felt the confidence and interest of his parents in his pursuit. I recommend "partnership collections" to give parents and growing boys and girls a common interest.

I feel proud of the way my customers keep coming for my approvals. Hard to get stamps at liberal discounts. Send for a selection now. H. W. LITTEN, Rock Island, Ill. [tf*

MARKS STAMP CO. TORONTO, CANADA

WITH THE NEW PHILATELIST.

Edited by BILL BLOSS, 2729 Hampden Court, Chicago, Ill.

We propose to insert upon this page matter that will be of interest to the boy collector. Some two thousand boys are now on our mailing list and it is our desire to come closely in contact with them in such a manner as will be most helpful. Any information desired will be cheerfully rendered through these columns. Do not submit stamps for examination.

ADVERTISING.

Before continuing our remarks of previous issues, I take this opportunity to inform the readers again that I am not posing as an expert stamp dealer, nor do I try to make my articles complete. I merely try to dispose of a very few of the obstacles that rise in the path of the new stamp dealer. Were I an expert on advertising or any other of the subjects I write about, my time would be worth too much to write articles for even the world's best stamp paper. However, I believe my articles are helping a few who lack even my limited experience.

Advertising is the key to business. Without advertising very few, especially of the new dealers, could prosper. Of course, there is direct and indirect advertising. A dealer without effort on his part may win fame if he can supply every stamp in a certain line the way the people want it, or if some particular feature of his business is different from the ordinary run. That is indirect advertising.

Direct advertising is divided into many classes, too numerous to list here. It consists of newspaper, classified and displayed; circular and individual letter; premiums; etc.

Continuing our remarks of last week, let us consider our friends, Anderson and Jones. Having prepared their stock as previously explained, they are now ready to advertise. We will consider their displayed advertising first.

Anderson has prepared a fine line of American approvals, which he handles almost exclusively. He wishes to attract a little attention to his advertising, as he is unknown, hence he makes use of many of the well known psychological points of advertising. First he uses the MYSTERY.

In advertising, this feature consists of copy so worded as to arouse the curiosity of the reader without disclosing the identity of the advertiser. Properly handled, this feature will bring results. If, however, the campaign is not brought to a head at the right moment, the attention of the reader will decrease. Wrigley's "Spearmint" was introduced by this method. Movie fans are doubtless familiar with the campaigns to attract attention to the affairs of "Kathlyn" or "Zudora" or the "Dangers of Diana" or "The Sins of Sarah," as the case may be. My own campaign introducing my "Blue Books" held recently in this paper brought very good results.

To get back to our friend Anderson. He believes that a few short spaces are better than one long one, since each advertisement makes an impression on the mind of the reader, and many impressions are better than one. Large single spaces in a campaign of this kind are unnecessary unless something is to be told, in detail. The less detail to mystery advertising, the better. Hence, Anderson runs the following one line displayed adv.:

What Does Anderson Sell?
Who is Anderson?
Why Should I Buy From Anderson?

After two or three insertions of advertising of this kind, Anderson announces his American Approvals on this order:

ANDERSON'S AMERICAN APPROVALS make good collections better. Only clean, well-centered, lightly cancelled or O. G. stamps included, at honest prices. No speculative or other trash included. Personal attention to all orders gives my clients satisfaction.
A. ANDERSON, BIGTOWN, TEXAS.

The readers who have been wondering who Anderson was have found out. If they collect his line, they will be anxious to see if his stamps are as good as he says they are. He appeals to them because he claims to have the kind of books they are looking for. The fact that he believes in personal service shows that he is in harmony with progressive business ideas. Therefore, he attracts the people by his advertising.

Now let us consider our friend, Jones. He lacks advertising ability so he advertises his common-place approvals as follows, and keeps the same copy week after week, without change, because it is too much bother to write a new ad each time.

TRY MY 50% DISCOUNT SELECTIONS of stamps on approval. 100 stamps free with every lot. Please write to J. JONES, NOPLACE, IOWA.

Let us compare the two advertisements. In Anderson's, his display is attractive for the reason that he explains what Anderson sells, and this is the point he has been working up to. Had he announced known as "Anderson's American Approvals" will be sent to American collectors, etc.

50% DISCOUNT SELECTIONS

he would have attracted little attention, since 50% discount approvals are as common as fleas on a goat, and the display must arouse the curiosity of the reader if it is to hold his attention through the whole space. After the announcement, the display would not attract much attention for the reason that the reader would not care to learn about Anderson or his approvals. But, since they are wondering who Anderson is, and what he sells, they seize this opportunity to satisfy their curiosity.

Consider Jones' copy. Don't you ask yourself why you should try his approvals? Why should you? Does he tell you anything about them? From his advertisement you learn only two things, the first being that he sends selections of stamps instead of bread labels or cigar bands, the second that he offers you a premium for trying them. We will discuss the premium later. If Jones had said, "Try my 50% Discount Approvals," wouldn't we have known just as much? Three words would have been saved. Any reader of intelligence knows that he sends selections of stamps, not a hundred of the same stamp. Also, every reader knows that the word "approvals" signifies "selections of stamps" when it appears in an advertisement of this nature. Now consider the phrase "please write to." Naturally, the reader will write to Jones if he wants the selections, unless he telephones him, or cables him, or calls on him. If he does any of these things, isn't it just as satisfactory to Jones? In Anderson's advertisement, we learn just what kind of stamps he includes in his approvals, and the way he tells us makes us anxious to buy them. We hope that he can supply us with the kind of goods he claims, otherwise we will stop trading with him.

It is no use to waste this space by inserting "specimen copy." The reader will have to make a study of the copy of other dealers and pattern his accordingly. If any advertiser has difficulty in writing copy that pulls results, if he will submit some of his "copy" to me, I will gladly point out to him where he is making his mistake. The chief mistake the amateur makes is to copy the style of some other dealer. Many dealers have the idea that writing an advertisement is the simplest part of the stamp business, and that any jumble of words will do the business. Forget it. Advertising is just deep enough to be over the head of the dealer who doesn't think, and a lot of the thinkers would do better if they would sit down and study their own advertisements, and see if they would answer them if they were looking for stamps.

Let us consider the question of making up copy. In the first place, unless you are experienced in printing, or have some particular reason for giving the printer advice, let him use his own judgment, on how to set up your advertising. Keep a carbon copy of your "copy" and compare it with the finished advertisement. In this way, you will learn about how much to write for a two inch space. Where a paper allows fourteen lines to the inch, and seven words to the line, remember that the seven words are ordinary sized, not a selection of the longest words in the language. By comparison of past copy, study the length of the lines. Remember that while fourteen lines can be crowded into an inch of space, that no room for display is left. Also, when the reader has to examine your advertisement with a reading glass, he will pass it up and put in his time looking through some 8c 1895 for an "I. R" watermark. Limit your inch space to fifty words at the most, and make it twenty if you can tell the story in that number. The fewer, the better.

Anderson inserts the following advertisement:

U. S. $1 1902 Cat. .40	Price	.10
U. S. $1 1894 Cat. 1.00	"	.30
U. S. $1 1895 Cat. .50	"	.20
U. S. $1 1898 Cat. 2.00	"	.60
U. S. $1 Columbian 3.00	"	1.20
*U. S. $1 Parcel Post 1.75	"	1.50

Jones inserts the following in same sized space.

LOOK!
U. S. 241 at 1.10; 261 at 25c; 276 at 15c; 292 at 50c; 311 at 8c; 460 at 1.10; Set 294 to 209 at 45c; 312 at 2.35 unsd. 218 at 60c; 275a unsd. 1.10.

Both of these advertisements contain practically the same offers, though Jones' prices are lowest. Anderson uses as a leader a $1.00 1902 listing at 40c, which he sells at cost, or 10c, to attract customers. His items are clear, and the collector can see at once what stamps are offered, and if he is familiar with U. S. stamps, will readily see if he needs any of the stamps offered and can order without further loss of time.

Now turn to Jones' advertisement. His display is excellent. It attracts your attention. You look, and see a big mess of figures that means you must either get out your catalogue and laboriously check over prices, or take a chance. Not being of a gambling turn of mind, you decide to pass up Jones' remarkable offers, hence Jones loses a customer and you lose some bargains, but save some of your good time.

Too many advertisers have the idea that the more is jammed into a space, the more money will be gotten out of it. Hence, advertisements like Jones' are not uncommon. The average reader values his time too much to plod through such messes of figures as these. If he wants to solve a puzzle, he turns to Sam Lloyd, not to Jones' advertisment. If he wants to buy goods, he is liable to turn to Anderson because he sees what he wants and doesn't have to investigate it in a catalogue or solve a code before he knows if the price is right.

Leaders are articles offered at attractive prices to bring trade and are usually sold at or below cost. No attempt at a profit should be made from a leader, or in fact from any stamp advertised in this way unless an enormous volume of business is received. Make your profit by selling to the customers after they buy the leader stamp and give you a chance to circularize them with the merits of your stock. The writer firmly believes that premiums are better than leaders to attract trade.

Let's all have a Happy New Year. If we can put some light into the life of someone less fortunate than ourselves, and can make their life happy, we will so benefit our own life, and we will have a Happy New Year. Let's get our happiness that way.
